KM Council candidate Edwards dies

ANDIE BRYMER

abrymer@kingsmountainherald.com

Garland Wayne Edwards, a candidate for an at-large seat on the Kings Mountain City Council, died Thursday at the V.A. Medical Center in Asheville.

Rose Ella Edwards described her husband as "well loved" and a "beautiful person."

The two were married March 22, 1993. Mrs. Edwards owned a Charlotte gospel music store at the time. She spotted Edwards through the store window and commented on him to her son. Her son passed along his mother's business card. Edwards later visited the store and the two met and were soon married.

The couple moved to Kings Mountain in the mid-1990s because Mrs. Edwards wanted to live in her husband's home town.

Mrs. Edwards said her husband's family looked up to him. Several family members followed in his career footsteps, driving trucks. Edwards also formerly worked as a correctional officer, security guard and police officer and in auto sales.

He served in the United States Marines during the Vietnam War and received a Purple Heart and other honors. He was a member of the American Legion.

Edwards, 55, was among six men running for the two at-large seats. Incumbents in that race are Rick Moore and Houston Corn and challengers are Roy "Butch" Pearson, Dean Spears and Lamar Fletcher.

Edwards' name appeared on the ballot and he received 99 votes. Houston Corn and Dean Spears won the two seats.

GROVER

From 1A

On beer and wine sales Green said "in my heart I believe people are against it." If the issue comes up, he plans to go door-to-door to find out.

Brent White said much needs to be done for the town. He supports trying to get the city's wells up and running to drop the cost of water.

White said alcohol sales are the only way a grocery store will come to Grover. He predicted it would bring in more revenue to the town.

Caring...Our Commitment to You

Cleveland Home Health Agency, Inc.

When You Are Well, and Especially When You Are Sick, There is No Place Like Home

With 77 million Baby Boomers only seven years from hitting retirement age and seniors numbering 35 million, a significant portion of the American population either is, or will soon be, evaluating their options when it comes to long term care. Home care continues to be the answer to caring for sick and disabled loved ones because of these demographics, personal preference, increased public awareness of the availability of home care services, new technology, and cost effectiveness.

The National Association for Home Care & Hospice (NAHC) has designated November as National Home Care Month. "Helping frail, disabled and dying Americans to stay independent and happy in their homes is our goal," said Val Halamandaris, President of NAHC.

You can count on Cleveland Home Health Agency (the oldest, private non-profit home health agency in North Carolina) for top quality home health care and equipment. Home health services we offer include skilled nursing, physical therapy, occupational therapy, speech therapy, home health aides, and medical social workers. Call or visit us at 105 T. R.
