

City gearing up for BeachBlast

The water, the sand, the sun, the music and the fun – that's life along the Grand Strand!

On Saturday, July 18, Kings Mountain will feel more like Ocean Drive than Kings Mountain as the community celebrates BeachBlast bringing the beach experience downtown to Patriots Park, 225 Railroad Avenue.

Activities will begin at 10 a.m. and beach music fans can shag into the summer night with music at the Gazebo featuring The Band of Gold, Gary Lowder and Smokin' Hot, and the Swingin' Medallions. The water features will include the Rotary Splash Pad and continuous rounds of Water Wars.

This free event opens with competition in the Tiny Tots and Teenie Bikini Contest (from newborn to six years old), a watermelon eatin' contest, a Woodie car show, and the Big Beach Ball Drop. A variety of amusement rides will be open all day until 10 p.m. when the event ends.

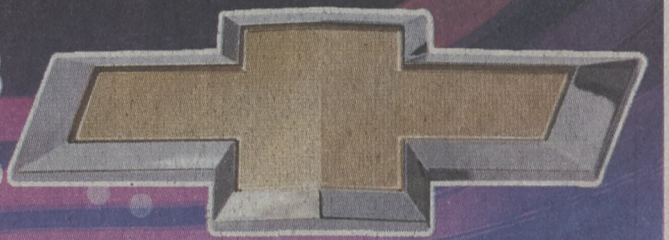

A variety of food vendors and craft vendors will be set up at Patriots Park in downtown Kings Mountain with their unique art, crafts, and collectibles for sale.

RETIRED POSTAL EMPLOYEES – Pictured are five retired postal employees who were among guests at last Wednesday's celebration of the 75th year of the old Kings Mountain Post Office. From left, Sherry Byars, Nancy Ross, Edward Lovelace, Quay Moss, and W. Donald Crawford. Dr. Kevin Cherry, State Historic Preservation Officer and Deputy Secretary of the N. C. Department of Cultural Resources, presented the official certificate of entry of the old Kings Mountain Post Office in the National Register of Historic Places to Mayor Rick Murphrey at the 75th anniversary celebration Wednesday.
