JOBS ANTI-CHOKING CAMPAIGN

Choking accidents took 1,500 lives last year, mainly among small children, reports the Red Cross, which has joined dental and medical organizations in a campaign to alert parents of small children to this type of danger and precautions necessary.

This casualty figure also included deaths of adults choked on dentures, James C. Traynham, First Aid chairman of the Wake County Chapter said. Among children under five choking on foreign objects is one of the leading causes of deaths in the home, Traynham pointed out.

PONTIAC WARNS
 PONTIAC, Mich. -- A reminder to all car owners to be on the alert against automobile theft has been issued by Pontiac Motor Division's General Sales Manager, E. R. Pettengill. He asked that all owners lock both the ignition and the car doors when leaving the car parked, no matter for how long the car is to be left unattended. "FEI statistics indicate that 80 per cent had the key left in the ignition," Pettengill said.

OPENS RADIO STATION
 GREENSBORO -- Radio Station WANT, a new communications facility for A&T College, went on the air waves last week. With installation completed last Wednesday, to coincide with the mid-year meeting of the A&T College Board of Trustees, the station carried the opening of the meeting. Robert H. Frazier, Greensboro attorney and chairman of the Board, welcomed the board members and the A&T station was on the air. DR. SPEIGNER AT D. B. C.

DURHAM - Durham Business College was honored, Friday, Feb. 11, with a timely address by Dr. Theodore R. Speigner.

The title of his address was: "The New Image of the American Negro." He emphasized the importance of an education, to insure future advancement of the Negro. Dr. Speigner is chairman of the Department of Geography at North Carolina College at Durham.

GIVEN FORD GRANT

This sum will be given over a five-year period. During this period the trustees of the School will endeavor to raise an additional $5,500,000 to provide for the School's expanding needs.

YOU ARE THE DETECTIVE
 In response to a phone call you have received tonight from a man identifying himself as Joe Farrell, you drive about a mile outside of town along the highway, turn off on a lonely side road, and finally arrive in front of an old, dilapidated, and deserted farm house. The man who called you, Joe Farrell, meets you here and guided by the beam from the flashlight he is carrying you walk to where the body of his dead partner, Bill Eggers, lies in front of the open front door of the house. The big, gaping wound on the victim's head and the blood-encrusted steel crowbar lying on the ground next to him tell you their grisly story.

Now you turn to Joe Farrell and ask for his story. "Well," begins Farrell, "this night began as a sort of lark for Bill and me, and now..." he shakes his head mournfully, then continues, "Bill and I, as you know are partners in a real estate business, and although we weren't agents for the sale of this deserted old house, we did lots of kidding about it - especially about the rumors of its being haunted. It's been unoccupied for over two years, boarded up all that time, and so far as I know, no one has been inside it all this time... until tonight. Bill bet me ten bucks I wouldn't have the nerve to come in here tonight and stay inside this so-called haunted house for an hour - in the pitch-dark. I took his dare, not so much for the money as for kicks, and we drove here and he stayed in the car while I came to the house, pried off the boards over the front door, and came in."

"It was plenty dark inside the house, but enough moonlight showed through the windows for me to see my way about fairly well. I got another break, too, when among some other junk lying in the corner of the front room I found this flashlight, and I used it with my hand over the business end so Bill wouldn't be able to see I had a light with me. I didn't want him hedging on our bet. Well, I guess I had been in there about twenty minutes or so, when suddenly I heard a big scuffle outside, then a cry for help, followed by running footsteps. When I got outside, I found poor Bill here, lying on the ground... dead!" Farrell here reaches into his coat pocket. "I have his wallet here in my pocket... I found it lying on the ground next to Bill's body, empty."

You accept the worn old wallet, casually rattle through it, then say, "And that's the entire story of tonight's events? You have nothing further to add?" "That's it," says Farrell. "That's the story."

"It's a good story," you say with a nod of your head. "But not quite good enough. I'm taking you in to headquarters with me for some further questioning!"

What has made you suspicious of Joe Farrell's story?

Speculation High About NCC NCAA Tournery Participants

Bethune-Cookman College of Daytona Beach, Fla., is second with 9-3 in the conference and 15-5 overall. Since only games through Saturday, February 19, will count in the choice of an entrant for the regional NCAA Tournery, South Carolina State may well have it sewed up.

The Mason-Dixon Commissioner A. Paul Menton revealed Tuesday that eight of the fifteen teams in the league will be in the conference tournament February 24-26 at Randolph-Macon College, Ashland, Va., to determine the conference championship and an entry for the regional. These are Mt. St. Mary's, Emmitsburg, Md.; Loyola College, Baltimore, Md.; Catholic University, Washington, D. C.; Western Maryland College, Westminster, Md.; Randolph-Macon College, the host institution and defending champion; Hampden-Sydney College, Hampden-Sydney, Va.; Bridgewater College, Bridgewater, Va.; and Roanoke College, Salem, Va.

