Missionaries share the light with ARP Church Morris commissioned

Suzanne Brawley Allers, who with husband, Jeff, are missionaries to Germany, described the mission work in Berlin as a "light in a place that was dark."

"All kids in Berlin make lanterns and march in their neighborhoods to share the good news of Jesus Christ," she told the children gathered at Boyce Memorial ARP Church for Vacation Bible School.

Allers said, "We share our light about Jesus," as she showed pictures of her home and the Family Center and Phillip Church in Berlin where she works. The children were delighted with snow pictures where children were hunting Easter eggs in the snow and of the Allers' twin sons, Ben and Sam, on the bicycles they ride to school.

Jane Talbert, right, accepts a German flag from Suzanne Allers, missionary to Berlin, Germany, at Vacation Bible School at Boyce Memorial ARP Church.

The missionaries helped start churches and teach classes, work in family centers, teach English, business courses, and pre-natal and post natal classes as well. Allers sang a children's song in German and presented a German flag to the group.

Children of the church weighed 18 pounds of coins and are continuing the coin-collecting project during Bible School as a mission project for children in Berlin, Germany.

"Genesis Space Probe" is the theme for a week of Bible School. A mission control station was the backdrop for the week's activities and was designed by Jim Hackney and Jan Welborn.

Janet Ware, director of the Bible School, said that some 60 people, including staff, enjoyed a full week of activities and the message by Allers was a highlight of the week as the children saw on film the recipients of their mission project in Kings Mountain.

Matt Morris, a former youth minister at Central United Methodist Church in Kings Mountain, was among 23 men and women commissioned June 20 at Lake Junaluska from churches across North Carolina. Matt, shown with Kerri, Judah and Zelia, is pastor of a Methodist church in Franklin. He is son-in-law of Shirley and Mal Brutko of Kings Mountain.
