KMHS Students Attend Yearbook Workshop

Thomas Hinton and Bob Manner, students at Kings Mountain High School, and Brenda Neal, Journalism and English teacher, were among 500 from 13 states who attended a special seminar for yearbook staffs on the Salem College campus in Winston-Salem over the weekend.

Sponsored by Hunter Publishing Company of Winston Salem, "Seminar Two" was initiated last summer "to teach yearbook staffs new ideas in editing and development," according to J.B. Edwards, director of the seminar and public relations director for Hunter.

The four day workshop, August 9-12, emphasizes "New Directions for 1973" with a "program of activities for yearbook staffs from throughout the country to share,"

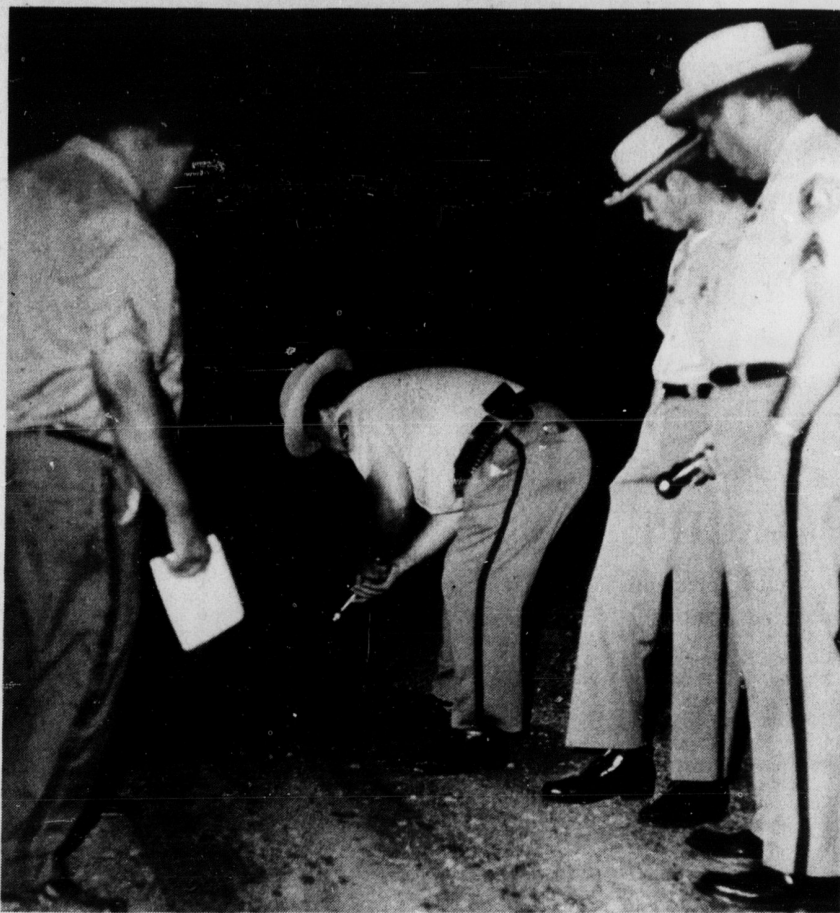

Edwards says.

Yearbook development, copy covers, layout and design, and photography are some of the topics of discussion. Guest speakers include Joan Fenton, art director of "Seventeen" magazine, and Roy Thompson, feature writer for the "Winston-Salem Journal."

Workshop sessions included a short lecture followed by discussions and student participation, and evening social events.

HOME A HOG PEN

Belmont, N.C.--Arriving home from his afternoon walk, Joel T. Holt, 60, found hogs roaming around in his house. The house was in shambles and one was sleeping peacefully in his bed. Police believe it was the work of pranksters.

A Pinkerton security guard (left) at the Pine Manor Apartments, and Cleveland County Sheriff's deputies follow the path of three suspects in the Friday morning armed robbery of the Royal Villa Motor Inn. Shortly after the incident the three suspects ran past and shoved the guard at the apartments which are located across the York Road from the motel at I-85. Looking for tracks at the site are deputies Cecil Murray, Terry Lanier, and Jim Norman. (Mirror Photo by Lem Lynch)

VD On Increase-Health Dept. Taking Steps To Curb It

The Cleveland County Health Department announced today that the high incidence of Venereal Disease continues. The two most common venereal diseases are Gonorrhea and Syphilis. They are transmitted from an infected person to other people by either sexual relations or close body contact. In July 52 people were treated for either active or suspected VD. This compares to approximately 15 people treated during the same period last year. In June more people with VD or suspected VD (55) were treated than in any recent year in Cleveland County. Looking back we see that 53 were treated in May, 19 in April, 36 in March, 51 in February and 43 in January. The majority of the patients are in the age group 15-24 years with over 50% of them being females.

The Cleveland County Health Department has diagnostic and treatment facilities open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. to anyone who suspects they have a venereal disease. If there are questions regarding Venereal Disease call 487-8511, and ask to speak with our VD representative.

In order to curb the increase in Venereal Disease the Cle-vland County Health Department has taken several steps. It has trained one member of the staff in contact interviewing and epidemiological follow up of contacts and is performing routine cultures on most of the female patients it examines. They are also encouraging private physicians in the community to be more aware of the current VD epidemic and follow their infected patients epidemiologically.

It is felt, after talking with several physicians in the county, that the number of cases of Venereal Diseases the health department sees only represents the tip of the iceberg. Although venereal diseases are reportable diseases to the Public Health authorities, a major part of it is never reported.

The North Carolina State Board of Health has just received one-half million dollars to assist its counties in the development of Gonorrhea screening programs. It is anticipated that within the next several months the local health department will be able to provide culture media to local physicians so that more routine screening can be done for Gonorrhea.

Three Permits Issued

Three permits were filed for last week as listed on the books in City Hall.

C.E. Watterson applied for a utility permit for a gas tap for his home on 1104 Linwood Road. Cost for the tap was listed at $35.

A permit to build a utility shed measuring 10' by 10' was filed by Harold Hunnicutt. The shed will be erected on the property at 510 North Piedmont Avenue at an estimated cost of $200.

Gus Peterson of 901 Second Street applied for a permit to pour a concrete driveway and carport area. The driveway will measure 14' by 60' and the carport will be 14' by 28'. Total cost of the operation will be $850.

KM Policeman To Resign

Richard Belt, motorcycle policeman for Kings Mountain is resigning from the force beginning Monday, August 21. Belt joined the department on July 25, 1971. He was recently wed to Diane Hawkins and the couple reside at 309 Scotland Drive here in Kings Mountain. Belt plans to go to work for Duke Power but states that he will remain in the Police Reserves.
