Police seek help identifying shooter

Kings Mountain police are interviewing witnesses to determine who is behind a shooting early Sunday morning that left a Shelby man with minor injuries.

Ashley L. Young, 36, was treated and released after he was shot in the back of the arm with a shotgun. Detectives do not believe Young was the intended victim, according to Capt. Jerry Tessner.

The trouble started, police say, with a late-night birthday party that included at least 30 people near S. Battleground Ave. and Dixon School Rd., at a residence that is just outside of the city limits.

Around midnight, some of the individuals involved went to a nearby convenience store located within the city limits and that is where at least one shot was fired.

"Witnesses said someone was shooting at someone else and shot this person by mistake," Tessner said. "He didn't know he was hit right away ... due to adrenaline."

Police say they don't know yet how far the victim was from his attacker or what prompted the gunplay in the first place.

"We've got some information that we think is very viable. We're looking into it," Tessner said.

According to police reports, police have labeled the incident as assault with a deadly weapon inflicting serious injury. The reports also say the victim told police he was "walking toward vehicle and was shot in the back of the left arm."

Over the weekend and into the week detectives have been locating and interviewing witnesses in an effort to identify the shooter, a process that Tessner says can be time-consuming.

2013 Third Annual "EARTH & FIRE" Pottery Fest - Bruce Harry shows off his prize-winning pottery to be displayed at the opening June 25 at the SASI Depot in Kings Mountain.

2013 Pottery Fest to showcase the work of Rev. Bruce Harry II

The Rev. C. Bruce Harry II, originally from Kings Mountain, now resides in Seagrove, NC.

"I have received two callings from God," said Bruce.

The first was to be a minister of God and to pastor a church. The second calling came when one of his church members suggested that he should take a pottery class.

Only creating hand-crafted pieces of pottery for two years, Bruce's beautiful works of clay have already emerged into the art world, with one of his pieces chosen by the North Carolina Museum of History in Raleigh. His piece called "Porcelain Bottle" was one of only seven pieces chosen out of 100 entries for the Earthenware Exhibit.

After taking the pottery class taught by Mike Ferree of Seagrove, Ferree told Bruce he was a natural and had a true talent as a potter. Bruce now works in his home studio creating works of art while still pastoring his church.

"Jesus loves you" is written on the bottom of each piece he creates. Once you view his diverse pieces of art, you will immediately realize it is surely a God-given talent.

"We are so excited to have Bruce in our Pottery Fest," said Camiel Bradshaw of Southern Arts Society. They invite everyone to come out and see all of the potter's work, it is a great opportunity to start or add to a collection.

The Earth and Fire Pottery Fest starts June 25 and runs through July 26. An opening reception will be held on Saturday, June 29 from 7-9 p.m. A drawing for a $200.00 shopping spree for the Pottery Fest will also take place during the reception. Tickets can be purchased for $5.00 each any time during gallery hours between now and the reception. Depot/Gallery hours are, Tuesday through Saturday 10 a.m. - 4p.m. For more information please contact or SASI phone-704 739-5585.
