Hold-Up Man Robs High Pt. Loan Co.

HIGH POINT — The enticing advertising of companies that specialize in lending money could have been the reason why an unidentified man staged a holdup here Saturday and fled with several hundred dollars.

According to information furnished local police by Mrs. Frances Hicks, white, cashier, a Negro is alleged to have entered the office of Liberty Loan Company, shortly after noon Saturday and in true western style and did not even speak, but indicated to her that she should make some paper money available to him.

Mrs. Hicks alleges that she did not speak either and while looking down the barrel of a pistol, extended over the counter, she emptied the cash drawer and gave him the money. Once he received the money he is alleged to have stuffed it into his pockets and then it was that he spoke. He is reported to have told her to lie down on the floor.

She described him as "clam and quiet" and being about 25 years old. One pack of cigarettes could have been the cause of it all. Manager H. R. Simpson left momentarily to get a package and when he returned found the damage had been done.

Loan Shark In Extortion Fined $500

ROCKY MOUNT — One of the most outrageous disclosures was brought to light here in Recorder's Court when Bennie W. Pollard, white, local grocer was tried for lending money to Negro employees of the City Sanitation Department at a rate of 25 cents interest on the dollar.

He was tried by Judge Sam Arrington and fined $500 in one case, in which he pleaded nolo contendere. He admitted to police that he had been lending small sums of money to Negroes and getting 25 percent interest for a two-week period.

State law requires that a person lending $600 or less at a rate greater than six percent have a license from the State Banking Commission.

SEGREGATION REMAINS:

City System Takes In O'Kelly School

Mr. Fred A. Smith, Supt. of Wake County Schools, told an overflow PTA audience last Monday evening that, beginning next September, the Berry O'Kelly High School in Method would become a part of the Raleigh school system.

Mr. Smith said although the Berry O'Kelly School would be operated as a unit of the Raleigh Public Schools, Negro students in that section of Wake County now served by the school would through an arrangement worked out between the Wake County School Board and the Raleigh School Board continue to attend the Berry O'Kelly School.

Replying to a question asked by Ralph Campbell, president of the Raleigh Branch NAACP, Supt. Smith said that an effort would be made to operate the school on a segregated basis.

Mr. Campbell's question was raised after the superintendent had described the area which would be served by the Berry O'Kelly School. Within this area are schools now attended solely by white students. In some instances, Negro children must pass these all-white schools in order to reach the segregated school at Method.

The Wake school board said that under the new arrangement, elementary students living in Method would have the option of continuing riding school busses to reach the elementary segregated school in Cary or, they could be assigned the city of Raleigh. When he was to the nearest segregated school in pressed to name that school, he said it would be the Oberlin Road School.

Mr. Owen White questioned the idea of students being assigned to a school within the city and yet having the privilege of attending the school in Cary if they desired to do so. Mr. Smith said that arrangement had been made because the students may have become attached to the school.

Driver Goes Free After Hitting Man

DURHAM — Rushing a patient to a hospital can prove as serious to an uninterested person as it is to the person that is being taken to the hospital. That is what happened here Saturday night, when Lloyd Neil Price, white, 32, 1004 Dwire Drive, Raleigh, is said to have struck Erasmus Heck, 50, of 231 Miami Blvd., with a car.

Price told The CAROLINIAN Tuesday night that he was not detained by the police, whom he alleges told him that Heck had been drinking and that he was not responsible for striking him.

Investigating officer, state trooper J. A. Phillips is said to have stated that Heck had been visiting a sister, who lived across the street from him, and that he was returning home, when struck by the car.

JFK Urged To Use Executive Power To Free Two Imprisoned Ministers

President John F. Kennedy was urged this week to use his power to bring about the release of two ministers "who are languishing in southern jails."

Alexander Barnes of Durham, a leading Republican and director of public relations and social service for the AMEZ Church, in a letter to the Chief Executive urged him to seek the release from Alabama and Louisiana jails, of the Rev. Fred L. Shuttlesworth and B. Elton Cox, who "dared to be men" in their fight for civil rights in the South.

Washington, D. C.
Dear Mr. President:
During your campaign, in 1960, you were very generous in the use of your kind influences to have Dr. Martin Luther King released from prison. I am quite sure that every believer in human decency appreciated this gesture. However, he has been imprisoned many times since and you have not had either

Says Citizens Body Was 'Ill Advised'

The board of management of the Bloodworth Street YMCA has released a resolution strongly opposing a report released by the Raleigh Citizens Association on February 22 and carried on the front page of THE NEWS AND OBSERVER.

In this report the United Fund was criticized as a channel through which "the poor contribute to the amusement and advancement of the rich."

The resolution adopted at the regular meeting of the YMCA board has stated that this and other statements in the report released by the Raleigh Citizens Association are "misconceived, ill advised and at variance with the true facts."

C. A. Haywood, Sr., chairman of the board, presided and the resolution was adopted after a full discussion of the report as carried in the local daily.

A number of Raleigh's leading citizens who comprise the Board of Management was present when the actual vote of repudiation of the report was taken. Some of these are members of the citizens group and claimed that the report was the work of a sub-committee, mainly one member and that it had not been adopted or approved by the group.

Members of the Board present when the resolution of protest was adopted include: F. J. Carnage, J. W. Eaton, R. H. Toole, J. A. Mann, A. E. Brown, C. C. Smith, Jr., Dr. L. E. McCauley, C. N. Coble, C. R. Frazer, and E. L. Ralford, general secretary and member ex-officio.

The United Fund is a fund-raising organization and assists private agency members raise their budgets. It does not set the policies of these agencies and it is unfair and unjust to criticize the Fund for the work of the agencies stated A. E. Brown. "Any just criticism should be taken up directly with those involved and they will be given a hearing," he continued.

The most strongly opposed implication in the Citizens Association was that "agencies which perform a real public service should be put on the public payroll and their expenses paid out of a special progressive income tax." Our taxes are

Man Bound Over On Rape Charge

With the girl charging rape and the defendant saying it was upon her own free will and accord, Judge Fretlow Winkler ruled that there was enough evidence to hold James Calvin Gilles and he was bound over to Wake Superior Court on a warrant drawn last Nov. 24.

The entire story sounded like a fairy tale. A man charged with rape in November, fled to Newark, N. J., was picked up by the FBI, returned here and given five days in jail for speeding on Paolet Road, in jail for speeding on Paolet Road, in jail for speeding on Paolet Road.

Youth Rescued From "Well"

The State School for the Blind and Deaf on the Old Garner Road, was the scene of near tragedy, Tuesday afternoon around 4 o'clock, Clifton Williams, 8-year-old of Warren County, blind student, was playing on the playground in the rear of the gym building and plunged several feet into a partly filled abandoned "well."

Garvin Dayton Saunders, the school electrician, in an interview with a CAROLINIAN reporter relates that several children playing near the area found young Clifton. Being near the scene Saunders first made an unsuccessful attempt to rescue the boy by leaning over into the well which was about 16 inches in diameter. He said he could just touch the boy's hand, which he described as being too wet to grip. In his final attempt he was assisted by two other attendants who supported his legs.
