YOU ARE THE DETECTIVE

As you enter the small bedroom in the boardinghouse where the tragedy has occurred, your eye is immediately attracted to the pencilled note lying on the table:
"Dearest Cathy: This may seem to you a foolish way to solve everything. But life without you is a life that isn't worth continuing. And so as soon as I end this last note to you I am going to pull the trigger and end myself. I love you, Joe."
Joe Nelson's body lies on the unmade bed at one side of the room, a bullet hole in his right temple, the gun on the floor next to the bed. It's a very simple job for you to take a quick inventory of the furnishings of the room and the few personal possessions of the victim.
Beside the bed, there are the seared wooden table, two straight-backed chairs, an empty wastebasket, and no other clothes except those that Joe is wearing. On the table stands an enlarged snapshot of a pretty girl in a bathing suit, and unopened fountain pen, a few pieces of writing paper, two empty packages of cigarettes, a well filled, dirty looking ash-tray, and a somewhat battered wristwatch. A thorough examination of the dead man's pockets reveals nothing of much interest—a well-worn wallet containing $12 in one-dollar bills, a driver's license made out to Joseph Henry Nesón, and a small snapshot of the same girl this time wearing an evening gown. Also, in his pockets are some assorted keys, a few coins, and a folded-up racing form with inked-in notes and comments regarding the various horses listed.
"I was down in my kitchen when I heard the shot," exclaims the excited landlady of the boardinghouse. She has just appeared at the door of the room and has been watching your progress around the body and the table. It was she who phoned you 15 minutes ago about the tragedy. "Oh, this will do things to the reputation of my place! Imagine... a suicide! And he was such a fine young man, too. Of course, I've always wondered just how he made his living... he never once to talk about himself... spent a lot of time here in his room, and never kept regular hours going to and coming back from any kind of job, like my other boarders do. I certainly never dreamed that he would be the kind of man to take his own life this way."
"I'm not convinced that this WAS suicide," you say.
"What has aroused your suspicions?"
SOLUTION
Although Joe's "farewell note" was written in pencil, you had found in his pocket a note which was typed and dated Feb. 27, 1965. The note was addressed to Cathy and was signed "Joe". The note was found in the pocket of the jacket which was hanging on the back of the chair next to the bed. The jacket was found in the pocket of the jacket which was hanging on the back of the chair next to the bed. The jacket was found in the pocket of the jacket which was hanging on the back of the chair next to the bed.

Oriental Cooking Made Easy

Any housewife would like to serve meals for family and company that are easy and inexpensive, yet new and different. Food mixes, for instance, do all the hard work for you, but allow you to add your own special touches. The following recipe will enhance dinner time eating—and you'll spend a minimum amount of time in the kitchen. Complement it with a variety of Chinese dishes or a western salad.

Fried Rice With Beef And Peppers (serves 4-6)

1 pkg. Chien King fried rice mix	Marinade—Mix together
4 cups water	1 tsp. soy sauce
1 pound filet steak	1 tsp. sugar
2 tbs. oil	2 tsp. cornstarch
1 onion, sliced	2 tbs. cold water
1 green pepper, cut in strips

Bring water to boil; add rice and simmer 15 minutes. Drain and rinse with cold water. While rice is cooking, cut meat into small pieces. Place in marinading mixture and let stand for 10 minutes. Heat a pan with 2 tbs. oil and when it is very hot, add meat; saute for 2 minutes. Remove and set aside. Sauté onion until they become brown, add green pepper and stir one minute or until it turns bright green. Remove vegetables and set aside. In the same pan, add one tbs. oil and cooked rice. Add seasoning (packet B). Blend in Brown Sauce (Packet A) until rice is uniform color. Add sautéed onion, peppers, beef, etc. with heating gently. Turn off heat, stir again and serve immediately in shallow bowl.

GARDEN TIME

m. e. gardner
n. c. state college

During the week ending January 14 there were 15,523 carlot equivalents (trail and truck) of fresh fruits and vegetables distributed in the United States. Of this number, 1,755 carlot equivalents were imported. This is quite a sizeable bread-basket for one week so I thought it would be of interest to my readers, as it was to my students, to find out where the centers of production are located while we are surrounded by ice and snow (2-15-65).
Most people usually think of California and Florida as being our largest producers of fresh fruits and vegetables during the winter months. This is largely true but other states also play an important part in keeping us well fed.
Perhaps the better plan would be to list some of the more important fruits and vegetables, in alphabetical order, the carlot equivalents, and states of origin.
Apples, Michigan 117, New York 110, Washington 377, other states 377, Canada 26. Beans, California 283, Florida 211, Corn, California 119, Lettuce, Arizona 384, California 1-153, Texas 130. Oranges, California 461, Florida 501. Irish potatoes, California 375, Colorado 232, Idaho 435, Maine 809. Tomatoes, Florida 456, Mexico 221.
This is enough to give you some idea of the tremendous producing power of this great country in which we live. It does not include all of the states involved in producing fresh fruits and vegetables.
Mechanization is playing an ever greater role in the production and harvesting of many of our vegetable crops. Machines have been perfected, or are in the experimental stage, for harvesting tomatoes for processing, lettuce, asparagus, cantaloupes, cucumbers for pickling, cabbage and broccoli. In the case of tomatoes, the plant breeders are at work to produce dwarf plant types and uniform ripening of the fruits so that the harvesting can be a "once-over" job.
These are three reasons for mechanization: (1) technological advances; (2) the high cost of labor; and (3) the possibility of cutting off the supply of Mexican Nationals (Braceros) who have played such an important part in the harvesting of perishables in the Far West and the Southwest.

On The Home Front

(News items this week from Cleveland, Franklin and Rowan counties.)

FAMILY UNIT PLANNING

Six families in Cleveland County are participating in a record keeping study this year. Miss Thelma McVea, home economics agent, says the families are planning the spending of their income so they can reach certain goals set up for the year.
Miss McVea says results of the studies will be used to encourage other families to keep records and make financial plans.

SEWING WORKSHOPS

Clothing construction workshops will be held in Franklin County for six weeks for anyone interested in improving their sewing techniques.
Mrs. Margaret Baldwin, home economics agent, reports that some evening classes are being conducted for homemakers who cannot attend the morning classes.

BASIC EDUCATION PROGRAM

Approximately 14 classes of adults have begun their basic educational program. These classes are designed for persons with an educational level below the sixth grade.

CHILDREN are wise these days at such tender ages, that those parents who wish to have an old-fashioned heart-to-heart talk should schedule it before the sixth birthday.

Heart Association research grants for 1964-65 will come to around $10,500,000.

$10,000 Reward For A White Marigold

PHILADELPHIA, PA. — There's a man anxious to give you $10,000 — in exchange for pure white marigold seeds! So far, over the past 10 years, nearly 4,000 gardeners from all 50 states and 19 foreign nations thought they had one. But the search continues.
David Burpee, shown above in a field of a brand new near-white marigold introduction for 1965 called "Hopeful", has repeated the standing cash offer to gardeners anywhere in the world every year since 1955. "Hopeful", a creamy white, fully double carnation type flower that measures up to 3 inches across, is the closest thing yet to a pure white marigold. It is new for 1965!
As head of the W. Atlee Burpee Company, Philadelphia, Pa., one of the nation's largest and oldest growers of seeds, Mr. Burpee is convinced that the long, almost legendary trail to a pure white marigold is getting very warm.
"Some gardener, somewhere", he claims, "is soon going to find a pure white marigold."
The winning white marigold, Mr. Burpee notes, would have to have flowers that measured at least 2 1/2 inches wide.
