Hits Grocery Chain

NAACP Cites Winn-Dixie As Target

GOLDSBORO—A statewide "selective buying campaign" against the Winn-Dixie grocery chain was voted by delegates attending the 18th annual state convention of the NAACP here last week.

The resolution, passed on Saturday, declared that the NAACP "shall continue until Winn-Dixie officials reveal plans for desegregation of their stores to the satisfaction of NAACP officers in North Carolina."

The resolution, passed on Saturday, declared that the NAACP "shall continue until Winn-Dixie officials reveal plans for desegregation of their stores to the satisfaction of NAACP officers in North Carolina."

The resolution described Winn-Dixie as "one of the most segregated chain stores in the South. It said that store officials in Jacksonville, Fla. refused to speak to North Carolina NAACP officials and that Winn-Dixie officials in Raleigh "have refused to give any evidence of any plans they may have to desegregate their stores."

It was pointed out further that selective buying campaigns have proven successful in Durham and other North Carolina cities. Other resolutions adopted by the delegates attacked "token desegregation" of schools and called upon the U. S. Department of Defense, the governor and the adjutant general "to open up the National Guard units to all qualified citizens without regard to race, religion or national origin."

Kelly M. Alexander, who was re-elected state president for the twelfth time, lauded the efforts of the faithful NAACP leaders over Tarheelia who have refused to be intimidated but have kept up the fight for full freedom.

Alexander said that it was unfortunate that many white people have known only Negroes with little education and who do only menial tasks. He called upon Negroes to increase their voting strength and to support candidates for public office "who will stand up for equality."

Full-Scale Attack On Bias Asked

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The Civil Rights Commission has been called on for a full-scale attack by the federal government on racial discrimination that keeps the Negro trapped in unskilled, low paying jobs.

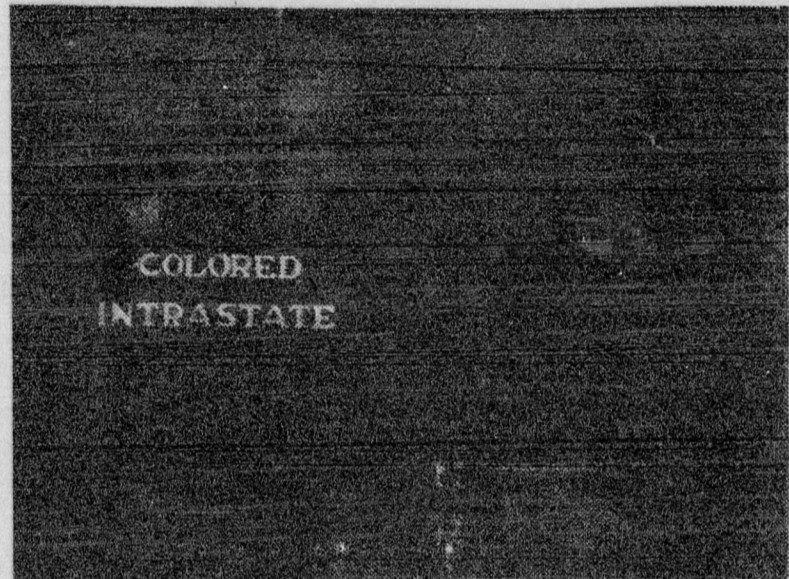

It urged the government, by use of its federal authority and in its role as the nation's largest employer to help Negroes break down and get away from the "vicious circle of discrimination in employment opportunities.

Lack of opportunity over a long period of years has kept the Negro in a state of economic dependence on the white man.

'We Haven't Much Time,' Mrs. Hurley Tells NAACP

BY J. B. HARREN
GOLDSBORO—Time is running out on us and America hasn't much time left to set her house in order in the matter of creating a climate of treating all men as brothers in according to all the same privileges, opportunities and obligations of citizenship in the acquiring of education, employment, housing and recreational enjoyment. So spoke Mrs. Ruby Hurley, Southeast NAACP Regional Secretary to the N. C. NAACP Conference in the keynote address Friday night.

Displaying her usual Methodist preacher form of delivery, (her father was a minister), Mrs. Hurley covered the whole march of the freedom fight in which she related the existence of integration of the races by birth hundreds of years prior to the recent school integration effort.

