Angry Man, 77; Face Smacked Fires Pistol

James Upchurch, 42, of 818 S. East Street, told the "law" at 7:34 p. m. Friday that he and William Thomas Blue, 77, had had a quarrel one week before, and apparently Upchurch thought no more about it.

However, the elderly man did not forget as Upchurch was soon to find out. Exactly one week later, Mr. Blue returned to the scene of the original argument, 818 S. East Street, where Mr. Upchurch lives. Upon arrival, he shot once at the complainant, but missed. Quickly Upchurch subdued the old man and took the pistol from him.

Then he called the cops, signed a warrant, charging assault with a deadly weapon and Mr. Blue was "hauled in."

A "fuss" started over the girl, stated McLean, and he was hit over the head with a chair. He suffered a cut on the right side of his head.

McLean, whose witness was Miss Gloria Swanson Williams, of 1120 S. East Street, declared he would sign a warrant against the suspect if "Jasper" could be found.
