

Eagerly awaited by the golfer on your gift list are the latest clubs which carry the ball longer and more accurately.

Gift suggestions that will grip golfers

(NAPS)—If you know someone who plays golf, you have plenty of company. More than 16 million Americans enjoy golf, a game which emphasizes skill rather than strength. Finding a gift for the golfer in your life also takes some skill, but if you follow through on these suggestions you may be able to take a few strokes off your gift-search game.

A stocking stuffer that usually goes the distance is a gift certificate for the driving range.

For that golfer with a driving need to perfect his driving, a private lesson will suit him or her to a tee. You can also toss a package of tees into the stocking.

Always eagerly awaited by golfers are the newest drivers and irons. The latest technology in drivers and irons are clubs, created by Orlimar Golf Company, which are reported to carry a ball longer and straighter. The Orlimar TriMetal™ fairway wood, for example, rocketed to #1 on the Senior Tour 116 days after its debut. These more traditionally shaped clubs combine the performance benefits of stainless steel, copper-tungsten and a blend of steel, nickel and chromium to achieve superior playability.

In independent testing by one of the golf industry's premier testing laboratories, the Orlimar TriMetal driver carried the ball nine yards longer and 73 percent straighter than the Callaway Great Big Bertha. The Orlimar TriMetal 5 iron carried the ball 9 yards longer and 45.2 percent straighter than the Callaway Great Big Bertha Ti5 iron and 3.83 yards longer and 56 percent straighter than the X-12 5 iron.
