EDITOR'S NOTE: A headline appearing in last week's edition of THE CAROLINIAN erroneously stated that four new members had been added to the Board of Directors of the North Carolina Mutual Life Insurance Company. The headline should have read: Three new agency directors and an agency administrative assistant were promoted by the Board of Directors. The Board of Directors instead of the Board of Directors. THE CAROLINIAN regrets this error and is happy to make the necessary explanation and correction to the North Carolina Mutual Life Insurance Company and its readers.

DR. KING IS ACCUSED IN "SIT-OUT" cent) of the total Negro prison population of about 1,100 at Reidsville State prison he said.

 The hunger strike—which Forrester termed "a sit-out" as far as eating was concerned—was staged five days after King was released from the prison in Tazewell County. Forrester declined to attribute to King the "sit-out" directly to King or to a newspaper story quoting the integration leader regarding conditions he said he'd observed inside the huge prison.
 But the state prisons chief did note this sequence of events: King was released under bond on a Thursday afternoon, the newspaper story appeared on Friday and the strike began "the following Tuesday morning."
 "They all went to work as scheduled and on the night of the second day all came back into the building voluntarily and ate," Forrester said.
 King had been sentenced to four months at Reidsville on a violation of a suspended traffic sentence at ter his arrest in Atlanta sit-in demonstrations at lunch-counters. He was released under bond while appealing the sentence. On his return to Atlanta, King expressed concern about conditions at the prison and these were quoted in a story in The Atlanta Journal.

 From his observations, he said, it appeared that custodial officers regard inmates as "animals rather than as persons."

N. C. MASONS HEAR ADDRESS BY BISHOP

 who would not only live up to the tenets of the Order, but would fight until every elementary school in North Carolina had opened its doors to children of all races. To fight until every junior and senior high school of the state counted its students on merit and not according to their color. To fight until every college recognized the fact that all students who qualify for admission be permitted to drink from their spring of knowledge without regard to where they were born and the previous condition of their forebearers.
 The Zion churchman also called attention to the fact that North Carolina Masons should not rest until every Negro, who met the legal test required to be able to vote, was on the registration books. He told the audience that Masonry is too big for second class citizenship, too humane to tolerate segregation and too devoted to the principles of Christianity to countenance discrimination against anyone.

 condition at a hospital in Durham following the accident.
 Policeman D. M. Mitchell quoted a trainman, Jennings B. Zimmerman, of Roanoke, Va., as saying his double diesel engine, pulling several boxcars, was turning the curve at the crossing at a low rate of speed when the lights showed a man lying across the track. He said he applied his brakes immediately, but couldn't stop the train in time.

FREMONT MAN WOUNDS SELF
 FREMONT — A 48-year-old man was reported in a critical condition at the Wayne Memorial Hospital as the result of a self-inflicted shotgun wound over his heart last week.
 Wilder told officers that he shot himself because his girl friend "let me down."
 The officers said Wilder got the gun from the home of Wilder's uncle, Mack Wilder, while the family was asleep, then went to the home of another uncle, John Wilder, and called him to come out on the porch.

 When the uncle appeared, Wilder had the muzzle of the gun against his chest and pulled the trigger.

 O. W. Burwick, pastor of the Wilson Temple Methodist Church here. Presiding at the meeting was Campbell, who was formerly executive secretary.
 The Rev. M. F. Booker, pastor of the church, opened the session. Music was provided by the junior choir of the church.
 Campbell cited the fact that one year ago no one would have imagined the power of youth as he discussed the sit-in demonstrations. He thanked the members and friends of the NAACP for their support during the past year and urged the audience not to become complacent. Membership in the local chapter has grown from less than 100 to more than 1,000 during the past year. It is now the highest in Raleigh's history.
 The goal, as released by Campbell, is for 2,000 members in 1961. This number was set by the national office.
 "We must have new ideals, new aims," the president stated. "We must be able to compete with all people. You are responsible for being good followers for the work is up to you. Those who yell the loudest are doing the least," he said.
 During the meeting, churches, individuals and organizations were presented certificates of appreciation from the body.
 On February 12, the 52nd anniversary of the NAACP, special speakers are scheduled to appear in all Raleigh Negro churches in the city.

 McLamb, 42. She is now under a suspended prison sentence in the death of her first husband, Alton James Umphrey, in 1957.
 McLamb was shot in the left temple with a .22 caliber pistol at his home, 19 Railroad Street. The tragedy occurred about 6:15 p.m.
 Long Argument
 Detective Sgt. J. W. Boles said: "They'd been arguing for two days." Mrs. McLamb had been drinking, he reported.
 When officers T. T. Street and

B. H. Stephenson reached the scene of the slaying they found McLamb's body on the front porch and discovered that Mrs. Lula Mae Carter, 63, who lives next door at 17 Railroad Street, had been shot in the leg. She is Mrs. McLamb's mother.
 Less than two blocks away, McLamb's mother, Mrs. Sonora Williams McLamb, 45, of 1340 Branch Street, was struck by a car, driven by a Durham secretary, Miss Jacqueline Iris Mitchell, 32. The mother died about 10 p.m. at St. Agnes Hospital. Miss Mitchell was absolved of blame in the death Monday when a coroner's jury found no probable cause.
 Mrs. Ada McLamb was charged with murder by Sgt. Boles.
 A preliminary hearing is scheduled for City Court this week.

 Kennedy's announcement of Dawson's refusal to accept the job was interpreted here as meaning that he had recognized an obligation to the Negro voter by making the offer to Dawson and that his next choice for the post would not be a Negro.
 It was on the grounds that Dawson muffed an opportunity to elevate the status of the Negro in a federal government by declining the nomination that he was being criticized in many quarters this week.
 An NAACP official who didn't wish to be identified pointed out that by accepting the job, Dawson might have established a precedent that would have been followed by succeeding administrations.
 He also declared that Dawson also missed a greater opportunity

 God, The Everlasting Father, The Prince of Peace. (Isa. 9:6)
 As Christmas time we joyously turn our thoughts to the coming of the Christ. This coming, visionized by Isaiah by the prophetic message quoted above, not only symbolizes Christmas but it symbolizes the incomparable gift of God to all mankind.
 The real significance of Christmas cannot be realized until the true meaning of this glorious event is understood and accepted. This understanding and acceptance is the new spiritual birth, the birth of the Spirit of Christ in the human consciousness, the acceptance of God's great gift of salvation, freedom, peace and joy.
 Because of the great spiritual significance of Christmas, there is an increasing alarm over the abuse of the commercial exploitation of this holy event. The free will giving of gifts at Christmas time is not to be condemned. This type of giving can be an expression of grat-titude for the wonderful gift of God, it can express the joy and gladness the giver feels. However, the widespread custom of exchanging gifts, of giving for the sake of prestige or for carrying favors have no connection with the real concept of Christmas because they give no idea of Christ and without Christ there can be no Christmas.
