INTEGRATION PROCEEDING PEACEFULLY
DALLAS, Tex.—Some 8 Negro children entered classes in eight previously all-white schools here Wednesday and drew little attention.
Galveston, 295 miles south of here, also integrated kindergarten and the first grade without incident. Thirty-seven Negroes began classes in three previously all-white schools.
NEW ORLEANS, La.—Twelve Negro children—eight more than last year—walked into classes in six local public schools on Thursday. Behind barricades, 360 policemen stood guard, but there wasn't a catcall or a boo.
Desegregation spread to seven Richmond, Va. communities while integration of four Atlanta, Ga., high schools, started last week, continued calmly.
In Washington, the House voted to extend for two years special aid programs benefiting school districts congested by federal activity and strengthening U. S. scientific education.

dicted on charges of kidnaping during racial disturbances in Monroe August 27.
J. Edgar Hoover, FBI director, reported that Williams has threatened violence and is believed to possess a large number of firearms. He reportedly fled from Monroe in an automobile with New York license tags during the night of the kidnaping and is still the object of a wide search in North Carolina.
Williams first gained recognition as president of the Monroe NAACP chapter and came into further prominence during the famed "kissing case," involving two Negro boys and a white girl.
The white couple was released unharmed after being tied up and threatened with death.

from that union there were two children, a son who died, and a daughter who presently lives in Cleveland, Ohio.
After a stint of teaching adult education in Chicago and another as a social worker, the Rev. Mr. DeBerry established a real estate and insurance business which now employs four persons. He also is manager of an eighty-story apartment hotel.
While here he is the house guest of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Hayward, of 518 S. Sanders St.
As he made a brief tour of The Carolinian plant, the Rev. Mr. DeBerry was heard to say: "They didn't have businesses such as this when I came to Raleigh. More of our people have come out of the kitchen and gone into business for themselves. This is the key to our economic salvation."

man of deputy sheriff in state. Among the specific findings of the report are the following:
At the state level neither of the state-wide law enforcement agencies, the State Highway Patrol and the State Bureau of Investigation has any Negroes among its personnel. The reason given by the Highway Patrol for non-employment of Negroes is that four reported applicants failed their examinations. The Bureau of Investigation ascribed non-employment of Negroes to lack of qualification. No indication was given of how many, if any, applications had been made.
Three counties now employ a total of seven Negro deputies. Twenty-eight cities and towns now employ 135 uniformed policemen and policewomen and four detectives.
Among the law enforcement agencies, the report found:
The state attorney general has 24 attorneys on his staff, none of which are Negroes. There are no Negroes employed by the state or counties in any of the solicitor districts. The reason given was that "none had applied."
No Negro has been elected a Superior Court solicitor in North Carolina during this century and there appears to be no chance at the present time for such an election.
No Negroes were reported serving as solicitors in any of the county recorder's courts nor were any reported serving as solicitors at the level of city recorder's courts. No

NEGRO ASSISTANTS OR CLERICAL HELP ARE EMPLOYED
There are no Negro judges or magistrates at any level in the North Carolina judicial system. There were some magistrates and clerks, or justices of the peace prior to 1900. The only non-white judge serving anywhere in the state is a Lumbee Indian at Pembroke who is judge of Maxton Recorders Court in Robeson County. This is an elective office.
Outside of Charlotte, Durham, Greensboro, Raleigh and Winston-Salem, there are only 23 Negro attorneys practicing in the remaining 85 counties of the state. Although Negroes make up about one-fourth of the population, less than two per cent of the practicing attorneys are Negroes.
The State Prison Department regularly employs more than 2,000 persons, of whom 12 are Negroes. Of 80 prison camps reporting, 73 did not employ Negroes and in 54 instances, they gave the identical answer that "they are not considered competent."

Between 1901 and 1947, no Negroes were elected to any city council. Since 1947, a Negro in each of the following cities has been successful in winning a city council seat: Winston-Salem, Fayetteville, Greensboro, Wilson, Chapel Hill, Gastonia, Durham, Southern Pines, Lumberton and Raleigh.
We are aware of the shameful fact that today's virtue, uprightness and goodness are considered old-fashioned and out of date.
We know that immorality and drunkenness are now considered smart, but we are also aware of the dreadful toll which this moral breakdown is now exacting. We believe it is time for this breakdown to be seriously considered. Let's us begin to ask for quality teachers for our children. Let us demand that morality and a high sense of spiritual values be included in the requirements a teacher must successfully meet before given employment. And a constant watch should be kept to see that those who are already drawing pay as teachers are morally qualified to teach. When this is done, we will be well on the road which leads to quality education.

