

Picketing Begins As Strike Spreads

43 Arrested In Raleigh; Students Picket Stores

By Staff Writer

The bid of students of Negro colleges, located in the south, together with those of some of the high schools, struck a new chord in Raleigh Tuesday of this week when pickets were thrown in front of the stores that have been affected by the so-called sit-down protest to gain first-class citizenship for members of the Negro race.

According to a survey made by the CAROLINIAN, a large number of well dressed students were seen marching in front of Woolworth's, McLellan's and Kress Stores.

Their vigilance also carried them to Eckerd's and Walgreen's Drugstores. This means that the students begin under the "shadow" of the capitol building at the extreme end of Fayetteville Street and continue for two blocks, through the main thoroughfare of the state capital.

The white posters, with red and blue letters, read: "You Just Can't Lump Justice," "O Southern Heart, Where Is Your Justice?" "Just A Cup of Coffee," "How Do We Get Invited to Lunch?" "Justice Where Art Thou Hiding?" and "Do We Eat Today?"

One poster asked: "Aren't You Ashamed of These: Kress, Walgreen's, Woolworth, ETC., Who Hate Justice?"

The pickets remained on the sidewalks, declining to enter the stores where seats to the counter stools have been removed or roped off or where "No Trespassing" and "Closed In The Interest of Public Safety" signs have been posted.

One free-lance colored photographer reported Tuesday being asked not to take photographs in a Fayetteville Street chain store. He said the manager informed him that the store didn't want "people with prejudiced minds taking pictures here."

Many persons feel that this action strikes at the core of the situation, due to the fact that most of the business done by the so-called dime stores come from Negroes. It was also learned that many white people have joined the fight and are in sympathy with the students. It could not be ascertained whether the picketing would spread to other North Carolina cities or not.

The militant Rev. Martin Luther King did not damage the fight when he spoke at White Rock Bap-

NAACP To Hear Rev. Cox

John Williams, Jr., president of the local chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, reported to the CAROLINIAN Tuesday that the Rev. B. Elton Cox, of High Point, will be the featured speaker when the organization holds its regular monthly meeting here Sunday.

Street Baptist church will play host to the meeting at 3 p. m. The Rev. Cox is pastor of High Point's Pilgrim Congregational Church. He led the students of his city in a lunch counter sit-down strike this week. The minister has spent 16 months in High Point, during which time he has become chairman of a registering and voting campaign, chairman of the NAACP branch in High Point, which has solicited 727 new members.

Both buses and libraries in High Point have been integrated since his arrival.

He is a graduate of Livingstone College, Hood Theological Seminary and Howard University. The Funeral services for William Earl Hunt, 57, of 115 N. State Street, were conducted from the First Baptist Church here Wednesday at 4 p. m. with the Rev. Charles W. Ward, pastor, officiating. He succumbed Saturday night at St. Agnes Hospital.

Mr. Hunt, who had served as an instructor in the Wake County schools for many years, was principal of the Holly

Set Fire To Relatives?

Six Die, Man Accused

Removed From Bed To Cell

MANNING, S. C. — A 51-year-old tenant farmer, still recovering from serious burns suffered when his home burned Jan. 24, was in the Clarendon County Jail Tuesday charged with murder by arson in the deaths of six others in the fire.

Lee Tindal was moved from a hospital to the jail Monday after Coroner Joe Thomas Bradburn released the results of a Feb. 5 inquest. Tindal had been in the hospital since the fire which took the lives of six, two of them Tindal's grandchildren.

Tindal's son, Kaiser Tindal, 27, and Sammy Coleman, 25, were still in the hospital but a spokesman said they were out of dan-

HONOR LINCOLN — Larry M. Solomon (left) makes his 17th annual pilgrimage from his Harlem home in New York City to Newark, N. J., Feb. 11th to place his customary floral pieces in the arms of the statue of Abraham Lincoln in front of the Essex County Courthouse. He was marking, a day in advance, the 151st anniversary of the birth of Lincoln, 16th president of the U. S., who is often called "The Great Emancipator." With Solomon is Roosevelt Brown, star tackle of the New York Giants, who came from his Teaneck, N. J., home to take part in the ceremony. (UPI PHOTO).

Citizens' Committee Reactivated In City

Spurred on by the gallant and unrelenting protest that Shaw University and St. Augustine's College students have made here during the past week against racial discrimination in public eating places, a group of outstanding civic-minded Negroes met at the Bloodworth

Dr. Hampton Dies, Mourned By Residents Of Greensboro

Dr. William Milford Hampton, 47, the first Negro to be elected to the city council in Greensboro and a city school board member up to the time of his death, died on Wednesday, February 10.

A memorial service, attended by 400 persons, including the Mayor and other city officials of Greensboro, was held amid sleet and snow at the St. Matthews Methodist Church on Saturday.

Mayor George Roach, referring to Dr. Hampton as "our beloved friend," urged that "we take a page from the life and good works of this man that we might better serve our God, our country, our profession."

Words of high commendation were also heard from city school board chairman Thornton Brooks who said Dr. Hampton had fought a good fight and had kept the faith.

Rev. G. M. Phelps, pastor of Union Memorial Methodist Church, gave the eulogy. Rev. J. E. Brower, St. Matthew's pastor, presided and also read the burial service, held in the church on account of the bad weather. His body was to have been buried later.

Dr. Hampton is survived by his wife, the former Miss Wilhelmina Ford; two children, Wilhelmina Delores and William, Jr.; his father; two brothers; and three sisters.

Southern Senators Vow Fight

WASHINGTON — The senate Monday began its election-year battle over civil rights.

Under an agreement reached last year, Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson (Tex.) was ready to start debate on the civil rights issue after the senate disposed of tobacco and water pollution bills. Little action on civil rights was expected in the opening day skirmish. Most observers felt it might take weeks to fight out the issue against a backdrop of presidential politics.

Because no civil rights bill is on the senate calendar, Johnson may call up a minor house-approved bill—possibly one commemorating the founding of Land Grant Colleges—as a vehicle to which civil rights proposals could be attached.

Battlelines for the hot, drawn-out fight were formed over the week-end. Southerners served notice they would fight the civil rights proposals

Powell Comments On 'Racism' In Gotham

NEW YORK—Rep. Adam Clayton Powell (D-N.Y.) said Sunday that New York is a "city of extreme racism."

The congressman and minister said "there is a planned, premeditated attack on the Negro and Puerto Rican people" in New York by high city officials and the press.

Powell told the assembled congregations of the First Hungarian Reformed Church and the Bal-Siem Temple that "the program of vilification against them continues."

Powell, minister of the Abyssinian Baptist Church, was introduced by high city officials and the press.
