

Winning Combinations

It's a questionable risk to jump out of a plane with a parachute. But what price the risk to jump with no parachute whatsoever?

Expert sky-diver Rod Pack thought that the risk was worth taking, and earlier this year, he launched himself out of a light plane into the frosty air at 14,000 feet over Arvin, Calif., wearing nothing more than a thin white jump suit and an empty chute harness. He lived to tell his free-falling tale.

The winning combination that saved Pack's life in this terrifying stunt was the team-work of Pack and his sky-diving mate, Bob Allen. Allen jumped first, with one parachute on his back and another in his hands. Then Pack jumped. About 4,000 feet later, Allen had managed to hand over the second chute to Pack, which Pack buckled on and opened just in the nick of time.

Both intrepid sky-divers then floated safely to the ground.

Parachute-less sky-diving, we're sure, will never become a popular sport. But here's one winning combination that's already enjoying great popularity all over the country. Called Bourbon Breeze, it's a supremely satisfying mixture of two ounces of Old Grand-Dad Bourbon, a half-ounce of De Kuyper Delecta, a dash of Angostura aromatic bitters, and two ounces of lemon juice.

Pour these ingredients into a tall, pre-chilled glass. Pack with cracked ice. Stir lightly. Fill up with charged water. Decorate with fresh mint leaves and serve with straws. Place both feet firmly on the ground, sip and enjoy.

TAGGED OUT AT HOME - Minneapolis, Minn.: Minnesota Twins' star Jim Hall, number 7, is tagged out at home plate by New York Yankee catcher Elston Howard during the third inning of the Minnesota-New York game played last Thursday. Hall tried to score from third base on teammate Don Mitchers' single. (UPI)

TIPS for the woman driver

Superhighway Driving

Some women are frightened by the thought of freeway or turnpike driving. But, you'll have a safe journey, if you'll follow the rules of the road.

Concentration on your driving is absolutely necessary on freeways, as faster-than-usual traffic adds to your driving responsibilities. Keep alert; be on the lookout for changing conditions; expect the unexpected.

Speed control is important. Freeways are not race tracks and posted limits should be respected and not be exceeded. Check your speed often. On freeways, you can gradually increase your speed to a point far higher than you intend without realizing it.

Because of your higher than usual driving speed, longer stopping distances must be allowed for. For each 10 miles per hour of speed, stay at least 20 feet (a little over 1 car length) back of the car you follow. Or, multiply your speedometer reading by two and stay that many feet behind the car you are following.

In case of a flat tire give a stop signal and pull completely off the road pavement as far as the shoulder permits. At night, use flares or reflector. A Bernz-Omatic tire inflator is the easiest way to seal a flat. This convenient aluminum cylinder will inflate and seal your tire in just 60 seconds and give you 100 miles of continuous travel.

Prepare well in advance when you want to leave the freeway. Watch at least a mile in advance for a sign designating your interchange. Accidents are caused when drivers spot their exits late and then make sudden changes in speed or direction.

Remember, once you're off the freeway you're traveling with considerably slower traffic, so adjust your driving intelligently to the new conditions.

Bill Russell's $10,000 Said Tops For Cager

BOSTON (UPI) - Defensive genius Bill Russell of the world champions Boston Celtics last week signed a three-year contract with the Celtics for an estimated $100,000 plus $1 per year that was reported to be the highest salary ever paid any player in the National Basketball Association.

The $1 extra was reportedly designed to push Russell's annual salary above that of scoring champion Wilt Chamberlain of the Philadelphia 76ers, who signed recently for what was then an estimated record $100,000.

Sunday's Roast; Monday's Encore

Leftovers never linger when the encore's as tempting as the first performance—a big Sunday roast that stars again as "Monday Beef Pie." The marvel of this Borden Kitchen recipe? An instant nonfat dry milk that's truly a low-cost convenience.

BEST FOOT FORWARD INTO SUMMER

Dear Cece: I would like to wear sandals and to go barefoot on the beach this summer. Is there any way I can make my feet and legs look prettier? The winter was really hard on them.

to start high school looking like a baby. Judy C.

Dear Cathy: A little care and cream will work wonders. Each day scrub your legs and feet briskly during your daily bath or shower. Be especially careful to dry between the toes. If you're bothered by rough bumps on your heels, smother them with a pumice stone which you can buy at any drugstore. Rub a bit of lotion on your feet and legs every night to overcome wintertime dryness now and sun and wind-burn later.

Dear Judy: A full school course could be given on "How to Wear Lipstick and still be Friends with your Mother!" Be smart. Your mother is far less likely to scream that you're much too young to wear lipstick if you're discreet about the shade you choose and the way you apply it. Take a good look in your mirror. An animated, clean young face actually looks best in a lipstick that barely shows. Fashion-wise, the "bare" shades are in vogue this year.