Hampden-Sydney is regarded as a strong potential look list. According to NCC's Younge, Oglethorpe University of Atlanta, Ga., will probably be the large entry. Younge said also that ticket inquiries and requests may be directed to his office. Prices are $1 for students presenting proper identification and $1.50 and $2.00 for adults. Each day will feature two games, one beginning at 7 p. m. and the other at 8:30 p. m.

Here's how things look to conservative speculators: The CIAA, with Winston-Salem State College, Norfolk State College, and A&T College leading 1-2-3 in the final stretch, the race is anybody's. Winston-Salem, rated No. 1 to Norfolk's No. 2 in the last conference statistics, has since lost to Norfolk State. The conference tournament is scheduled for February 24-26 in Greensboro.

The SIAC, SIAC Commissioner B. T. Harvey Monday reported that South Carolina State College, of Orangeburg, tops the sixteen-league conference with a 13-1 overall record and a 17-1 overall tally.

VSC Founders Day Set For March 6

PETERSBURG, Va. -- The eighty-second school year of Virginia State College will be commemorated during Founder's Day Ceremonies Sunday, March 6, on the Petersburg campus.

Dr. Matthew G. Carter, Assistant Director of Association Press, National Board YMCA,

DR. MATTHEW G. CARTER

New York City, and Deputy Mayor of Public Works, Montclair, N. J., is the guest speaker for the 10:45 morning worship services.

This service is preceded by a memorial service conducted by President Robert P. Daniel, and the Rev. H. E. Braxton, College Minister, at 10:30 a. m. on the front campus. Other events include the motorcades to Blandford Cemetery in Petersburg where wreaths will be placed on the grave of former Principal James M. Colson, former Presidents John M. Gandy (1914-1942), and Luther H. Foster (1942-49), and the Honorable A. W. Harris who introduced in the legislature the bill which later established the college, and Evergreen Cemetery where a wreath will be placed on the grave of former President James H. Johnston (1887-1914).

There will also be a special Founders Day Evensong conducted by the Christian Association at 6 p. m., and the Founder Day Concert by the Symphonic Band directed by Dr. F. Nathaniel Gatlin at 8 p. m. in Virginia Hall Auditorium. Dr. Carter is a graduate of Virginia Union University with the B. A. and D. D. degrees, and has done additional study at Columbia University and Union Theological Seminary. His Alma Mater awarded him the honorary degree of Doctor of Divinity in 1960 for outstanding christian service.

What is the essence of Hobby's formula? It is a combination of discipline and thoroughness. Hobby drills his teams until they almost become automatic in execution. He demands 100 per cent effort at all times as near to perfection as the players are able to give.

At a school where football is king, Hobby has built a kind of respect for his methods that verges on worship. Defectors ruefully acknowledge that he has few peers in the basketball coaching fraternity.

Hobby had led the Tigers to one NAIA national title, one Mid-West and four SWAC championships while developing eight small-college All-Americans.

AFTER THE FORUM - Following a public forum at North Carolina College last week, Bascom Baynes, center, chairman of the college's board of trustees, supplements remarks made in his address in chatting with William Jones, right, and Charles Daye. Jones is chairman of the Interim Committee vested with presidential duties following the resignation of Dr. Samuel P. Massie, and Daye is president of the Student Government Association.

BURL ALLEN'S INK TONGUE

Pale, silvery dawn comes smiling from the east,
 Raising night shades, waking the slumbering world;
 Sweet greetings ring from fowls with wings unfurled,
 And, heeding Nature's beckon, man and beast
 Arise to duty - - loftiest and least.

Last night loomed bleak, but now all Earth is lit!
 Soon my angelic love and I will share
 A morning kiss - - but first our morning prayer
 To keep us for Jehovah's vision lit!
 Earth He has blessed, and we are part of it!

In breezes, dew-kissed trees and flowers nod;
 Gaily echoes from each neighbor's place,
 And all things flourish--thanks to Heaven's grace!
 This glad new day on creature, crop and clod
 Is why I say with glee, "Good morning, God!"

Coach Tells Success Story

BY COLLIE J. NICHOLSON

GRAMBLING, La. (SPECIAL) -- For a man with a basketball record that few coaches can approximate, Coach Fred Hobby of Grambling College is unlikely to succumb to the occupational disease of renowned.

Hobby has obstinate faith in himself, but he has no illusions about the status of a coach.

"The best assets a coach can have," he said in a quiet and measured voice, "is good material."

It is this saving touch of reality that has made the cigar-smoking Grambling mentor one of the nation's winningest coaches.

In 10 seasons at Grambling, Hobby teams have compiled an incredible 277-46 won-loss record in the tough Southwestern Athletic Conference.

This career standard is unmatched in top-flight coaching circles.

Grambling has an 18-3 record for the season.

What is the essence of Hobby's formula? It is a combination of discipline and thoroughness. Hobby drills his teams until they almost become automatic in execution. He demands 100 per cent effort at all times as near to perfection as the players are able to give.
