Easter Pickets Irk Cops

JACKSON, Miss. (ANP) - Milltant Negro college students demanding their rights as citizens opened a new front in the sit-in war last week by staging a demonstration in a public library here.

Their peaceful action was in sharp contrast to the riotous demonstrations staged by white students in Florida demanding that they be permitted to guzzle beer and pet on the beaches all night long.

The efforts by the youths to use Library facilities was the first such move by a Negro group on public facilities, with the exception of attempts by two to enter white colleges and efforts last year to use School Division in the state. public beaches at Gulfport and Bi-

Police fired tear gas bombs and wielded clubs to break up a march by 50 students toward the city jail president of the student council. to protest the arrests of the state's first sit-in demonstrators.

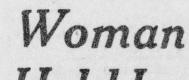

No one was seriously injured although several students reported being struck by police clubs.

The melee occurred when the students had marched 10 blocks from the Jackson State College campus and found their path blocked by police patrol cars and 30 policemen, deputy sheriffs and constables.

The students, seeking to demonstrate in front of the jail, ignored police orders to disband. Police then began swinging clubs to disperse the group. Several tear gas bombs were fired and the students scattered.

The nine arrested were released seats on the City Council to 29 from jail under $1,000 bond each.

VOL. 20, NO. 26

Complaints were aimed Tuesday against a memorial in front of the Wake County Ccourthouse which has water fountains labeled "white" and "colored"

These fountains and signs designating rest rooms for whites and Negroes were described as a "defacement of public property" and "an affront to Wake County's citizeus.'

The protests were made by a roup of Negro citizens appearing before the Wake County Board of Commissioners.

Opposition was also expressed by the delegation to "unfair" and "discriminatory" employment prac-tices at the new Wake Memorial Hospital and the fact that there is
