

State's Baptists Assume Shaw's Debts

School's Liabilities Now In Hands Of Convention

The General Baptist Convention of North Carolina, Inc., held a one-day session September 15, on the campus of Shaw University and voted unanimously to take over the University's capital indebtedness in the amount of $291,500.00. The meeting was attended by a large number of moderators, ministers and church leaders from all parts of the state.

Carnage, legal counselor for the convention, and Attorney J. Melville Broughton, Jr., legal counselor for the University. The action was the climax of a series of conferences which began during the summer between officials of the convention and the administration of the educational institution. Shaw's President, Dr. William ROCKY MOUNT — James E. Foster, 27-year-old resident of Route 1, Rocky Mount, was bound over to superior court in Nashville charged with the shotgun slaying of his wife, Mrs. Maude L. Foster, 26, at their home near the city, Sat. night according to Nash Co. Sheriff Glenn Womble.

Mrs. Foster was allegedly the victim of the full force of a blast from a 12-gauge shotgun wielded by her husband as she sat in their home. She died instantly when the charge of pellets struck her in the heart.

Womble said Foster admitted that he had considered killing his spouse for sometime because she

Kennedy's bid for the Presidency because he is a Catholic. (UPI TELEPHOTO).

Va. Case Adds More Defendants

RICHMOND, Va. — Federal District Judge Oren Lewis Monday granted a motion adding the State Board of Education, the State Dept. of Public Instruction and the Prince Edward County Board of Supervisors as defendants in a suit to force the county to re-open its integration-closed public schools.

The motion was made by attorneys for the NAACP when the suit was heard last July 29.

Lewis gave the new defendants 30 days in which to answer the suit in which the NAACP contends the county violated a federal court desegregation order by abandoning public education last fall and permitting a private foundation to set up schools for white students.

The county contends the court order does not require it to maintain a public school system. Negro attorneys charged at the hearing there was a conspiracy between the state, the county school board and the county supervisors to circumvent the order.

Prince Edward was among the UNITED NATIONS, New York City — Whatever Fidel Castro, Cuban dictator, and Nikita Khrushchev might have discussed in the Theresa Hotel Tuesday when they met did not have much to do with the admission of 14 more African nations to this world body, nor did it diminish the scorn for the two leaders, here in New York.

The fact that Castro had to seek out the Harlem hostelry is a good sign that he is in for rough treatment. The security of Castro, as he traverses famed Seventh Avenue, is more hazardous than it would have been nearer the seat of the UN meeting.

The estimated five thousand persons who watched Khrushchev emerge from the hotel after his conference with the Cuban Prime Minister were not all sympathizers of the two men.

There was much speculation about Castro's living at the Theresa. It is to be remembered that he had connections with a public relations firm here, in which Joe Louis was allegedly a partner.

Castro is reported to have laid

Judge Armond Scott Dies In Washington

WASHINGTON, D. C. — The story of how a native North Carolinian, driven from his home state due to bigotry and racial hate, overcame all obstacles and rose to be one of the most respected jurists in the country was told at St. Luke Episcopal Church here Wednesday, when Father Dillard H. Brown delivered the last rites for Judge Armond W. Scott.

The famed jurist succumbed to an extended illness at his home Saturday, bringing to an end a life typical of American adventure. He was born in Wilmington, N. C., about 85 years ago and afterwards worked around his father's business for a number of years, he entered the Middle University, Charlotte. After graduating from that school, he pursued a law course at Shaw University and finished the same.

He went back to Wilmington and opened a law office. It was in the days of heated racial strife and he soon found that his desire to be a man with all the attendant rights militated against him.

He finally shook the dust off his native town from his heels, after demonstrating that he would not tolerate the injustices heaped upon his people. It was said that this attitude generated the wrath of what was then called the "Red Shirts".

He opened an office here, but found the going tough for a young lawyer, his will and desire had been abated by his townspeople. He left and was employed at a hotel in Sar-

Southern States Reduce Crimes In 3 Categories

WASHINGTON — Two southern states—North Carolina and Georgia—were in the select group of eight which reduced their number of murders, rapes and robberies last year.

The FBI in its uniform crime report, said Vermont, Iowa, Kentucky, Arizona, Idaho and Hawaii were the other states which managed to cut the toll in all 3 major crime categories.

A third southern state—Louisiana—almost managed to join the group. The Bayou State reported fewer rapes and robberies in 1959 than 1958 but the exact same number of murders, 183.

Five southern states managed to reduce their toll of all crimes, ranging from murder to auto theft. They were Ga., N. C., La., Ark., and Va.

In five other southern states—S. C., Ala., Fla., Miss., and Tenn.—the toll increased.

Florida and Tennessee joined Georgia and North Carolina in holding down the number of murders but homicides increased in S. C., Va., Ala., Miss., and Ark.

Policemen Plead Guilty To Thefts

GREENSBORO — Two suspended police officers pleaded guilty and a third entered a plea of innocent Monday on charges of breaking and entering, larceny and receiving.

Le J. C. Troxler Jr., pleaded innocent to nine counts during arraignment before Judge A. Gwyn of Reidsville in Guilford County Superior Court. His trial began Monday afternoon.

Li. Harry W. Jones and Sgt. W. E. Warren pleaded guilty to four counts each. The three officers and Robert E. Jones, brother of the suspended lieutenant, were arrested last month in connection with store burglaries dating back to 1958.

District Solicitor Horace Kornegay decided to take the Troxler case first since he pleaded innocent, and selection of a jury got under way during the afternoon session. Robert Jones was not arraigned during the morning with Troxler, Warren and his brother.

The three officers were accused of taking radio and television sets, golf clubs, automobile accessories and other goods from stores. The arrests followed an undercover investigation by agents of the State Bureau of Investigation and local detectives.

WHY NOT IN RALEIGH?

News that a group of Stany County Negroes recently appeared before the Albemarle City Council with a request that Negroes be given equal job opportunities in all local office and governmental operations should be followed by such action here in Raleigh.

We have here in this city, the seats of three governments, state, county and city. All the major functions of the state of North Carolina, Wake County and of the city of Raleigh are centered here. Negroes constitute at least one fourth of Raleigh's and Wake County's population. They also make up a fourth of the population of the state. Negroes pay taxes to these governmental agencies in proportion to their numbers and in strictly equal proportions.

Parties Contest Voting

NEW YORK — About a dozen minor parties are contesting the Presidential campaign with Nixon and Kennedy on the ballots or with write-in campaigns in about half the 50 states.

Aside from the old pros of the third party game—the Prohibition, Socialist Labor and Socialist Workers parties—and New York's Liberal Party, which supports the democratic ticket, the biggest showing is expected from a handful of parties seeking a bargaining-power vote in at least 6 southern states.
