Old Friends Of Archie Full Of Consternation

TOLEDO, Ohio (ANP)—Archie Moore's new book, "The Archie Moore Story," left some of his old friends in Toledo, which Archie once called his home, full of consternation.

Sid Goldberg, a former fight promoter, declared: "Archie Moore is an ingrate. And I will tell him that to his face if he promises not to hit me."

Goldberg recalled that Moore came to Toledo in the late 1940s as a hungry fighter. He was scorned by most of the leading fighters in the light heavy and heavy ranks because they considered him too good.

"As far as his future was concerned, it was all behind him," Goldberg said. "The top boys knew he was too tough. They'd take no part of him."

When Moore left Toledo, he was not only light heavyweight champion but had a crack at the heavyweight title coming up, Goldberg said.

Referring to the book, Goldberg asks: "But what's he say about Toledo—nothing. At least nothing pleasant. He makes a couple of snide remarks about guys who helped him, and a few nasty ones about Bob Reese."

Reese reportedly masterminded Moore into a fight with Rocky Marciano.

"He bankrolled the deal and handled Moore's affairs. Everybody pitched in. Letters sent out over the country. Sportswriters became very Moore-conscious. This guy was getting press notices like World War II. They couldn't ignore him."

Goldberg claimed that pressure had to be exerted on Moore to get him to pay some of the persons who had befriended him in his long, uphill pull to affluence.

Hart's Title Hopes Fizzle With Knockout

NEW YORK (ANP) The hopes of Garnet (Sugar) Hart of Philadelphia of scoring an upset victory over welterweight champion Benny (Kid) Paret and forcing a championship title match between them fizzled last week when Paret stopped him on a 6th round knockout in a slug-bout scheduled 10 round bout in Madison Square Garden here.

The two fighters had been matching punches head-to-head at close quarters when Paret, first Cuban to win the welterweight title since Kid Gaviland, suddenly stepped back and tagged Hart with a short, blistering right. Garnet sank to a sitting position, pushed himself up to one knee, but couldn't beat the count, which came at 2:36 of the round.

In outdueling Hart, Paret proved a clever battler, and a durable one. Not only did he stay on top of Garnet, and thus smothered his attack, but he shook off Hart's punches on the occasions he managed to connect. In addition, Paret forced the fight throughout.

Both fighters suffered injuries but until the knockout, neither seemed hurt nor in any danger. Hart suffered a slight cut over the eye in the fourth round, and Paret suffered a gash over his left eye in the fifth.

It was the first non-televised fight in Madison Square Garden in nine years. It drew the biggest crowd in sometime, with 4,428 rowdies paying a total of $10,244.

BEATING THE GUN

BY BILL BROWER FOR ANP

Last week was the 50th anniversary of one of the greatest heavyweight fights in history. On July 4, 1910, in hot, stuffy Reno, Nev., Jack Johnson laid to rest the first white supremacy egg when he scored a smashing victory over Jim Jeffries.

Johnson, acclaimed the greatest all-around heavyweight, had conquered Tommy Burns in 14 bloody rounds in Sydney, Australia, Dec. 26, 1908. Immediately, the clamor arose for a white hope.

It provoked Jack London, the novelist, who covered the bout for a New York newspaper, to write: "... but one thing remains. Jeffries must emerge from his alfalfa farm and remove that golden smile from Johnson's face. Jeff, it's up to you."

Jeffries, who had come into retirement in 1905, was in no hurry to try to wrest boxing's most cherished crown from the brow of the skillful Johnson.

But the demand for Jeffries grew louder and louder with the succession of Johnson's victories over Victor McLaglan, Philadelphia Jack O'Brien, T. J. Ross, and middleweight Stanley Ketchell. Jack ruled supreme.

Racism reached a fever pitch. The fact that Johnson took to himself an ofay wife also ranked deeply.

Finally, at the urging of friends, zealots and fans, Jeffries gave in and went into training for the "Battle of the Century."

Competition was keen among the promoters. They knew it would be a bonanza. Tex Rickard, with his jackpot offer of $101,000, held the winning hand. As Independence Day approached, thousands converged on Reno. Hotels, rooming houses and saloons overflowed.

The bout was scheduled for 45 rounds. It drew 15,760, who paid $270,775. No guns or knives were allowed in the arena, as feelings reached a boiling point. The weapons were checked at the gate and picked up afterward.

The battle was on, Johnson, the 32-year-old master boxer, weighed 208 and was in prime condition. Jeffries, blubbery, scaled 227. Nevertheless, he was installed as a 10-to-7 favorite.

