 session of the conference is expected to serve as a model for their local weekly ministry-development classes. "To maintain, he emphasized, that if Christ is worth believing, then surely he is worth imitating."
 He explained that the Watchtower Bible and Tract Society, sponsors of the program, have set the theme as "Do The Divine Will."
 The climax will be at 3:00 p.m. Sunday when J. A. Thompson, Jr., District Supervisor of New York delivers the lecture "When Is God's Will To Be Done On Earth?" All sessions are free and the public is cordially invited.

THE EMERGENCY CLUB MEETS
 RALEIGH—The Emergency Club of St. Paul AME Church had its regular monthly meeting with Mrs. Addie Logan of 114 E. Lenoir St. recently.

The meeting was opened with Mrs. Strickland leading devotional. The president presided over the business session at which the project for the year was discussed; remodeling and fixing chairs in the primary department of the church.

After other emergencies were attended to a very delightful menu was served by the hostess, the guest was Mrs. Colette Smith.

CROSBY PTA OBSERVES AMERICAN EDUCATION WEEK
 RALEIGH—The Crosby-Garfield School PTA met on Tuesday, November 10, in the school auditorium. At 7:30 p.m. the parents and friends of first grade pupils came to view evidences of progress in the first grade. The business session ensued at 8:00 p.m. This meeting marked the end of the membership drive. Mrs. M. E. Watson and her first grade class won the cup for having the most PTA members. The attendance banner was won by Mrs. M. T. Williams, grade 1; and Mrs. L. C. Gains, grade 4. The door prize for fathers was won by Mrs. Willie Jones.

Following the business session, the program committee presented a panel discussion in observance of American Education Week.

The speakers were presented by the chairman, Mrs. Lucille Shelton. Drawing from the theme of American Education Week, "Frase and Appraise Your Schools," the panelists spoke on the following subjects: Mrs. J. A. Forbes, The Child — What Does Education Mean to Him; Reverend L. S. Penn, The Parents—How Can They Work For Better Schools; Mrs. Rosalie Williams, What is a Teacher; and Attorney F. J. Carnage, School Board Members—Their Duties and Responsibilities.

Very timely, informative, and interesting discussions were rendered to a near capacity crowd by the well-informed panel. Following the panel discussion parents and friends of grades 2-6 were invited to inspect the work of pupils in those grades.

'PREPHOLE' KILLER, 15, ARRESTED

 asked to see his girl friends, Miss Lillie Mae Ingram.

It is said that Miss Leak became enraged as soon as she learned that Carter was on the premises and immediately ordered him to leave. It is further reported that she became so furious that even the restraint coming from other members of the household could not stay her fury, or quench her desire to shoot.

It is said that she got a 22 caliber rifle and pointed it through a whole in the door, pulled the trigger and Carter fell, mortally wounded.

It was then, according to officers, that she took leave of the place but like the ancient fable, she returned to the scene of the crime. Monday morning and was immediately arrested. She was given a hearing, due to her age, before Juvenile Judge B. F. McMillan.

Student Councils Meet In Gastonia December 10-11

 Most student council members usually experience success in the college and career world. An example of this will be seen in Thomas Rozzell, a former president of the North Carolina Association of Student Councils and a graduate of Fisk University, who will deliver the closing address.

Discussion groups, geared for practical use in the schools throughout North Carolina, will be led by competent student leaders from member schools. Faculty advisers will serve as consultants for the sixteen groups.

The lighter side will feature a convention social and a tour of the textile mills of the area. The convention is open to any public or private school who holds membership in the state association. Information on the convention may be secured from Mrs. Thelma T. Daley, executive secretary, North Carolina Association of Student Councils, J. W. Ligon High, Raleigh.

 wonderful records as members of the department and this small infraction would not necessarily work against their record.

He did say, however, that the sentence carried with it a warning not to repeat the offense and if they did it would result in severe disciplinary action and a possible dismissal from the force.

The two officers were said to have been reported by Lt. G. D. Pierce and Sgt. O. L. Wilkerson. Captain H. T. Bailey is said to have been the one to have called the incident to the attention of Chief Davis.

Officer Baker joined the force in 1942 and Officer Winters in 1943.

AMBASSADOR, SON ATTEND V.A. FUNERAL

 that Hearne will send his son back to Ireland.

The Rev. C. B. Nathan beckoned the ambassador to the altar after the 30-minute funeral service, Hearne said:

"I have come this afternoon to express to the family and friends of Mrs. Josie Hamlin our profound deepest sympathy and tell you how sorry my son is."

"We will do everything we possibly can to take care of damages," he assured them.
 Hearne, his son, and a UPI reporter were the only white persons in the church. However, a carload of deputies waited outside.

David avoided prosecution for Mrs. Hamlin's death last week by claiming diplomatic immunity. He reportedly had used the same method to avoid criminal or civil action in repeated brushes with the law in Washington. He was a student at the American University in Washington and hoped to continue his studies there.

MORE COURT SUITS SEEN ON VOTING

FIRE AT UMSTEAD'S TRANSFER — A small fire broke out at Umstead's Transfer and Grocery business, East Martin Street, last Saturday morning. Several fire engines and police officers were called to the scene to halt the crowd and direct traffic, while the fire was being subdued. Damage was confined to the small office of the transfer division, shown in above photo. (STAFF PHOTO BY CHAS. R. JONES).

groes to stop holding "for white only" primaries.

Twelve Negroes protested that they weren't permitted to vote in Fayette County in August, 1958, although they were registered.

The Negroes claimed they were disfranchised because election in the democratic primary was tantamount to election in the general election.

WE NEED TO UNDERSTAND EDITOR SAYS

 Raleigh News and Observer included the foregoing statement in his speech to the Southern Historical Assn. Thursday of last week.

"The Negroes have greater political power in America today than the Southern politicians," he told the Southern Historical Assn. At the same time, he added, "The South seems a region which becomes most arrogant as its impotence increases."

 She was buried amidst simple graveyard rites in Durham's Beechwood cemetery last Thursday, that lasted only thirty minutes. She had lived 79 years in religious comfort and happiness and through personal charm, love and kindness had radiated to those, who were fortunate to gain her company, the Christian doctrine of the universal church. "The fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man."
 She was the mother of six boys and one daughter: CAROLINIAN advertising representative and promotion executive Alexander Barnes, Frank, Eddie Maurice, Lenzie Green, Windley Elmore, Andrew Jackson Barnes and Mrs. Leona Barnes Hawkins.
 She was the grandmother of Lemuel Edward Speights, Paul Rodney Barnes, Vertina Joyce Hawkins Umstead, Linda Barnes, Brenda Barnes, Olga Barnes and Sharon Barnes, was the wife of Mr. E. D.  She was a monarch on the throne of righteousness to the young men that crossed her door-sill and a hostess with the grace of a palace princess.
 The boys never had to worry, once at home. Their friends were treated to the best in food and comfort and her country ham was a top dish special. Her pastries were the kind that come from an expert's oven and her vegetables held the hue of the garden in which they grew.
 She liked the small, young and middle-aged as well as the old and her blessings to all groups were a pleasure to give, even though the groups were viciously scorned by others.
