

Kings Mountain High School Class of 2015

Cassidy Chapman
Katie Chapman
Erica Chariker
Shawn Christopher
William Clampett
Adhija Clark
Noah Coleman

Robert Costner
Aaron Cotton
Julian Coulter
Monica Crawford
Colby Crisp
Tico Crocker
Taylor Crotts

Emily Crouse
Ashley Curry
Ciera Davis
Deona Davis
Tristan Davis
Mary Dellinger
Tory Dover

Collin Dula
Elizabeth Earney
Jacob Edmondson
Mallorie Edmondson
Martina Edwards
Kourtni Ellison
Derek England

Donovan Faes
Justin Falls
Michael Falls
Kimberley Farris
Lauren Ferrell
Amber Foster
Collin Foster

Zachary Foster
Hunter Fulbright
Zachary Funderburke
Brianna Gamble
Jordan Gann
Megan Garey
Rory Gengler

McKenzie Gibson
Emily Gilbert
Jaylah Glover
Maria Gonzalez
Zaragoza
Tyquavious Goode
John Gordon
Lauren Gould

Did you know?

The term "high school" means different things in different places. In the United States, high school generally refers to grades 9 to 12. In Canada, each province and territory has its own education system, so secondary schools vary with regards to grade levels. In other areas of the world, high school may encompass the equivalent to grades 6 through 12 in the United States. The phrase "high school" owes its origins to Scotland, where the world's oldest secondary school, Edinburgh's Royal High School, was established in 1505. It is believed this school served as a model for the first public high school in the United States, the English High School, which was founded in Boston in 1821. Today, there are many high schools across the world. In terms of enrollment, high schools in the New York City area boast the highest enrollment, according to the site HighSchoolGuide.org. Brooklyn Technical High School in Brooklyn, NY, with a 2011 enrollment of 8,076 students, is the largest high school in America, followed by Fort Hamilton High School, also located in Brooklyn, with 7,805 students. Tottenville High School in Staten Island, NY, boasts the third-largest student body with 7,770.

Congratulations Graduating Class of 2015!

Scism & Son

Paint & Body Shop

704-730-0050

2027 Shelby Hwy
Kings Mountain

Since 1997

