Cops Fire Over Heads Of Pupils

MONTGOMERY, Ala. — Police fired over the heads of a crowd of 400 demonstrating students here on the campus of Alabama State College for Teachers.

The students were protesting the arrest of civil rights worker Willie Ricks of the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee (SNCC).

Over 20 students have been jailed since demonstrations began April 21.

The arrests grew out of student protests over the school administration's attempt to punish students who participated in rights demonstrations here. Some 9 students were suspended for taking part in direct action here.

Students faced police, throwing rocks and bottles. The all white police retaliated by firing over the students' heads.

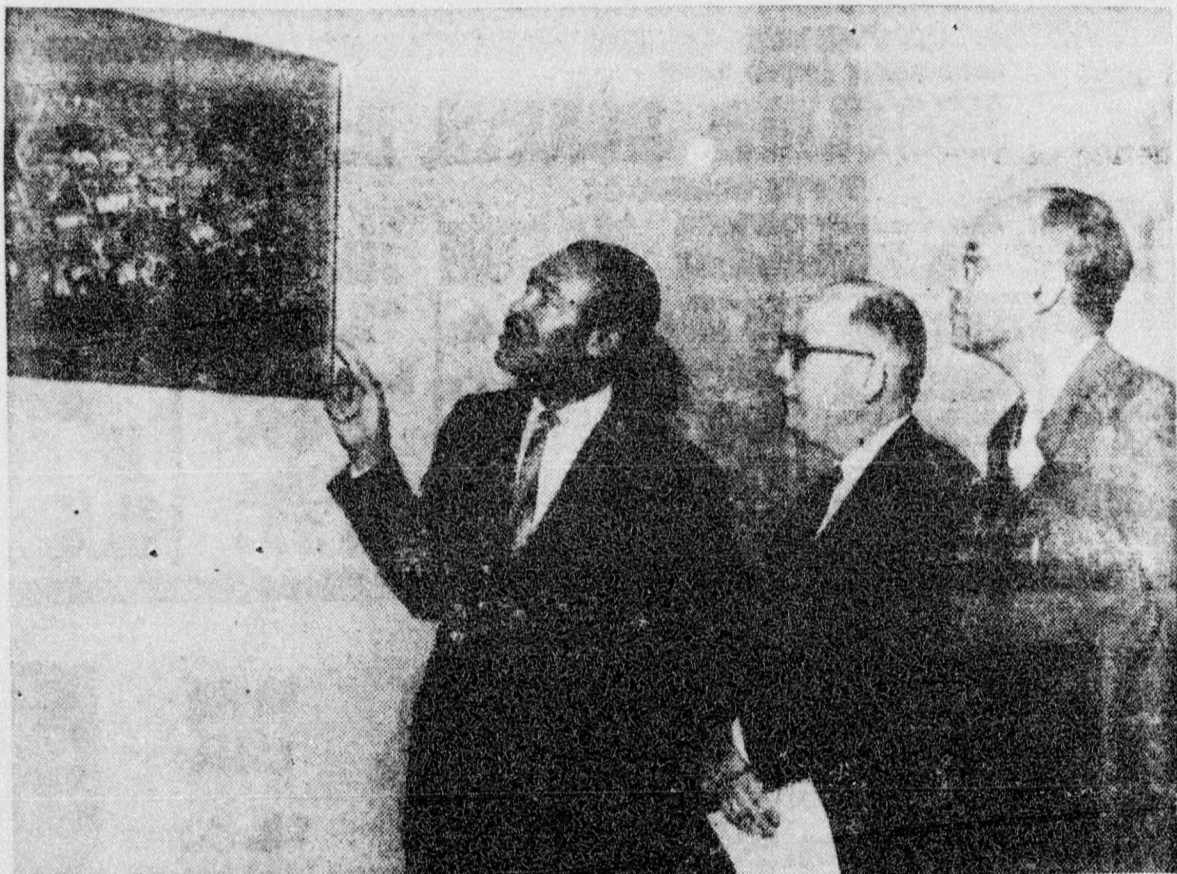

The protests flared up after a faculty-administration committee hearing charged 17 students with insubordination, willful defiance of authority, and conduct prejudicial to the college and unbecoming a student and future teacher.

Thirteen students were arrested here earlier after a 17 hour sit-in at the office of the president.

