Picture a group of untrained
school boys trying to do a ranch hand's work, plus the fact that they are of mixed races, and it adds up to a lot of confusion, laughs and patience on Wayne's part.
But, you'll notice that Wayne exhibits the father role (his own sons are all dead).
Mark Rydell directs the film as it is seen through the eyes of boys, and, while they are expected to do the work of adult ranch hands,
they come a bit short when sampling the Duke's liquor
not to mention their encounter
with a group of saloon
women.
The film is rated "GP-- with all ages admitted--but strong emphasis is placed on parental guidance for pre-teen-agers.

THE WORLD OF ENTERTAINMENT

THE COWBOYS'

It's another Western with the Duke starring. "The Cowboys" takes on a different route than most of John Wayne's Western films. When Wayne (Wil Anderson) finds himself without ranch hands to drive several thousand head of cattle to market (his hands have gone on a gold hunt), he collects a dozen school boys to help him do the job.

Picture a group of untrained school boys trying to do a ranch hand's work, plus the fact that they are of mixed races, and it adds up to a lot of confusion, laughs and patience on Wayne's part. But, you'll notice that Wayne exhibits the father role (his own sons are all dead). Mark Rydell directs the film as it is seen through the eyes of boys, and, while they are expected to do the work of adult ranch hands, they come a bit short when sampling the Duke's liquor not to mention their encounter with a group of saloon women.

The film is rated "GP-- with all ages admitted--but strong emphasis is placed on parental guidance for pre-teen-agers.

Bethlehem and Oak Grove volunteer fire departments participated in the burning of the old livestock barn at the Cleveland County Fairground Sunday. The firemen battled the blaze for about two and a half hours during the burning exercise.

TV COMMENTARY

By John Smiley

A FOOT-PATPING PACE is rapidly being reached as TV politicizing quickens. The GOP's jumbo and Democratic donkey are snorting at each other ever more often as election winds begin to blow. "Equal time" bids are flying more rapidly than a warehouse auctioneer's jargon when selling Lucky Strike tobacco.

STRANGE THINGS may someday be happening in the shoot-out competition between TV and the local movie house. Theaters may begin showing old TV movies. People in Chicago are paying hard cash to see "Brian's Song", which they could have seen free last November on television. The grand reviews the TV show received could have promoted the movie.

AN ACTOR named Roger Davis will begin in one of the co-starred title roles in "Alias Smith and Jones" on February third. He replaces Pete Duel, who portrayed Hannibal Heyes, but was found dead in his Hollywood home.

THE JIMMY STEWART SHOW began as a slow burner--as slow as the star's talking. But it turns out to be quite an enjoyable program. Viewers enjoy the quick witted conversation and repartee contained in the show.
PROGRAMS LIKE "Curiosity Shop" and "Take A Giant Step" are stumping their toes when competing against "Popeye", "The Road Runner", and such. One hopes the day will come when the more constructive children's programming will prevail.

PREMIER RESIGNS
Rome-Italy's Premier Emilio Colombo has resigned. The crisis came from a split between Christian Democrats and Marxist Socialists during a December election.