After a wary first two rounds, Johnson threw caution to the winds in the third and opened up on Jeff, pummeling the challenger with both hands. In the 4th Johnson held his own in the infighting, although suffering a split lip.

The heat began to tell in the 5th Jeffries seemingly exhausted as Johnson craftily made him work. In the sixth, Johnson cut the blubbery Jeffries cheek, which

'Say Hey' Willie Is Star Of All-Star Game In NY

BY BILL BROWER

NEW YORK (ANP) — With Willie Mays clearly the standout, the National League all-stars edged closer to their American League counterparts in the annual all-star game. Only this year, as last, there were two star contests and the NL performers won them both.

Willie led the way. The brilliant San Francisco center fielder, demonstrating anew that he is the ball player of this era, collected six hits in 8 times to lead hit teammates to a 5-to-3 victory in Kansas City and to a 6-to-0 triumph in Yankee Stadium.

This was Mays' eighth appearance on the all-star squad and by far, his greatest exhibition. He was used in the unorthodox lead-off spot but that did not matter; he proved just as dangerous as when he is in his customary No. 3 slot.

At Kansas City, he picked the second ball pitched by Bill Monbouquette, the right-hander of the Boston Red Sox. It went far into the right field wall in left at Municipal Stadium for a triple. He later scored the first run.

In the second inning, the Wondrous One rifled a shot into left for a single. Two innings later, he doubled. He barely missed hitting for the cycle, something that never has been done in all-star competition, in the sixth, when his high drive to right was caught by the leaping Harvey Kuenn, the Cleveland outfielder at the 378-foot mark. Willie retired after that.

BLASTS FORD

In the second game, Mays stepped into the first delivery by Whitey Ford, of the New York Yankees, and lashed it for a single. The next time at bat, he parked one deep into the left field stands. Finally, he collected another single to wind up his offensive contributions.

This performance brought Willie's batting average in all-star games to 438 on 14 hits in 32 A-

Army ROTC Program To Be Changed

GREENSBORO — The Army ROTC program at A and T College and other colleges and universities will undergo extensive revitalization during the coming school year.

Major Lawrence D. Spencer, professor of military science at the college, said this week that beginning with the 1960-61 school year, advanced ROTC cadets will take about 20 percent of their military instruction in college taught subjects such as science, psychology, oral and written communications, and political institutions.

To permit this change, military subjects such as crew-served weapons instruction, will be taught during the six week summer camp period, normally between the junior and senior college years. It is expected that a two-year "phase in" period will be required before full implementation is effected.

The new program aims at stimulating increased intellectual attainment on the part of ROTC students, lessening the training load on students, particularly those pursuing technical degrees, and making the overall program more attractive.

The ROTC is the major source of officers for the U. S. Army. The present enrollment is over 155,000 cadets in some 248 colleges and universities.

Major League Picture At All-Star Break

CHICAGO (ANP) — With major league mid-season recess at hand, performance of our favorite players.

Some of these performances have been outstanding, some disappointing, some just above what was expected.

The leading major league hitter last week was Willie Mays, who was walloping the horsehide at a .366 clip. The sterling San Francisco Giants' center fielder had one of the hottest streaks of the season from June 25 to July 4. He raised his average from .325 to .371, sliding back in the next two games.

In 73 games, Willie had 64 runs batted in, 104 hits, 21 doubles, 18 home runs and 19 stolen bases. This is the kind of evidence to support the claim of Mays' supporters that he is without a peer.

Ernie Banks, the Chicago Cubs' shortstop, seems bent on reclaiming the National League home run championship and retaining his RBI title. Although his batting average was in the 270s, Banks had collected 74 RBIs and 25 home runs in 72 games.

NCC Track Coach Cuts Squad In Israel To Olympic Size

ATHENS, Greece — Israeli track coach Leroy T. Walker, here resting while preparing Israeli track team for the Olympic games, revealed that he has cut his squad from 32 to 15 men. Dr. Walker, who is professor of physical education at North Carolina College at Durham, arrived in Tel Aviv early in an interview here at Athens Olympic Palace. Walker said "we had an elimination meet to reduce the squad from 32 to 15 (Rome size). The boys broke everyone of their existing national track records from 200 meters to 5,000 meters, including the 400 meter relay."

Although he said he regarded the times as "respectable," he added, "we will ease off to one a day and work toward surviving the first rounds at the games, hoping to reduce the times more. The Field Events trials are next." Under Walker's tutelage the Israeli 200 meter time was clocked at 21.8. Other events and their times were: the 400, 45.9; the 800, 1:55.6; the 1500, 3:56; the 5,000, 14:56; and the relay, 43.3.
