43 Students In Project At Highlander

MONTEAGLE, Tenn. — Forty-three young white, Negro, American Indian, and Spanish American students have begun a six-week (July 6 - August 16) project at Highlander Folk School. In welcoming the students to Highlander, Myles Horton, director of the school, said "This new educational venture will help to prepare students to meet some of the problems of entering integrated colleges and high schools. As participants you will have valuable cultural and geographical experiences to exchange."

Several students attending from Tennessee, South Carolina, Texas, and Alabama are actively involved in the current sit-in movement. One was among the first to enter a previously all-white high school. Some have been recently arrested and jailed.

For many students, the Youth Project presents an initial opportunity to live in a fully-accepted equals in an inter-racial environment. Through day-al living, learning, and recreational experiences, each participant has maximum opportunity for creative development and expression.

Rev. Ewell J. Reagin of Cornell University, director of the project, is assisted by a staff of eleven teachers and group leaders. Morning sessions are devoted to classes in music, modern literature and steel drum playing, photography, writing, and art. Folk singing, individual instrument instruction, and modern dance are among special activities available during the afternoon program.

The school's 200 wooded acres and small lake provide a recreational center for canoeing, fishing, swimming, hiking, baseball, and volleyball. Members of the local community may participate in the recreational activities of the Youth Project. The students are scheduled to visit the Cherokee Indian Reservation in North Carolina, TVA dams, and Oak Ridge.

Youth Hold Yearly Meet At Greensboro

GREENSBORO — The annual Youth Assembly sponsored by the North Carolina Conference of the Methodist Church, closed its one-week session at Bennett College Saturday, with a total of 195 participants.

The Winston district led in registration with 37 persons, followed by the Western district, with 25. The Rev. Joseph B. Bethes of Elkin served as dean and Miss Beatrice Watts of Winston-Salem was registrar. Three courses for youth were offered—"Understanding and Using the Bible," "How Can I Know What is Right?" and "Social Concern." For adults, there was a course, "How Can Your Church Win and Hold Young People?"

About three-fourths of all workers on the nation's farms are family workers.

On all farms in the United States have risen by only 13 percent.

On January 1 of this year, Mississippi farmers had 2,565,000 head of cattle and calves, compared with an average of only 2,035,000 during the previous 10-year period. Hog numbers also are up, from 816,000 to 867,000 head.

During the same period, cotton acreage in the State declined from 2,202,000 acres to an estimated 1,644,000 for this year. The low point for the 10 years was 1,185,000 acres in 1953.

Farmers Up Numbers Of Beef Stock

Mississippi farmers are continuing to increase their beef cattle numbers sharply as a substitute for cotton acreage lost through the acreage allotment program.

A study made by the Mississippi Agricultural Experiment Station shows that farmers in that State have increased their beef cattle numbers by 23 percent on an average for the period 1949-53. During the same period cattle numbers

CAREER OPPORTUNITIES

Special Education

Exceptional children comprise the 10 to 12 per cent of our school population who require special services and procedures if they are to take their places in society. Their educational goals are the same as those for the typical child. But their educational programs must be adjusted to fit the restrictions imposed by their handicaps.

Teachers of all types are needed: teachers of mentally retarded children; teachers of gifted children; teachers of blind children; teachers of partially-seeing children; teachers of hard-of-hearing children; teachers of the emotional and socially maladjusted, and teachers of the orthopedically handicapped. These new areas offer wide opportunities in interest careers. Persons who are interested in taking such training should write such schools as: George Peabody College for Teachers, Nashville, Tenn.; Syracuse University, Syracuse, New York; Wayne University, Detroit, Mich.
