"Case Study Of A Riot" Endorsed By 4 Leaders

Guide for group discussion of Case Study of a Riot, the incisive analysis of the Philadelphia race riot of 1964 published in January by the American Jewish Committee's Institate of Human Relations Press, was issued Friday by the Committee, this country's pioneer human relations agency.

Case Study of a Riot, endorsed by James Farmer, Bayard Rustin, Roy Wilkins, Whitney M. Young, Jr., and numerous government leaders, offers a sharp picture of the social conditions and festering resentments just below the surface in dozens of Negro ghettos, and outlines a crash program for dealing with these probminhlet is being used by the Federal elations Service, the Office for Economic Opportunity, and by many local human relations and police agencies.

The 16-page discussion guide summarizes the factors that contributed to the Philadelphia riot, and lists questions for discussion and action programs in the areas of education, employment, housing, merchant-consumer relations, and the po-tending that "we cannot isolate ourselves in ivory towers and refuse to deal with the large issues confronting us," Whitney M. Young, Jr., National Urban League executive director, outlined problems afflicting urban Negroes with which social workers should concern themselves.

Addressing a meeting of the Kansas Conference on Social Work, he stressed the role of the social worker in galvanizing the poor to action for themselves, and the need to serve as a catalyst for new ideas and ways to help the poor help themselves.

He pointed to segregated education, housing and inferior health standards, to assert that "it is clear that to be a Negro means being poor, means lowered health standards, means inferior education."

Young also mentioned the Leadership Development pro-

No Registrars For Georgia's Southwest Area

WASHINGTON, D. C. - Despite complaints from workers from the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee (SNCC) and from Southwest Georgia Negroes, the United States Department of Justice has refused to send voting registrars into any Georgia coun-

Complaints have been made by SNCC workers and Negro residents of Baker, Dougherty, Taliferro and Sumter Counties.

The Department, which has sent registrars into counties in Alabama, Louisiana and Mississippi, maintains that the low incidence of Negro registration in Georgia's southwest black belt counties is not due to discrimination.

The Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee began its first Georgia voting drive in August, 1961, in Albany, Dougherty County's seat. Since then, SNCC population have begun drives in neighboring counties where Negro population sometimes totals over 50%.

Complaints from the Southwest Georgia area have forced ing was Mrs. Virginia Hoffler's the Sumter County registrars to maintain open registration hours five days a week.

CP&L servicemen and line crews are regularly on the job to make sure you enjoy dependable, efficient electric service. They routinely install new power poles and transformers, connect electricity for new customers, locate and correct potential trouble spots, see to repairs and maintenance work. These CP&L men also are alert to handle emergency situations when and where they occur. A sudden storm, a fallen wire, a damaged power pole-anything that interrupts your fulltime electric service is a signal for CP&L men to act immediately, no matter what time of day or night.

A lot of CP&L men are at work throughout the Carolinas today. If anything goes wrong tonight, they'll be working then, too.
