KM native Christopher Still paints late governor's portrait

When the newly commissioned painting of Florida governor the late Lawton Chiles was unveiled at the Capitol in Tallahassee December 3, viewers had plenty to look at. Through a wide variety of symbols, the multi-faceted art work that was shown reflected the Governor's colorful political and personal life in a way that went beyond mere portraiture.

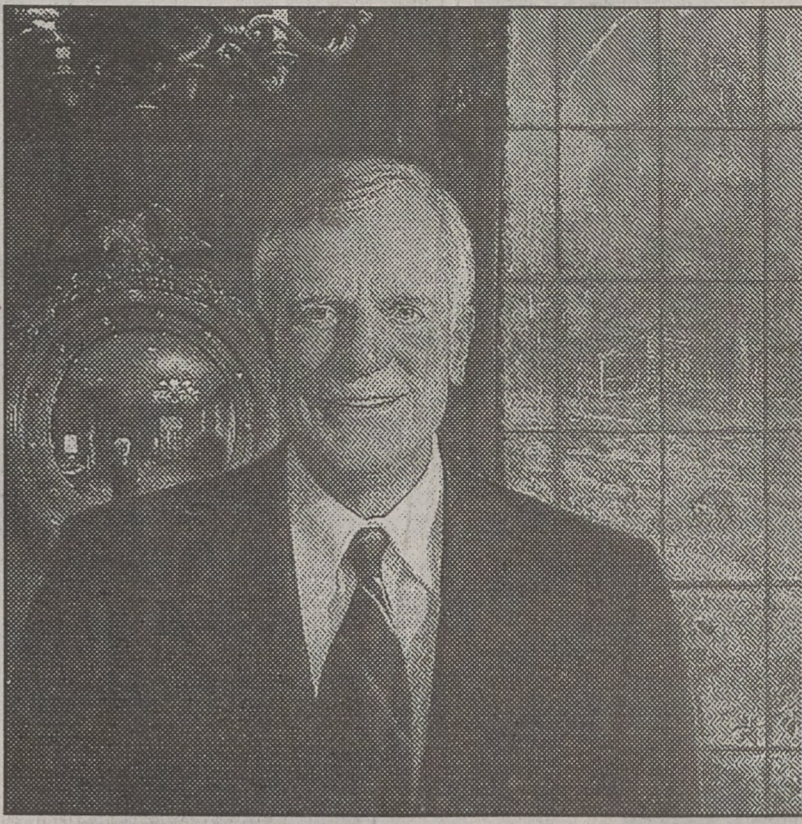

The artist who created Chiles' portrait is Kings Mountain native Christopher Still, son of Dr. and Mrs. John Still and grandson of the late former Kings Mountain mayor Mr. and Mrs. Garland E. Still. Now living in Tarpon Springs, Florida, Still brought plenty of experience to his Lawton labors. Just a few of the prestigious places that display Stills' work are the Schiele Museum in Gastonia, the White House, the Smithsonian Institution, and several foreign lands including Japan.

Combining his artistic talents with a bit of wry humor, Still's work is a montage of flashbacks that tell Chiles' story. At least a dozen different images that go all the way back to the Governor's log cabin beginnings are included in the painting's background that depicts Chiles standing in front of a window in his office with a mirror in the background reflecting towards the viewer.

Just a few of the symbols that Still surrounded the gubernator with include his wife, Mrs. Rhea Chiles, a pair of walking shoes symbolizing the 1,003 miles Chiles waiked across Florida for his 1969 Senatorial campaign, a raccoon in reference to a comment made during Chiles' 1994 governor's race, and the Space Shuttle heading into the distant sky.

Visitors to Florida's state capitol will have the chance to view Still's work and reflect on the accomplishments of Lawton Chiles for quite some time. The portrait could hang in the building for as long as 72 years.

THE GOOD NEWS ABOUT THE LATEST Prostate Cancer Treatment IS YOU CAN BE BACK AT WORK THE VERY NEXT DAY.

(OR IS THAT THE BAD NEWS?)

Introducing Prostate Seed Implantation. It's the latest in a full spectrum of prostate cancer treatments from The Comprehensive Cancer Center at Gaston Memorial. Working together, Gaston Urological Associates and the radiation oncologists at Gaston Memorial Hospital implant radioactive seeds in the prostate. The seeds allow doctors to precisely target the affected area with a stronger dose of radiation while minimizing the effects on healthy tissue. Which, in turn, significantly reduces the risk of side effects such as impotence and incontinence. To learn more about the latest prostate cancer treatments, call us at (704) 834-3551 or visit our website at www.gastonhealthcare.org.
