Save a Time
 A. C. GORDON

YOU ARE THE DETECTIVE
 You are driving along the dark country road at about 11 o'clock this night. Although the air is now still and cool, and has been for the past two hours or so, the road is filled with the fallen leaves and the broken twigs which were blown from the trees during the exceedingly high winds earlier in the evening.
 Suddenly your eye is caught by the figure ahead of you on the road, frantically waving its arms. When you bring your car to a stop, you are approached by a young man, hair disheveled, and holding a handkerchief to a huge, discolored welt on his forehead. The young man leans against the right front fender of your car and sobs hysterically. "My girl, Julie... she's dead! And I couldn't do a thing... I couldn't do a thing to help her!"
 You finally succeed in calming him down enough to tell you his story. "I realize now it was terribly foolish, I shouldn't have decided to park my car in such a lonely, dark spot... but we were in love... and we've done this many times before. Tonight... just after that high wind we had earlier... I stopped my car along this side of the road, about a quarter of a mile from here, and Julie and I were sitting there talking when this man suddenly appeared at my side of the car and ordered me out. I thought at first he had a gun in his hand, and I got out... then, when I saw that it was just a club in his hand, I started for him... and got myself clouted over the head. It knocked me out, and I guess I was unconscious for several minutes -- but as I was coming to, I heard Julie scream, and then the shot... and when I staggered over to the car, there she lay... dead! There was no sign of the killer around."
 After helping the young man into your car, you drive on along the road and arrive at the scene of the tragedy -- indeed a very dark and lonely spot about thirty feet from a line of roadside trees. Carrying your lighted flashlight, you walk over to the parked convertible, its top down, and you look inside. The dark-haired girl lies slumped over the seat inside, and you note that her lap and the seats of the car are littered deep with fallen leaves. A darkly stained bullet hole, traces of gun powder around it, mars the otherwise immaculate front of the girl's white blouse.
 You turn back to the young man, "Did you get a good look at the man?" you ask.
 "No... it was much too dark... you can see for yourself how it is here."
 "Yes," you agree, "I can see for myself how it is here, and that's why I'm somewhat suspicious of the story you've told me!"
 What has made you suspicious of the young man's story?

 TAKE TIME
 Take time to live, it's one secret of success.
 Take time to think it's the source of power.
 Take time to play, it's the secret of youth.
 Take time to read, it's the foundation of knowledge.
 Take time for friendship, it's the source of happiness.
 Take time to laugh, it helps lift life's lot.
 Take time to dream, it hitches the soul to the stars.
 But above all, take time to be safe - for without safety we cannot take time for any of the rest.

Yes, We All Talk

 VOTING BY GENERAL CONSENT
 QUESTION: What is meant by "voting by general consent?"
 ---C. B. M.
 ANSWER: To vote by general consent is a way of voting by not voting.
 For example, suppose that the secretary has read the minutes of the previous meeting.
 The chairman may ask, "Are there any corrections?"
 If there are none, then he may say the following:
 "There seems to be no corrections; the minutes stand approved as read, if there are no objections."
 Should a member challenge the decision of the chairman on the basis of general consent, he could rise and say: "Mr. Chairman, I call for a division of the house on the adoption of the minutes of the previous meeting."
 When the call for division is made, this indicates that the chairman should call for voting by acclamation.

Vet's Corner

EDITOR'S NOTE: Below are authoritative answers by the Veterans Administration to some of the many current questions from former servicemen and their families. Further information on veterans benefits may be obtained at any VA office.
 Q -- My neighbor, a disabled veteran receiving monthly disability payments, received an income questionnaire from VA; his payments would be stopped if he did not report his annual income. I am receiving disability compensation payments, but have never received the questionnaire. Should I file a report of income, anyway?
 A -- Your neighbor evidently receives monthly "pension" payments for a non-service connected disability. You are receiving "compensation" payments for a service-connected disability which is not affected by your other income. You do not need to file a report.
 Q -- I receive a non-service connected disability pension from the VA amounting to $80 per month. If I no longer live with my wife will I lose any of my pension and if so, how much?
 A -- If you and your wife live apart and you are contributing to her support, your pension payment will not change. If you and your wife live apart and you do not contribute to her support, you will be considered single person -- without dependents -- and your maximum income could then not exceed $1800 per year. Your exact pension will depend on your individual income.
