Governor Sets "First" By Hosting Sekou Toure

WASHINGTON, D. C.—President Sekou Toure of the New Republic of Guinea and his wife were welcomed in red carpet style here as they arrived for a 16-day state visit.

Met at the airport by Vice President and Mrs. Richard M. Nixon, the Toures were greeted at the White House by President and Mrs. Eisenhower.

Among the highlights in the Guinea President's visit is a bi-racial dinner in his honor to be held in Raleigh on Wednesday of this week. Gov. Luther Hodges will preside at the dinner, setting a record as the first North Carolina governor to play host to an interracial dinner.

John Morrow, United States Ambassador to Guinea and former language professor at North Carolina College, will guide President Toure on his North Carolina tour. Morrow was appointed President Eisenhower earlier this year for his diplomatic mission to the new African Republic.

President Toure's tour of the United States will include stops in Chicago, Los Angeles, Wheeling, W. Va., and several other cities in North Carolina. He will confer with Adlai Stevenson in Illinois on Friday.

College Students Barred Following Demonstrations

ALCORN, Miss.—More than 1,000 students at the Alcorn A&M College for Negroes stayed home from classes Monday on orders from the school.

The students were back at their homes in the second day of their "forced vacation" started when school officials ordered them off the campus Saturday night under a police escort.

The three-day holiday was ordered in the wake of student demonstrations Wednesday and Friday nights last week protesting a change in dating regulations and the expulsion of a student who was accused of coming back to campus drunk.

State College Board President E. J. Jobe said in Jackson he didn't anticipate "any drastic actions" against any of the students unless they resume the demonstrations which caused classes to be suspended from Saturday through Wednesday.

The entire student body left the campus in cars and special buses, the latter provided by the school. Thirty-five state highway patrolmen and county police escorted the students off the campus.

The student body cheered loudly Saturday when it was called into assembly and told classes would be suspended and they would be forced to return home for a "cooling off" period. School officials blame the demonstrations on only 5 per cent of the enrollment.

Slain Usher's Funeral Held; Accuse Mate

BY ALEXANDER BARNES

One might not ever know what went through the mind of Otis June Jeffries as he sat at the funeral of his wife in Maple Temple Christian Church, Wednesday afternoon as the Rev. M. P. Booker, pastor, intoned the last sad words about the life of one of his beloved workers, who came to her death as the result of a bullet fired from a gun alleged to have been held by both. Two children reportedly witnessed the fatal deed.

Whether Mr. Jeffries relived the 15 years the two had lived as man and wife, or whether

St. Aug. Senior Dies Suddenly

Death struck in Adkinson Hall on the St. Augustine College campus Monday night, when Walter Konan, 27-year-old senior, was the victim of an asthmatic condition which is said to have plagued him for some time.

He is said to have visited St. Agnes Hospital earlier in the evening and was believed to have been treated and was feeling much better.

The CAROLINIAN learned from a reliable source that he stopped by the dispensary and picked up the medicine prescribed for him and with fellow students went to the dormitory and is believed to have watched television after having returned to his room.

He suffered another attack and before he reached St. Agnes the second time he was dead. He was a native of Wallace, and according to the parents who visited Raleigh Tuesday morning, plans were not complete as to when the funeral would be held.

He was to have graduated from the college at the end of this semester and is said to have maintained a better than average record, while at the school. He was reported to be of mild manners, kindly disposition and well-liked by both faculty and students. He was to have been installed as a member of the Student Council on Tuesday.

Man Surrenders In Wake Slaying

Daniel Clerkley, 32, of Blakely's Crossroads, charged with the murder of David Lee Dowd Saturday night, is scheduled to receive a preliminary hearing in Fuquay Springs Recorder's Court this week. W. L. Pritchett, sheriff's deputy, said Tuesday.

Object of a wide search since the shooting, Clerkley surrendered on Monday.

The shooting took place at a night spot operated by Leo Giles and located near the Johnston County line, Pritchett said Clerkley sent word to the sheriff's department for someone to come and get him.

Clerkley reportedly stated that an argument started over a cigarette. He said Dowd had asked him for a cigarette and he refused. They apparently began fighting at this point.

A bullet is now lodged in the hip of Clerkley. He said he feared some of Dowd's friends would make an attempt on his

2 States Refuse Tutors' Journal

NEW YORK—A New York publishing firm said Monday that state eachers journals in Tennessee and Virginia had refused to accept advertisements for a book on integration.

Arthur Rosenthal, president of Basic Books, said the book, "The Integrated Classroom," was written by H. Harry Giles, professor of education at New York University.

He said advertisements for the book were refused by the Virginia Journal of Education and the Tennessee Teacher, although accepted by teaching journals in New York and Pennsylvania.

Rosenthal said that Frank E. Bass, editor of the Tennessee Teacher, replied when questioned.

"There is nothing objectionable about the advertisement. It is simply that the whole issue of integration is a touchy subject with us here. Use of the advertisement might cause repercussions."

He said editors of the Virginia Journal were not available for comment.

Rosenthal described Giles' book as a "scholarly and exciting examination of how the resources of the social sciences can be mobilized in integrating within the classroom children of various racial, religious and socio-economic groups."

Stabbing Of Truck Driver Means Life For Youth, 20

BIRMINGHAM, Ala.—Ernest Jones, 20, was sentenced to life imprisonment Friday for the fatal stabbing of a white Minneapolis, Minn., truck driver.

A circuit court jury, which began deliberations Thursday, recommended that Jones be neither paroled nor pardoned but Judge Alta King said the jury's recommendation would not be binding and, under state law, Jones would be eligible for parole in 10 years.

E. C. Watson had asked for the death penalty for Jones. "Where is America going when you let gangs roam the streets taking the life of a man who goes into their community, a stranger in town?" asked Watson. He added Hannaher would probably have not been killed had he been a Negro.

Defense Attorney Richard L. Jones contended Hannaher went into the Negro section deliberately to show contempt "for the people of the southland, for white folk here and their way of life."

"Not Guilty:" Graves

BURLINGTON—A 36-year-old man accused of raping a white grandmother pleaded innocent Thursday during arraignment in Alamance County Superior Court.

Jesse Graves, who had been held in Central Prison in Raleigh since his arrest in May, will be tried Monday. The jury will be chosen from a special venire of 100 Alamance County residents.

Graves is charged with raping Mrs. E. N. Starnes, 48, of Rt. 2, Burlington, in pre-dawn hours May 15. Mrs. Starnes, the mother of four and twice a grandmother, was alone at her house at the time.

Graves was arrested later that morning after bloodhounds followed a track leading in cross-country fashion around and through the city limits of Burlington. He was hustled out of the county following
