PERVERT TO WAKE COURT

The child's mother was working at a rest home only 150 yards away at the time of the incident. The three younger children ran to tell her what had happened and she called the Wake Sheriff's Department.
After forcing the girl into the car, Betts is alleged to have driven to a wooded area, a short distance away, pulled the child out of the car and ordered her to take off her clothes.
"I told him I wasn't going to do it," the victim said, "because I knew then what he wanted to do with me. Then he took out a pistol and asked me if I wanted to die. I told him no and he told me again to take off my clothes. I was so scared I had to do what he told me."
Following the alleged vicious assault, Betts is said to have warned the child that her mother would beat her if she told, but she told him that she was going to tell it anyway.
Deputy Sheriff W. L. Pritchett had arrived on the scene by this time and was talking to the child's mother when he saw a car stop at the crossroads about 200 yards from the rest home and let the girl out.
The child said that she had spotted Pritchett's car and asked Betts to drive her a little closer to her home, which he did. This set him up for Pritchett and after a chase for several miles at 80 miles per hour, Pritchett and his fellow deputy, Corbin Holmes intercepted Betts after a roadblock had been set up at the intersection of the McCullers-Holly Springs Road.
Betts was sent to prison for a long term in 1951 for attempting to rape an 11-year-old white girl. The presiding judge at that time advised that Betts was a sex pervert and needed attention.
He was released in 1952, however, and his term of parole ended early this year.

300 Attend Congregational Church Meeting At Bennett

GREENSBORO — The campus of Bennett College which came alive with summer activity last week when some 300 members of the Congregational Christian Church held their sessions there, continued to buzz this week as 3 more groups opened their activities to govern themselves. Its citizens are taught to honor and revere the freedoms granted them by the Constitution of the United States of America and the democratic way of life.
Mrs. Foxx, the widow of a veteran, showed decided interest in the youth and it was for this reason that she was selected as the director of the Girls State group. American Jewish Congress Unit Urges Struck Hospitals To Recognize Union

New York's non-profit voluntary hospitals "cannot be ruled as a personal domain beyond the scrutiny of the citizens," the American Jewish Congress New York Metropolitan Council declared Tuesday, June 9.
In letters to Mayor Wagner and the presidents of seven struck hospitals, the AJCongress group said that "corrective action" was needed to end the series of walk-outs of hospital employees that began more than a month ago.
The letters, signed by Howard Squadron, chairman of the Commission on Law and Social Action of the local AJCongress unit, urged the hospitals to adopt employment practices assuring "fair wages, sound working conditions and the recognition of those representatives chosen by a majority of their employees."
Citing the "vast increase in public grants and subsidies" which all voluntary hospitals now receive, the American Jewish Congress letter said that the "major part of the funds administered by hospital boards comes from the taxpayers," with only a minor share from public fund-raising drives and from the members of hospital boards themselves.
"The community owes a debt of gratitude to those hospital trustees who, from a deep sense of social obligation, have given their time, skill and substance to the development and administration of hospital care for the sick of this city," the AJCongress letter said.
"But the community also owes a debt of gratitude and a full measure of concern to those men and women whose daily work, whether skilled or unskilled, provides essential—though often unrecognized—services to our hospitals."
The letter emphasized that these workers "cannot be required to subsidize our hospitals by receiving less than a fair and living wage."
"Charity based on such injustice ceases to be charity and becomes exploitation," the AJCongress unit said, adding:
"Many of the unskilled employees in our hospital are members of minority groups and therefore face discrimination in employment. This places an added responsibility on all employers not to take advantage of such discrimination by paying less than a fair wage and so further depressing the lot of these citizens."
The AJCongress letter also called on the union "to exercise that restraint called upon by reason of the emergency nature of hospital treatment."
Referring to the issue of union recognition, the AJCongress unit said that exemption of non-profit organizations from the legal obligation to recognize a union is chosen by workers "does not relieve our hospitals of a moral obligation to do so any more than legal exemption from the requirements of the wage-and-hour law relieves them of the obligation to pay fair and furnish decent working conditions."
The letter pointed out that two voluntary hospitals — Montefiore and Maimonides — and all the city-operated hospitals in New York have signed union contracts.
"It would be sad indeed if those entrusted with the honor of administering our hospitals had to be required by law to do those things which morality and decent respect for the dignity of all men require."

