Lift Truck Championship

KM Man To Compete

A Kings Mountain truck driver, Herman Wright, will be competing for the national lift truck driving championship in Decathlon 3 at the Rivergate Convention Center, New Orleans, LA, Nov. 15.

Wright, an employee of Lithium Corporation, Bessemer City, earned his way to the finals by winning the local decathlon sponsored by Industrial Truck Sales and Service, Charlotte, NC. He will be facing 35 other winners of local decathlons held in the United States and Canada for the $5,000 first prize and the championship trophy. Prizes and trophies also are awarded for second through fifth places.

The decathlon, sponsored by the Clark Equipment Company, Battle Creek, MI, and its participating dealers, consists of 10 events involving maneuvering lifting, traveling and stacking operations that simulate on-the-job conditions. Aisles, walls and obstacles are defined by pallets standing on end, or other markers, and points are deducted for striking or overturning pallets or markers.

Points also are deducted for violating established safety practices. Standard times are designated for each event and penalty points are deducted for failure to complete each event within the standard time.

The national competition consists of a preliminary qualifying course of 10 events with the top 10 operators advancing to the finals. The defending champion, William Mears, an employee of General Motors Assembly Division, Oakland, CA, did not qualify in this year's local Decathlon.

The purpose of the Clark Decathlon program is to promote safe, productive lift truck operating practices and to recognize the professional capabilities of lift truck operators who help keep America moving.
