

Joan Finger Participates In Presidential Classroom

Joan Lois Finger of Kings Mountain High School is participating this week in A Presidential Classroom for Young Americans in Washington, D.C. The Classroom will have 415 outstanding high school students from all 50 states plus schools overseas represented in the National Student Body.

Presidential Classroom is an educational program for juniors and seniors in high school which introduces student leaders to the people who make and influence the policies of the federal government. The Classroom presents an overview of "Power in Washington" through the students meeting with decision makers from the three branches of government, the diplomatic community, the news media, and the business and labor sectors.

This week, the students will meet with many policy makers, including Senator Strom Thurmond (South Carolina); Delegate

Walter Fauntroy (District of Columbia); Former Member of Congress Birch Bayh (Indiana); and General E.C. Meyer, Chief of Staff, United States Army. Students will also have appointments with their elected Members of Congress and attend committee hearings on Capitol Hill.

The Classroom was chartered in 1968 at the recommendation of President Lyndon B. Johnson. The program promotes citizen responsibility and civic awareness through a forum for independent thought. Since the program receives no government funding, students depend on raising their tuition from local civic groups and their schools. Students are selected by their schools to attend the Classroom.

In addition to the program for high school students, the Classroom offers a program for college students and professionals called The Federal Forum.
