Vote For The Bond Issue And Court The Results

The CAROLINIAN now, has been, and always expects to be a proponent and promoter of all reliable and urgent safety measures in Raleigh, Wake County, the State and wherever its columns may reach.

The upcoming bond election has the endorsement of this newspaper. We urge our readers to vote "aye" on Saturday.

However, we would call attention to such areas as the railroad crossing approaching the Washington School. It would seem, after all these years, that this need would have priority in a program which would seek to place the safety of school children above all else. The city should either go over or under the railroad tracks, or possibly even relocate Washington School, inasmuch as the population trend of East Raleigh (the Negro), is to the south and outskirts. Yesteryear called "The other side of the tracks," where there would be no need for crossing the tracks by children, creating a hazard.

We would chide our city fathers again to widen Lenoir Street, from East to Swain. This project has been on the books so long it, no doubt, has molded or faded as a record. For safety's sake, with an overwhelming amount of trucks and automobiles traversing this heavily-populated school zone, we urge again that relief be given this hazardous, congested few blocks leading to the Ligon School.

All needed streets and sidewalks to the Carnage School should be completed immediately (and not with fine gravel). The brochure circulated by members of the City Council says under, "Where And In What Priority Will The Sidewalks Be Constructed?", that, "Factors for consideration will in-

Suit Seeks To Unseat 21 Southern Congressmen

WASHINGTON - The question of enforcing a long ignored constitutional provision will be raised here this week in a suit that seeks to take congressional seats away from states that deny Negroes' voting rights. NAACP Legal Defense and Educational Fund attorneys will ask the U. S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia to overturn a lower court dismissal of the suit which might unseat 21 southern congress-

The suit, in behalf of 15 voter from six northern states, and 10 Negroes from three southern states, seeks enforcement of Section 2 of the Fourteenth Amendment.

Section 2 provides for reduction of congressional representation of states that disenfranchise eligible voters. The provision has been ignored since Reconstruction.

Defendants in the case are Secretary of Commerce John T. Connor and A. Ross Eckler, director of the Bureau of the Census.

The Commerce Department and the Census Bureau are responsible for apportioning representatives among the states in accordance with the decennial census. The next census will be in 1970.

JONESBORO - Bethany Bap-tist Church, near Jonesboro, Louisiana, was burned to the ground for the second time this year last week. It is believed to be the only church in the history of the civil rights movement ever to be burned down twice. The church was in the final stages of being rebuilt from its first fiery destruction on January 17 of this year. Services had been held in the new church building since mid-August although it had not yet been officially dedicated. Bethany is located about five miles northeast of Jonesboro in Jackson Parish in north central Louisiana.

CURE southern director Richard Haley termed the burning "a heartbreaking tragedy" for the congregation. CORE has had workers in Jonesboro for nearly two years. Haley also asked, "Can anyone, including John McKeithen, doubt that this evil deed was the work of Louisiana's racists?"

The church was discovered engulfed by flames at about 12:30 a. m. Sunday morning by James Potts and his mother who live nearby. In February Potts, who is a member of Bethany's congregation, integrated Louisiana Polytechnic Institute with the aid of a federal court order. CORE field secretary Bruce Baines, in Jonesboro, estimated the loss at $3,000.

In January a second Negro church, Pleasant Grove Baptist, was burned down within hours of the burning of Bethany. Up to then they were the only two churches in the Parish which had held CORE and voter registration meetings. The
