

Broyhill Discusses Consumer, Environmental Legislation

Congressman James T. Broyhill, speaking Friday to a meeting of the Gastonia Lions Club, discussed new consumer and environmental legislation coming from the current session of Congress. The government and the Congress have responded to public demand for stronger laws in these two areas, the Congressman stated, but there is a legitimate concern about the purpose and effectiveness of new programs.

The Tenth District Representative discussed a recently released government study which evaluated the economic impact of new anti-pollution regulations on U. S. industry. "We must face the fact," he stated, "that some dislocation may occur, but the overall impact is not really so great as first predicted. For example, it is estimated that 50,000 to 125,000 jobs may be lost as a result of these plant closings. It should be pointed out, on the other side, that the loss to the nation from air pollutants alone in damage to public health, plant life, and buildings is estimated at $16 billion a year."

Broyhill also stated that "Congress can and should ease the impact of anti-pollution laws on wage earners, businesses, and local communities."

He also discussed the need for new laws in the field of consumer protection. To illustrate his point, Broyhill displayed a number of toys taken from store shelves which presented clear safety hazards for children. He said that Federal standards were necessary to protect the public from such hazardous products. "However," he stressed, "we must work out legislation that will be both fair to the consumer and operable in the marketplace. The consumer does not benefit from idealistic legislation which cannot be followed or administered properly."

 Young love is just as serious, to the young, as mature love is to adults—or can't you remember?

Members of the squad answered 18 calls last week, six were transport trips to the hospital. One was made to the Ear, Eye, Nose & Throat Hospital in Charlotte. One was made to transport a patient to Charlotte for treatment and back to Kings Mountain.

On Thursday, a member of our squad helped carry children from Gaston Orthopedic Hospital to Charlotte to see the circus.

We had one service call and three house calls - stand-bys at the community center for Wrestling and two music park shows. The squad traveled 349 miles on trips and stood 385 man hours on duty.
