CLUBS

Inez Crowley hosts Magnolia Garden Club

Inez Crowley hosted the October meeting of the Magnolia Garden Club at her home. Members were served delicious refreshments from a beautifully-decorated table, with a fall motif.

President Baker brought the meeting to order by welcoming everyone and thanking the hostess.

The Kings Mountain Woman's Club annual Floral Fair was discussed. All members winning awards were congratulated.

Edie Bridges gave an interesting program on Hosta. She said it is a favorite of many gardeners, but its strong attraction is its hardiness, longevity and durability.

Hosta is a perennial that makes a natural brightener for any shady or dark garden. It makes a great border, background plant, or can be used for ground cover.

Mrs. Bridges discussed the different types of Hosta, colors, and texture of leaves. She gave some great tips on dividing and caring for Hosta. More information can be obtained from a book titled "The Genus Hosta" by W. George Schmid.

The November meeting will be at the home of Geneva Caveny. Sandra Murphrey will give the program.

Arrangements by Mabel McGill and Edie Bridges will be based on Harvest Beauty.

Donna Canova hosts Garden Club meeting

The Kings Mountain Garden Club held its regular monthly meeting Wednesday, Nov. 10 at 3:45 p.m. at the home of Donna Canova on Merrimont Avenue.

Guests were greeted on the entrance porch by a smiling Guatemalan pot filled with evergreens, pyracantha, and mums. An arrangement of bronze mums, fall foliage, and dogwood berries in an antique Costa Rican footed container graced the buffet dining table which was covered with a burgundy and gold cloth. The earth tones of fall were carried out through the use of wooden serving bowls and baskets. Colorful fall shades of orange-brown, red, gold, and yellow provided the motif for refreshments including Rick's Pecan Pie Cake, cheese ice box cookies, ham-it-up snacks, leaf sugar cookies, assorted candies, hot spiced tea and cold apple cider. Members enjoyed refreshments in the living room which was festive with wine-colored mums and pink roses.

The group moved to the den, which was decorated with bronze mums and liriopie berry arrangements, for the program. Jackie Cooper, president, opened the meeting with a prayer for gardeners, followed by timely tips.

The Rev. Edgar Cooper presented a video entitled "Gardens of the World" narrated by Audrey Hepburn for the program. Hepburn noted that the tulip is "the reigning queen of spring flowers, planted in the chill of autumn to burst forth, affirming rebirth and hope. As the diamond dominates all gems, and the sun the sky, so does the tulip in the world of flowers."

Magnificent among all gardens are the Kierkenhoff Gardens of Holland, providing spectacular tulips in bloom from March through May. Each individual tulip represents the taste

New Eden Gardens Library offers residents 'quiet place'

BY ALAN HODGE
Staff Writer

Kings Mountain already has a good collection of reading material in Mauney Library, but now there's another place in town where book lovers gather. Thanks to the efforts of Margaret McCarter and Joyce VanDyke, the residents at EdenGardens assisted living facility can enjoy their own private library.

Comfy chairs, a spacious table, and good lighting makes the EdenGardens library a spot that beckons readers. Items on the built-in bookshelves are neatly arranged and categorized just like they are in a professional library.

"We decided to make a library in the reading room at EdenGardens so the residents can have a quiet place to enjoy books," McCarter said. "Most of the materials for the library were donated by people who live here as I do."

Arranging the library from boxes of books and magazines took over 16 hours of work. Material had to be categorized and shelf arrangement decided upon. Working with McCarter, Joyce VanDyke brought her experience as a school librarian into action. Over a scholastic career spanning 33 years, VanDyke spent the majority of the time as a librarian at Central and Grover schools. She received her degree in Library Science from Winthrop University and retired in 1997.

The tally of books at EdenGardens library is impressive. Currently the shelves hold 403 fiction works, 63 religious books, 31 geography books, 18 reference volumes, 12 works on history, seven sports titles, nine
