LLOYD MORGAN

SHELBY—The President of Lions Club International, Lloyd Morgan of Paraparaumu, New Zealand, will address the 50th anniversary of the Shelby Lions Club Tuesday, Sept. 25.

He will be introduced by John L. Stickley of Charlotte, the past president of Lions International.

The 90 members of the Shelby Club invite Lions from neighboring areas to attend this banquet at 7:30 p.m. at the Charles I. Dover Campus Center at Gardner-Webb College in Boiling Springs.

Tickets are available for $8 from J. Lowery Austell at Shelby Savings & Loan.

The oldest Lions Club in Cleveland County, the Shelby club was formed in 1929 with 21 charter members, five of whom survive today and will be honored at the banquet. They are C.C. Horn, Charles I. Dover, Clyde Nolan, Robert L. Wilson and D. F. Moore.

International President Morgan, owner of a number of hotels in New Zealand, this year is travelling the world speaking to many of the 1,250,000 Lions who contribute to community efforts, particularly helping the blind.

"Our greatest asset," he says, "is our fellowship, because as this fellowship develops, our concern for the welfare of others will likewise expand. It is my sincere belief that the philosophy of Lionism will play a major role in the survival of mankind."
