growth of Grover," he said. McCarter added he'd like to see a new town facilities building (a committee is working on plans now), organize a youth council and continue the recreation program. "These are just a few," he said, "but I'm for anything for the betterment of Grover." The three commissioner candidates are newcomers to the political ring. Philbeck owns and operates Philbeck Shell Service in the heart of town. Before moving to Grover several years ago, he was plant manager of National Tube and Reel Co. of Shelby. Philbeck is married to the former Shirley Cash and has three children, Barry, Beth and Loretta Lynn. "I would like to see the town prosper," he said. "I feel like everybody wants to work on the sewage system. And I feel like Grover has room to grow.

"I think I can work with and for the people to make Grover a better place to live," he said.

Mrs. Pruette, a life-long resident of Grover, is married to Lee Pruette and has one daughter, Janet Davis, and two grandchildren. She is employed by Elizabeth Weaving Co. of Grover.

"I would like to serve all the people," she said. "I've lived here all my life and feel like I know the people real well, and they know me well."

Harry, also employed by Minette Mills, returned to his native Grover eight years ago after completing a 22-year tour of duty in the Air Force. He and his wife, Maria, have four children, Litza, Tina, Nancy and Kelli.

He lists as one of his main goals a good recreation program and recreation facilities.

"This part of Cleveland County doesn't have any type of recreation, and Grover has very little," he said. "With the gas crisis like it is, we need good recreation activities in our town."

"We're in desperate need of a park which would include a pool and play area," he said. "We need activities to serve the old and young alike."

Harry has served as chairman of the recreation committee for several years and has had a guiding hand in the little league and Babe Ruth baseball programs.

"I feel like I could better serve as a councilman than recreation director," he said. "We can get more done if we all work together. I plan on serving the people with the best interest of all," he said.

during the past three or four years, Mrs. Schultz recalled that only two or three were in trial work.

"I love courtroom work and law. Whether it's preparing a will or handling domestic, personal injury or criminal cases, I wouldn't trade for another occupation," exclaims the pretty brunette.

Already, Mrs. Schultz says she feels "right at home" in Kings Mountain.

Early Detection Of Cancer Saves Lives

Early detection of spokesman for the cancer saves lives, said Cleveland County Cancer Society before members of American Legion Auxiliary Unit 155 Thursday night.

The speakers were Kenneth Ledford, President of the Cleveland County Cancer Society, and Mrs. Gilda Cooper, member of the Executive Committee.

Encouraging more Kings Mountain citizen-involvement in cancer drives in the community, President Ledford said that Kings Mountain has not sponsored a drive in a number of years but that Jim Downey, well known businessman, has volunteered to head the 1980 campaign. Mrs. Downey arranged the program for Thursday's meeting.

Mrs. Jackie D. Barrett presided in the absence of President Clara Rhea.

Young people and elected officials in Cleveland County are expected to attend one of 17 Regional Governor's Youth Conferences to be held across the state during September and October. Others attending will include adults who work with youth groups and directors of agencies that provide services to youth, such as parks and recreation departments and schools.

The regional conferences are a follow-up to the Governor's Youth Conference held May 18-20, at Meredith College in Raleigh. Participants of the one-day regional meetings will set local priorities and plan strategies for implementing the policy recommendations made at the statewide conference. Developed by some 600 youth ages 14-19 and adults who work with youth, the recommendations deal with five areas: youth employment, adolescent sexuality, discrimination, recreation and community education.

"These regional meetings are important because they will involve local youth, youth workers and elected officials in helping to gear programs to local needs and problems," said Governor Jim Hunt.

The Region C conference for Cleveland, McDowell, Counties will be held on Community College in Polk and Rutherford Wed., Oct. 3, at Isothermal Spindale.