Mrs. Hurley warned that America could best use all of her people in the titanic struggle for freedom.

Smith-Union Riot Causes Suspensions

BY JOHN A. HOLLEY
HAMPTON, Va. (CIAA News Service)—After a thorough investigation of the near-riot at Charlotte, N. C. on September 30 between the football teams from Johnson C. Smith and Virginia Union University, stiff penalties were invoked here by the CIAA Commissioner, Harry R. Jefferson, against the two schools, coaches, and the officials of the game.

The game, marred throughout with temper flares and fist flying, was culminated with the benches of both teams pouring on the field with more than two minutes to play in a free-for-all. Shortly afterward, Union's coach, Tom Harris, withdrew his team from the contest and refused to finish playing the game.

The penalties inflicted as a result of the ruckus were the first of its kind in recent years, and the first action of Commissioner Jefferson in his effort to bring an end to the flurry of fights in CIAA games this season.

The Commissioner ruled that "the CIAA by-laws should apply in the case of Virginia Union because Coach Harris withdrew his team from the contest before the game had been completed." As a result of this, Virginia Union is ordered to return the guarantee to Johnson C. Smith by November 1st, Jefferson stated.

Coaches On Probation
Both coaches, Harris and Eddie McGirt of Smith, have been censured and placed on probation for the balance of the football season by the Commissioner.

"Lack of control over their players was the charge placed against the two coaches who failed to restrain their players from rushing on the field to stage the fight," Jefferson said in further explaining the penalties.

As a result of the incomplete contest, the Commissioner announced that the score of the game would be: Johnson C. Smith 1, Virginia Union 0.

On the basis of a lack of control over the teams on the field, failure to keep the required records of players dismissed from the game and failure to record the game as officially a forfeit, with the score being 1-0 in favor of Smith, were the reasons given by the Commissioner for suspension of the four officials involved in action taken at the newly-established CIAA office.

Assassination Of African Prince Unsolved Mystery

USUMBURA, Ruanda-Urundi—A single shot fired by a gunman lurking in the bushes killed 32-year-old Prince Louis Rwagasore, first premier of Urundi, as he dined with friends on the terrace of a lakeside restaurant, here Friday night.

The assassination is expected to provoke serious political difficulties in the Urundi half of this Belgian-administered trust territory. Both Ruanda, the other half, and Urundi, are expected to get their independence and end their separate ways at the end of next year unless the UN General Assembly decides otherwise.

No motive was advanced for the killing, but such actions in this part of Africa are often blamed upon tribal rivalries. Judicial authorities offered a reward for information leading to the arrest of the assassin or others responsible.

Rwagasore was the son of Mwami (King) Mwambusta IV, whose prestige was believed responsible for the victory of the Uprona party led by the prince in general elections last month. After the selection, the prince was chosen as Urundi's first premier.

Rwagasore was sitting with friends and cabinet members at a lakeside restaurant when the single shot rang out from bushes about 60 feet away.

The prince fell over with a wound in his throat and died at

Kennedy's Aide Is NCC Orator

DURHAM—Arthur M. Schlesinger, Jr., special assistant to President John F. Kennedy, said here Friday night that the increasing cooperation between the races in the South today gives far greater hope than ever before that Americans, both in the North and South have proved that they can work together in bringing about the premises of the Declaration of Independence.

He was the banquet speaker for the 46th annual meeting of the Association for the Study of Negro Life and History at North Carolina College.

He said the South of today is "a far more open society" than it was in 1861—in that it allows ideas to circulate.

Schlesinger described the NAACP, the Freedom Riders and Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr.'s affirmation of the integrity of human rights to be achieved by steady devotion as an important contribution to the advancement of freedom in America.

"O how love I Thou law."
MORE AND MORE ATTENTION!
More and more attention is now rightfully being given the serious economic plight of the American Negro caused primarily by him being denied his right to qualify for gainful employment, and also the refusal of both government and industry to employ Negroes other than in menial capacities even when they are qualified for better positions.

Last week, the Federal Civil Rights Commission issued a challenging and thought-provoking statement about this serious matter. This statement not only pointed up the glaring lack of training and employment opportunities allowed American Negroes, it also called attention to the deep psychological effect these deprivations have had on the Negro worker.
