Tennessee Families Get Money

Last week, the Raleigh Citizens Association, on a resolution of C. C. Smith, Jr., agreed to send a donation of $50.00 to the victims of eviction in Tennessee's Fayette County.

These former Negro sharecroppers and tenant farmers who were forced off the white owned farms became many of them allegedly dared to assert their democratic right to vote in the Fayette County Democratic primary last year, are now living in squalor and dire need in tents provided by both Negro and white organizations.

In this crowded area, dubbed "Tent City," Tenn. are hundreds of men, women and children of all ages. The majority of them are middle aged and elderly adults whose only skill is farming. This occupational handicap makes it difficult for many of them to obtain employment in other fields. The Federal government has belatedly taken steps to halt the wholesale eviction of these people and the matter is now before the Federal Courts. In the meantime, aid in the form of money, food, clothing and other necessities are badly needed by the miserable inhabitants of "Tent City". Anyone desiring to contribute to this worthy

Jail Term Sought By Minister

FAYETTEVILLE—County Recorder's Court Judge Carter was asked by a minister for a jail term of 28 days last Friday, but refused to grant the sentence. The Rev. Emmanuel Gittin, found guilty of speeding 65 miles an hour in a 35-mile zone on Bragg Boulevard, made his strange request after State Highway Patrolman D. T. Averette testified that he clocked Rev. Gittin at 55. The Rev. Gittin, pastor of a white Bonnie Doone Church, said he was not speeding and that Averette arrested him because he had two Negro passengers in his car. Patrolman Averette flatly denied this statement. "I didn't even know there were Negroes in his car until he mentioned it," Averette testified. The minister attempted several times to inject statements alleging that the Patrol and the sheriff's department were "prejudiced" be-

Youths Acquitted In Assault Case

LILLINGTON—A Harnett Co. Superior Court jury acquitted two white youths accused of attempting to rape a 20-year-old Negro woman twenty minutes after they filed into the jury room, it was reported last week. Alvin Eldon Page and James (Jimmy) Hodges were the two youths set free. Miss Eunice Hines, the plaintiff, had been recalled to the stand by private prosecutor Arthur Lane a colored attorney of Fayetteville. Lane allowed her to undergo cross-examination by Billy Taylor, Dunn attorney, who represented the two defendants.

Taylor suggested that Miss Hines did not know anything about the two youths abducting her late at night from a Dunn street and carrying her to Horseshoe Bend. Miss Hines, half rising from the witness chair, cried "I do know. It was those two over there." That was the last appearance on the stand of the girl. The remainder of the trial was devoted to a defense effort to establish that Page and Hodges could not have been at Horseshoe Bend on the early morning of April 24. Besides the account of their activities offered by friends of Hod-

Better Job Opportunity Asked Here

The Raleigh Citizens Association, in its current drive to improve the economic status of this city's Negro population through more job opportunities, is currently negotiating to arrange for a meeting between officers of the Association and the Raleigh Chamber of Commerce.

The Chamber of Commerce is constantly working to attract more industry to the Raleigh area thereby creating more jobs and raising the area's economic level. It is the contention of the Raleigh Citizens Association that nothing is gained by raising only one side of this level because the resulting drain on the economy of the community when one third of its population is not gainfully employed, destroys any gain that otherwise might have been achieved. The importance of trying to keep