ODD-ENDS

evade it and is forced at least to comply with it.
It is an everlasting shame that in the world's greatest democracy one group of its citizens is compelled to resort to legal force in order to gain even a semblance of their rights. However, when one knows what he must do in order to protect and advance himself and then fails to do that which is necessary, he must blame himself for his failure to go forward.
The job situation as it affects Negroes in this state is actually acute. As a matter of fact, Negroes here are actually losing ground. Any Negro over 40 years of age can remember when many of the jobs, occupations and services now almost completely in the hands of white workers, were handled almost exclusively by Negroes. This employment retrogression applies to both Negro men and women. It has not only seriously handicapped the Negroes in this state, but it is also the cornerstone of this state's economic backwardness.
The continuing employment squeeze has now almost stampeded Negroes into action against it. They are now, with increasing regularity appearing before governmental agencies, officials and even the governor, literally begging for more work opportunities.
Their appeals have so far met with little if any success. The governor has expressed an understanding of the situation, has even appeared to be sympathetic but, as yet, has not seen fit to use his high office in an attempt to remedy it. Perhaps the heights of incongruity were reached recently when a delegation of Raleigh citizens seeking employment relief from the city council, was told by the council that so far as it knows, the city of Raleigh did not practice racial discrimination.
Although the pleas of Negroes for governmental relief in the area of job procurement has so far fallen on deaf ears, it is more than likely that these pleas will be intensified in the future. Negroes rightly feel that it would be similar to putting the cart before the horse for them to concentrate their efforts for more job opportunities upon private industry while they are denied the privilege to work only in menial capacities for the governing bodies their taxes help to support.
It would appear however that there is an area of job opportunities where they have not applied themselves as effectively as we might. There are over 250 federal contractors within this state. These contractors are both large and small. They supply manufactured items and services to the various federal and governmental departments. Together, these contractors employ several thousand workers.
The federal government has established a policy that prohibits racial job discrimination by any racial job firm, industry or business company, holding a federal government contract. Evidence that this anti-racial discrimination policy is not just a matter of words was proven not so long ago in several southern states.
Here again however, we must even in this area of potential job opportunities face the fact that regardless of what the law says, in order to reap the benefits the law provides, we must fight for them. Since this is true, a relentless campaign should be waged by us to secure jobs in all categories wherever work for the federal government is being performed.
The N. C. Civil Rights Commission has the names of all the firms holding federal government contracts. The Commission will supply these names upon request. We owe it to ourselves, our state and to our nation to seek and find all the gainful employment available regardless of the costs just as long as these costs be honorable and legal.

QUALITY EDUCATION—ANOTHER LOOK
A school may occupy a super modern building, have all the modern and up-to-date equipment possible to obtain, it may have ample play and recreational facilities, a well stocked library an up-to-date cafeteria and all the physical appointments today's educational requirements demand. The possession of all of these things will not insure quality education in that school.
Up-to-date school buildings, etc. are nice, even useful. If however, we are to have quality education in North Carolina, we must begin with quality teachers. They are the very foundation upon which quality education must be built.
Scholastic attainments, multiple degrees and intensified literary pursuits granted and carried on by our teachers are all well and good, they are useful and needed. But, like the finely equipped school building, teachers who only have MORE scholastic equipment to offer will fail far short in helping to produce the quality education this state has set as its goal.
If our children are to receive the best possible education, the teachers of these children should be selected with as much emphasis placed upon their moral and spiritual development and growth as upon their literary attainments. Parents should seek to learn the types of persons they are entrusting their children to. They should want to know something of the character and deportment of the persons who will act as guides and instructors of the unfolding minds of our youngsters.
Teachers who are immoral, debauched, sex maniacs and homosexuals, teachers who make a mockery of chastity, virtue and uprightness should not be allowed to continue in the teaching profession regardless of their professional attainment. The coarseness and looseness embedded in the character of such persons will invariably be reflected by the children these unfit persons attempt to teach.
We are aware of the shameful fact that today's virtue, uprightness and goodness are considered old-fashioned and out of date.
We know that immorality and drunkenness are now considered smart, but we are also aware of the dreadful toll which this moral breakdown is now exacting. We believe it is time for this breakdown to be seriously considered. Let's us begin to ask for quality teachers for our children. Let us demand that morality and a high sense of spiritual values be included in the requirements a teacher must successfully meet before given employment. And a constant watch should be kept to see that those who are already drawing pay as teachers are morally qualified to teach. When this is done, we will be well on the road which leads to quality education.

man Glenn Russell stopped a car on Woodland Drive in Garner for having improper equipment last week. It turned out that the equipment on the car was highly improper. The car had no tail lights and it also contained a complete still.
Arrested and charged with illegal possession of distillery equipment were Raeford B. Williams, 27, and Harvey Hinnant, both of Raleigh.
The still was small, about 35 to 40-gallon capacity, Russell said.

ORIENTATION UNDERWAY AT FAYETTEVILLE
FAYETTEVILLE — A six-day round of activities calculated to assist freshmen and transfer students at the Fayetteville State Teachers College in becoming acquainted with their new surroundings began on Tuesday, September 12 and extended through Monday, September 17. This year's number, well in excess of last year's total represents one of the largest groups of newcomers in the school's history.
While a preponderance of the new students come from North Carolina, the records indicate that a goodly number of them come primarily from ten other states along the Atlantic coast.
The Freshmen Week program provided tests, lectures, tours, registration, health examinations, stunts and games, social affairs, a vesper program and a reception at the home of President and Mrs. Rudolph Jones.
George Wilson, President of the Student Council, spoke at the Thursday evening program on the place of initiative in the acquisition of a college education and Dr. Rudolph Jones, President of
