Top Speakers Explore Theme At J. C. Smith's Women's Weekend

CHARLOTTE - Nationally prominent women explored "Women In Industry" on the occasion of the Ninth Annual Women's Week Program at Johnson C. Smith University here last week.

Lawyer Yolande Hargraves Chambers, vice president and personal director of Federal Department Stores of Michigan, Ohio and New York, challenged the students of the University with emphasis on thinking in terms of the future. She stressed the new and vital dimension in the world of work, and the element of demand, Attorney Chambersemphasized that "To meet the challenges you must know your world of work and careers available; your performance must be of quality." To help resolve the problems of careers, she pointed out that, "young people need to be well read; they need to know about testing and how to take tests. Mrs. Barbara H. Deverick, director of management services and staff assistant to the general manager of the Blue Ridge Electric Membership Corporation, of Lenoir, stressed "preparation now by selecting goals, '\ and further stated that "Our choices are based on our personal values." Mrs. Deverick pointed out that, "increase in women workers is due to four factors; it is easier for women to keep house, we desire higher standards of living, there is an expanding economy requiring more workers, and there are changes in the traditional attitudes toward women who work." "There are great needs for women," she continued, "the complex nature of jobs will demand a development of talents to the fullest extent." Mrs. Deverick also urged the young women "to step ahead, meet demands, and challenge traditions by proving that they can deserve equal rights

HOSTILE LISTENERS QUESTION: I am to speak to an interracial group two weeks from now, and I have told some of my friends and/ give street demonstrations a "raking over the coals," be- direction, cause I believe in persuasion and the calm intelligent approach to a solution of the problems in our southern communities. Some of those who will attend the meeting have stated already they are disgusted with me. How shall I handle this type of anticipated audience?---C. L. P.

ANSWER: No matter how provoked you may be when speaking, don't show it. Don't shout; don't lose your temper. Your responsibility is to persuade your listeners, to win them over to your way of thinking, to make them share with you your philosophy on how to intelligently solve the racial problems in the local community. Don't do anything to antagonize your hearers who have come to the meeting for trouble, it you lose the interest of the audience, your apponents

WINSTON-SALEM - The Zetas of Rho Zeta and Omega chapters climaxed their Finer Womanhood celebration last Sunday by honoring Miss Barbara Tuck of Sanford as "Lady of the Year" and hearing a most challenging address by Mrs. Mary W. Steward of Detroit, Michigan. The program was held on the campus of Winston-Salem State College.

Dr. Kenneth R. Williams, president of the college, presented the Susie S. Hilliard Plaque to Miss Tuck on behalf of the sorority. Miss Tuck, a sophomore, was nominated by her class and elected by the student body. Other nominees were Miss Sylvia O. Jones of the senior class and Miss Sylvia Sprinkle of the junior class.