NSF DIRECTOR AT NCC — Dr. Howard J. Hausman, center, a recent speaker at North Carolina College, is shown an aerial photograph of the College's campus by Dr. Joseph A. Pittman, dean of the NCC undergraduate school. Dr. Hausman, director of the Secondary Science Education Program, National Science Foundation, Washington, delivered the keynote address at the Eighth Annual Science and Mathematics Conference last week at the college in Durham. On the right is Dr. C. Elwood Boulware, general chairman of the conference which attracted about 400 high school students and teachers from throughout the State.

WASHINGTON AND "SMALL BUSINESS"

By C. WILSON HARDER

In view of the fact that TV will use a new approach to humor programming, it is unfortunate that the medium depends on its existence for licenses issued by a bureaucracy. It could do a great show, entitled something like "Idiotic Episodes Along the Potomac."

The first place we could well be called "The Peanut Politicians Approach to Peanuts."

As is well known, the nation faces a great situation with the world. In other words, they are getting more of our money than we are getting of theirs.

So now, what is the new approach to solve this problem. Make everybody who wants to go out of the country pay a special $100 tax.

This, they believe would discourage people from going abroad and spending money. But who would it discourage? Apparently, they don't believe it would discourage those with means, but it would discourage the little people. This fact is recognized in the discussion of how to collect this tax, as it is freely admitted that it would never do to try and collect when they return to the country as most of them do not return with this much money. Hence, the talk of collecting it before they leave.

Now of course this group of people, students, school teachers, et al, are encouraged to broaden their viewpoint. And if is a cinch that people who fly to Europe on group plans, clutching the guide book "Europe on $5 Per Day" are really big spenders undermining U.S. financial strength.

By comparison, the billions thrown away in so-called foreign aid are merely peanuts. The money used to buy extra wives for Kenya chiefs, the money used to give curative preparations to aged Chinese males in Formosa afflicted with declining potency are all mere bagatelles and prudent investments. After all, how can aged Chinese males combat communism if they are impotent? On the other hand, just how does one go about combatting communism?

Of course, State Dept. spends huge sums traveling jazz bands around world to expose American "Culture."

And of course, the thousands of people engaged in travel agency work, the people who make and sell the items of necessity a traveler must buy, what happens to them? Who says the war on poverty cannot be expanded to include them, too.

After all, if an impotent Chinese on Formosa needs rejuvenation, or an African chief needs another wife or so, this nation must be prepared to dig up the dollars without worry about the balance of trade. After all unless people are wealthy enough to pay an extra $100 in tax, they have no business traveling, anyway. It makes facilities too crowded for swarms of bureaucrats running all over the world on government expense.

What Did I Do Wrong?

As a dog owner, you know the companionship, the loyalty and love, the pleasure and sheer fun that your dog adds to your life. But there are many dog owners who don't realize that with every right goes a responsibility. Dog owners must consider their duty to their neighbors and their communities. Take a tip from Clarence Fawcett of Purina's Pet Care Center. Your dog doesn't have a sense of civic responsibility, so you have to assume it for him. Put yourself in your neighbor's place and try to imagine how your dog's habits affect him. It's up to you to train your pet early so that you will enjoy each other without spoiling the enjoyment of others.

High-Speed, Low-Cost... Briefcase-Size Voting Device

DAYTON, N. J. — A briefcase-size voting device, that weighs approximately six pounds and is expected to reduce waiting time at polling places, is now being marketed by International Business Machines Corporation.

Called the IBM Votomatic, the device uses punched card ballots, and is priced at $185 per unit. The Votomatic's low cost means that enough units can be placed in each polling place to cut down the waiting time of voters. Of more than 4,000 voters surveyed by county and state officials in Oregon and California after having used units of this type in last November's elections, 96 percent said they preferred them over hand-marked ballots.

The IBM Votomatic system works like this: The voter slips a specially designed punched card into the device so that the card positions itself precisely underneath a printed ballot, which can be several pages in

COLOR YOUR HOME 'ENTERTAINING'

There's a whole new roster of programs scheduled for color viewing. More and more families are making the switch to color television. This represents the first major trend in the home entertainment industry since the initial appearance of commercial television in 1947. The increased number of color programs has been significant to this trend but an equally important factor has been the recent advances in color TV technology. Until a short time ago, many people had been reluctant about owning color sets because the picture never seemed quite true. Now, Magnavox has pioneered revolutionary developments in color clarity which dramatically enhance picture quality and viewing convenience. Called MagnaColor Automatic, the picture fine tunes automatically and is so brilliant it can be viewed without dimming the lights! Consoles and TV/radio/phonograph combinations in 21" and 25" screens are available in a wide range of furniture styles in every price bracket. Besides adding a dramatic, new dimension to the decor of your home, this television with the new look is guaranteed to put some colorful entertainment in your own life as well!
