We all make fools of ourselves at some time or another and my time came up last Friday night.

It was a fairly normal Friday night that turned into an unusual Friday night when Ray and I got involved with taking some Shelby friends to the hospital emergency room after the wife had suffered a slight mishap. It was the emergency room at the Cleveland Memorial Hospital in Shelby which is situated on Grover Street.

By the time we were ready to leave, it was about 1 a.m. Saturday morning. Ray was acting as chauffeur to our friends and I was following in our car. Ray was driving back to our friends house by an unfamiliar route to me and I was concentrating on keeping his car in view. Of course it was very dark at that time of night and there was very little traffic on the roads.

Suddenly I was aware of a pall of smoke drifting across the highway and a glance to the right revealed a brick building set back off the street and flames were licking up the walls and smoke was pouring forth.

Five minutes of driving got us to our destination and once the invalid was safely at home, I asked if anyone else had spotted the fire but no one had.

Being unfamiliar with that section of Shelby during hours of darkness I hadn't the slightest idea of what the building was except that it was on the right handside of Grover Street driving in the direction of Lawdale.

I finally decided that I ought to report the fire and did so by telephone even though no one else could verify my fire.

We were about to drive home anyway so we retraced our route in order to check the fire situation and we were just in time to observe two fire trucks departing from the scene. As we slowly pulled up at the side of the road I saw again the flames and smoke and the truth finally dawned!

The brick building was the barbecue pit for Bridges barbecue and the fire was stoked up so well that the flames were extending around and above the metal furnace door and licking up the side of the building.

I had turned in a raise, though well-intentioned, fire alarm!

WEEKLY RECIPE

Sallie's Cheese Spread

by Mary Klepper

- 8 oz. cream cheese
- 3 or 4 tbsp. sour cream or mayonnaise
- 1 tsp. salt
- 1 tsp. prepared mustard
- 3 green onions
- 8 oz. sharp cheddar cheese

Soften cream cheese by allowing it to reach room temperature. Add 3 or 4 tablespoons of sour cream or mayonnaise, salt, prepared mustard and 3 green onions chopped finely. 1 tablespoon chopped onions may be used instead of green onions. Mix together well. Grate the cheddar cheese and add to mixture stirring well. Refrigerate until needed. The cheese spread is good on crackers or can be used as a sandwich filling.

This week's recipe was given to us by Mary Klepper. Mary says it's a recipe that her mother used to make so she has named it for her, Mary and her husband George moved to Kings Mountain a little over a year ago. George is employed by Faust Textiles and the Kleppers have one son, Stephen.
