

Gardner-Webb Defeats KM Team 112-93

Kings Mountain's all-stars grabbed an early lead but Gardner-Webb's run-and-gun Bulldogs came storming back to take a 112-93 victory in the charity basketball game Saturday night at the Kings Mountain Neighborhood Facilities Center.

Coach Jim Wiles' Bulldogs used a well-balanced scoring attack to fight off the local team, which included a number of former college players.

Willie McCray and Norris Bell led the Bulldogs with 18 points apiece and Eddie Wilkins scored 16. Robert McGuire added 12 and Frank Streater and Bill Mayler 10 apiece.

Charles Barnes, former Appalachian State guard, led the local team with 18 points. Timmy Adams and Chicken Burris, former Kings Mountain High players, added 15 and 11, respectively.

George Adams, former San Diego pro and organizer of the benefit game, fouled out in the first half after scoring only four points.

"We were well-pleased with the crowd, considering basketball is not in season and there were a number of high school football games being played because of Friday night rain outs," said Adams.

"And, it was a well-played ballgame," he went on. "The local all-stars gave the Bulldogs a good test. Most of the all-stars had never played together."