The Real "Tim Moore Story" To Be Released

NEW YORK — One of the most spectacularly successful television comedians of all time was also the least known. He was a jockey, a prize fighter and a gambler. He made several fortunes and died broke. His name was Harry R. Tim Moore and his story is exclusively revealed for the first time in the July issue of EBONY Magazine.
Who was Tim Moore, whose funeral last year was attended by 10,000 persons, including the greatest names in show business? The TV public knew him as the roguish Kingfish of the "Amos and Andy Show," the embodiment of the perennial fraternity of slicksters who maneuver their way through life by their wits. He was every honest man's nemesis, and the public laughed at his antics because they knew them so well.
He was a lot more too, according to EBONY. He did what no man before him had been able to do. Tim Moore made Negroes, long accustomed to hee-hawing in private about race comedy, laugh at themselves in public.
In an article called "Requiem for Kingfish," the magazine discloses that Moore was a buckdancing performer at 11, who picked up pennies outside ball parks. He was a traveling vaudeville star at 12, a seasoned medicine show con artist at 14, and a jockey at 15. When he was 17, Moore turned to the ring and, using the name Young Klondike, won 80 of 104 bouts. His victims included the Australian middle and light-heavyweight champions and the Scottish heavyweight title holder.
EBONY says that during the depression years of the 1930s, Moore earned up to $500 a week as the star comedian of the famous "Blackbirds Revue" which toured Europe and then became the fourth show in history to have over 500 performances on Broadway.
Moore came out of retirement to accept the TV role of the Kingfish. He was an instant success. But after his first wife died in 1956 he was never the same. Although he remarried, Moore hit the bottle and reportedly gambled heavily. He is said to have dropped $50,000 on the Sunset Strip in California. Almost overnight his once strong 190-pound fighter's body began to fade. Almost before anyone knew he was sick, Moore was at death's door.
His illness, at first thought to be diabetes, was diagnosed as advanced tuberculosis, according to EBONY. Upon his death, Moore's second wife revealed that their home was heavily mortgaged. Moreover Moore had borrowed so much on his life insurance that it amounted to only $388. Sammy Davis, Jr., passed the hat among his show business friends and with proper pomp and ceremony and a $1300 funeral befitting the Kingfish of the Mystic Knights of the Sea, Tim Moore was "put away nice."

Florists To Convene At Hampton

HAMPTON, Va. — The seventh annual convention of the International Florists Association, Inc., will convene at Hampton Institute, Va., July 12-15. As the date nears, members of the Virginia State Florists Association give plans finishing touches to make the convention interesting and worthwhile educationally.
Schools of designing have been planned for Monday and Tuesday. It will be carried out in departments to cover the entire field of floristry, according to W. O. Perry, Miami, president of the I. F. A., Inc. "Procedures for handling wire order work will also be given," he stated, "as this is one of the main reasons for the I. F. A."
Virginia State Florists are well organized with Mrs. Harriet Watkins, Gloucester, Va., as president. Mrs. Watkins and Mr. Perry extend welcome to florists to attend the convention.
J. Wesley Lee, 2117 Centre Avenue, Pittsburgh, Pa., is I. F. A. secretary. Mrs. Rosalind W. Talley, 2210 20th Avenue, Tampa, Florida, is I. F. A. director of publicity.

Char Church Bonus Money Rules
All purchase slips or receipts presented to your church must come from stores advertising in the CAROLINIAN.
Each week carries a date in the Bonus Money period. Purchases eligible must come from the store during the week the ad appears.
No purchase slips representing a business should be submitted. All receipts must come from individual purchases.
All churches in Raleigh and Wake County are eligible.
All purchase slips must bear the name of the store from which the purchase was made.
All purchase slips should be submitted in the name of the church; and should be in the office of the CAROLINIAN the Monday following close of Bonus period.
In order that smaller churches may have an equal opportunity to share in the Bonus Money the following regulation is expedient. No church of over 200 members will be awarded the Bonus Money consecutively. If a church of 200 or more members receive the Bonus Money after the first period it would have to wait until the third Bonus period to be presented its award again, except where a church has 200 or less members then it could win the Bonus award consecutively. However, this does not mean that second and third awards cannot be sought consecutively. Consequently every church group has the opportunity to secure an award every period.
No purchase of over $200 from any one merchant during a week can be counted.
There is a ceiling of $25 per person a week for grocery purchases.
In the event of the same amount of purchases by more than one entry, the award will be divided.
Weekly purchase totals should be shown on each packet and total placed on the outside of the envelope carrying the period's entry along with name and address.
Bonus money awards will be announced in the issue following the closing of each period.
