3 Sentenced In Auditorium Trials Here

Prison Terms Meted Out By Judge

Another chapter was written in the Memorial Auditorium mele, where local policemen and some dancers had a demonstration, which now seems to have been over emphasized, inflated and according to testimony offered to City Court Judge Pretlow Winborne when three of the alleged offenders were tried Tuesday evening.

The trial went well into the night and ended with Judge Winborne delivering a caustic rebuke to James Howard. The rebuke came to Howard due to the fact that he was said to have been dressed like a girl and this caused the officers to be more lenient with him and the testimony tended to show that he was perhaps the motivating spirit in the entire misunderstanding.

Judge Winborne began by saying that there are certain things going on in Raleigh that people should face up to. "I think any person who wears clothing uncommon to his or her sex should not be admitted into public places. I think a law should be passed to bar them from public gatherings," said the jurist.

He admonished Howard to find out what he is and act accordingly. He warned him that if he did not find out something is going to hap-

Finley Will Address NC Councils

One of the main features of the North Carolina Association of Student Councils State Convention to be held December 6, 7, 8 at Darden High, Wilson, will be the Problem Clinic. Serving as consultant for the clinic will be Otis E. Finley, Jr., Associate Director, National Urban League, New York City.

Mr. Finley has served as Guidance Information Specialist, and National Field Secretary, as well as, Industrial Relations Secretary in the League's affiliate in Boston, Mass. Later he assisted in a program for the development and motivation of Negro and other minority group children. The consultant has served as military aide to former Governor Christian L. Herndon of Massachusetts and has represented the chief executive on numerous diplomatic occasions.

The clinic will feature the film, "A Morning for Jimmy" and will offer information to broaden the horizons of our youth—who will be future members of the labor force.

The state student council conference will convene on Wednesday evening with an address by George

CIAA Rules Bar Eagles From Money

DURHAM—The Eagles of North Carolina College, who are reported to have been sent a feeler to play in the annual Orange Blossom Classic, Miami, Fla., December 9, according to information received from athletic officials, will not make the trip.

The failure is said to be due to the fact that the CIAA has a ruling that a member-team must get 33 1/3 percent of the net profit derived from the game. The Eagles are said to have been offered the sum of $15,000 to play the famed Florida A&M, and even though in many of its games this year less than $1,000 was realized they could not entertain the idea of making the trip, due to CIAA policy.

DUKE PSYCHOLOGIST REVEALS

DURHAM—The widely held belief that the lower class Negro is a symbol of sexual potency is erroneous, Dr. Bingham Dal, Professor of Psychology and Medical Psychology at Duke University, has disclosed in a book just published by the University of North Carolina Press.

Among the middle and upper classes, he said, the Negro's heterosexual relations approach more closely the American ideal of romantic love and marriages are more stable.

State Four-H Policies Bar Youths From National Meet

Citizens of North Carolina were fired up this week when they read that 45 4-H Club members were attending the National 4-H Club Congress, being held at the Conrad-Hilton Hotel, Chicago, Ill., and there were no Negroes in the group.

In response to their inquiries the CAROLINIAN made an intensive effort to ascertain how it was possible that such a large number of boys and girls, representing North Carolina, could be selected and no Negro boy or girl was in the group, due to the fine work being done by them.

An effort to locate L. R. Harrell, who has charge of the 4-H program, with offices at State College, proved futile in view of the fact that he was reported as being in Chicago, attending the meeting. District Agent, L. B. Dickson, white, Eastern District of North Carolina, answered the inquiry and chose to not make a statement as to the policy of selecting the boys and girls. He said that he would rather

Mr. Harrell state the policy.

A call to Milo Downey, Agriculture Department, Washington, D. C., who heads the national setup, revealed that he too was in Chicago. John Banning, a member of his staff, told the CAROLINIAN that the office had received rumors that there had been discrimination in

Raleigh Elks Are Hosts To The Aged And Infirm

The officers and members of Capital City Lodge, IBPOE of W, reinstated a familiar scene here Thanksgiving Day when they picked up 15 aged and infirm people and carried them to the Home for a "Turkey Dinner" and sent dinners to 22 more people.

For a number of years this was an annual feat of the local Elks and the recipients looked forward to same with great anxiety. The Elks decided to give the dinner this year so that the real spirit of the day could be realized by those whose age have crept upon them, and those whom the ravages of disease have made unable to carry on for themselves.

List of people picked up and brought to the affair: Mrs. Effie Jackson, Mr. (Uncle)

FAULT WITHIN HIS OWN HOUSEHOLD

It appears that Gov. Sanford has looked every place except the right place to find the reason for the defeat of the bond issue last Nov. 7. Although he has roundly denounced the state Republicans and has called the state Republican leader, ship some ugly names, he has apparently closed his eyes to the plainly obvious fact that his own party and his party leadership let him down.

It is our understanding that right up to Nov. 7, the governors aides, advisors and field-men were all telling the governor that the bonds were in the bag, there was nothing for him to worry about. In the light of these rosy reports to the governor, it would seem that the big majority of citizens who voted against the bonds, made up their minds to do so after they awakened last Tuesday morning.

The governor knows that it did not happen that way at all. The opposition was out there all the

Hospitals Attacked By Three

DURHAM—In tribute to 75 years of medical service to the people of North Carolina, by Negro doctors, the Old North State Medical Society of North Carolina is planning to celebrate its Diamond Jubilee by attacking discrimination in federally-aided hospitals.

The first step was taken Monday when a committee, composed of Drs. H. A. Eaton, W. T. Armstrong and C. D. Watts, visited Washington and bared the facts in the discriminatory practices of North Carolina hospitals receiving aid from the federal government.

The trip was prompted not only by acts of discrimination that have already happened, but by anticipated acts that have been made a part of a new hospital to be built in

2 Sentenced In Whiteville Murder Case

WHITEVILLE—The trial of four white boys for the murder of a Negro boy, whom they allege they found sitting on the back steps of a white woman's home on July 15 ended here Monday, when the confessed killer, Houston Duncan, was given from 15 to 20 years in prison.

The evidence which led to the sentence was furnished by Deputy Sheriff Charlie Smith and it sounded as if the old days of the Klu Klux Klan were being brought back to Columbus County. The officer stated that four white boys went to the home of Mrs. Victoria Ward, 46, white, where they pooled their money and went in search of whiskey, on the night of July 15.

World In Pictures

An even dozen students at Fayetteville State Teachers College have been added to the 1961-62 edition of "Who's Who Among Students in American College and Universities." All are North Carolinians except one.

Tillman Overstreet, 35, a six-foot, six-inch ex-basketball star, left, sits quietly in a corner as police examine two guns and nearly one million dollars worth of narcotics found in his St. Albans, N. Y. home last week. In right photo, Freddy Lawson, 30, of Paterson, N. J., leaves interrogation room after admitting fatally beating a husky driver. He is followed by a detective.

Woolworth's Store was one of the prime spots of interest for Hon. O. Adeniji, left of Nigeria and other diplomatic representatives from African countries as they observed "Africa Week In San Francisco" last week.
