Death Comes To Pair In Lovers Lane Auto

LOUISBURG-One dare not at- | to see them bringing the body tempt to predict the text that the Rev. A. L. Morgan took Wednesday when he delivered the eulogy for John Johnson, local tavern keeper, who was found dead in his car Saturday afternoon after having been overcome with fumes from a bad muffler, at the funeral Wednesday, held at the First Baptist Church

One can venture to say that he did not use, "The wages of sin are death and the gift of God is eternal life". Mrs. Ophelia Johnson, the widow, told the CAROLINIAN that she was of the opinion that it was a case of what she thought was a "little cheating" on the part of her husband, with another woman, Mrs. Esther Lewis, who also succumbed to the ill-fated

Hunters, who came upon the car with the glasses tightly closed and the engine running and the heater going, told investigating officers that they found the woman in the back seat unconscious and the man dead at the wheel. The woman was not dead, but was given little chance to recover and died at a 10cal hospital Saturday night.

Mrs. Johnson, who had been married to Johnson for 35 years, said that she reached the vicinity of the car just in time of her husband out. The car was said to have been parked in a wooded section of a road which led to Mitchiner's Pond, located about 5 miles from town. It was not learned how long it had been there, but he was last seen about 1 o'clock Saturday morning.

Mrs. Lewis is said to have been not too well in recent days and had been in and out of the hospital. Johnson is also survived by one brother, Charlie Henry, who lives at Mebane and a daughter, Mrs. Johnnie Williams of New York City. Mrs. Lewis' funeral was scheduled for Thursday. She is alleged to have some children sur-

WASHINGTON-Several North Carolina businesses were represented at the Small Business Conference held in the Statler-Hilton Hotel Thurday, Friday and Satur-

It was called by the Department of Commerce and the Small Business Association, in the hope that a clear "image" of what small business is like and what it needs could be drawn.

Commerce Secretary, Luther Hodges, opened the meet with a banquet address on Thursday night. He laid much stress on the vast market that the new African countries represented and told the audience that the United States must use every avenue of its resources to solicit this mar-ket. He told the business people that they had much to offer and forget them to make every effort to become a part of the effort being made to attract this market.

Banker Lorimer Milton, Atlanta, Ga., was the keynote speaker Friday morning and discussed the matter of capital to finance Negro businesses. He dwelt on the fact that too many Negro businesses failed to really study the details of a business and therefore wtre failure before they began the ousiness. He stressed the fact that