Once a week, treat your feet to a pedicure. After your bath, spread a double thickness of ScottTowels beneath your feet. Cut toenails straight across and smooth the nail edge with an emery board. Push back the cuticle gently with a folded Scottie tissue. Finish the glamour treatment by powdering your feet with talcum. If you like painted toenails, be scrupulous about redoing them as soon as they start to chip.

Before you wear lipstick in front of your mother, experiment a bit. Practice until you can apply lipstick evenly, following your natural lip line. When you've achieved the look you want, blot your mouth gently with a Scottie tissue to keep lipstick from smearing. If you've chosen your shade carefully, your mother is more likely to say "yes" to lipstick for parties and that's a step in your direction.

Dear Cece: I'm thirteen and whenever I ask my mother when I can start wearing lipstick she just laughs and says I'm too young. All my friends are permitted to use lipstick for special occasions and most of them wear it to school every day. How can I convince my mother to give me permission to use lipstick? I'll die if I have

Dear Readers: The Scott Home Service Center has prepared a booklet especially for teens called "Off to a Beautiful Start." It contains helpful hints on personality development, grooming, and tips on how to give your room the look you like without straining your budget. If you'd like a free copy, drop me a post card at the address listed at the bottom of this column. Don't forget to print your name and address clearly.

Questions and comments should be addressed to Mrs. Cece Allison, Room 1440, 420 Lexington Ave., New York 17, N. Y.

Quick as a Wink

Watch when you wink in this superspeed space age, or you'll miss something important. Take a quick look at the Gemini space rocket. To break away from the pull of earth's gravity, it must reach a speed of 25,000 miles an hour, or nearly seven miles a second!

Jet speedboat king Donald Campbell is no slouch on the water. He has set the world record by averaging 260.35 mph in two consecutive runs over a measured kilometer on Lake Coniston, England. He did this in his jet hydroplane Bluebird II.

Nationally famous dragster pilot Don Garlits, of Tampa, Florida, wastes no time either. In his high-powered "Wynn's Jammer", Don has reached a speed of 200 mph within the elapsed time of 7.67 seconds, over the quarter-mile course of a dragstrip in Detroit.

Barbecue On Broadway

President Johnson's barbecue chef, Walter Jetton, is shown above serving Lee Remick, star of the United Artists' new motion picture, "The Hallelujah Trail," a hearty portion of barbecued beef.

Jetton, sometimes called "King of the Texas Barbecue," recently presided over the largest outdoor barbecue ever held on Broadway—in connection with the 24-hour world premiere of the film.

For your backyard barbecues, take a tip from LBJ's barbecue chef and always have a goodly supply of Texas Barbecue Sauce in your refrigerator, ready for cookouts at the drop of a 10-gallon hat.

City of Excitement

IN THE SUNNY Plaza de Toros, a bugle blares. Men in gold and scarlet capes form a procession. Fierce animal sounds fill the air. The audience catches its breath... It's Sunday afternoon in the Guadalupe bull ring. A sight to thrill every spectator.

THE EXCITEMENT of a bullfight is only one of the new experiences awaiting visitors to Mexico's "second city." Those with adventurous appetites can sample a native dish called mole de guajolote. It's an intriguing combination of turkey, peppers, almonds, cinnamon, raisins—and melted chocolate!

LEISURELY sightseeing is a good follow-up to a nourishing meal. And Guadalupe abounds in fine examples of Baroque and Gothic Spanish-style buildings, and "patio" homes. Most recent addition to the city's architecture is a skyscraper—the 20-story, ultra-modern Guadalupe Hilton Hotel.

Italian Leather: Wear and Care

The Italian genius for fashion is nowhere more evident than in that country's handsome leather handbags, gloves and luggage. Traditionally elegant but smashing modern, these are accessories with imagination.

A trend to softer handbags is plainly evident in the Italian designs. Although these bags are smaller, they are roomy.

Lustrous, chiffon-weight kid leather gloves with tapered fingers and slender fit make truly subtle use of both open work and embroidery.

The newest Italian luggage is both functional and elegant. Travel cases, beauty cases and suitcases display a witty combination of soft wool knit with fine leather trim. Or velvet, zebra or pony are combined with leather in cases for sophisticated travelers.

From Italy come these timely tips for the care of your hand-some leather possessions: use a soft brush, leather soap or saddle soap to keep them clean. Remove stains with suitable solvent and never scrub. Leather is oily; cloth is dry. So it's best to store leather in an even atmosphere, avoiding extreme cold, wetness and dryness.
