

Warren Graduates

David Franklin Warren of Kings Mountain received a Civil Engineering degree during winter commencement exercises Thursday at Clemson University.

U.S. Senator Ernest F. Hollings told 605 graduates that the class of 1981 has "a higher idealism than those we graduated just a few years ago."

Hollings, who received an honorary doctor of laws degree, praised Clemson and schools for it for "ensuring that each student has a does of the fundamentals so as to learn how to analyze and evaluate and understand."

Also receiving an honorary degree was 98-year-old Wil Lou Gray, popularly known as "South Carolina's First Lady of Adult Education."
