TRADE LEASE

Gypsy Flea Mkt. Opens Here Thurs.

The 1966 Gypsy Flea Market opens at 12 noon Thursday, May 12, in North Hills Shopping Center. The 20-booth bazaar, sponsored by the Raleigh Cultural Center, will offer thousands of articles for sale to Raleigh residents with profits going toward a permanent building for the Cultural Center and the summer program in arts and sciences for youth in the community.

Volunteers have worked for months gathering the goods and preparing for the three-day tent sale. Market hours will be 12:00 to 10:00 p. m. on Thursday and 10:00 a. m. to 10:00 p. m. Friday and Saturday. Three circus tents will house the booths which include such a variety as The Country Store, The Boutique Booth, The Book Shop, The Furniture Booth, The Handy Man's Shop and The Small Appliances Booth. One of the larger booths will be The Clothing Booth featuring clothing donated by Raleigh citizens and businesses.

Puppet shows, a quick sketch artist, auctions and a variety of entertainment will also be a part of this year's Flea Market. Auctions will be held each evening at 7:30 p. m. with a special art auction Saturday, May 14, at 2 p. m.

Persons attending the benefit not only will find purchases to their liking at bargain prices but a gay atmosphere - booth salesmen attired in gypsy costumes, lively music filling the tents and smiles from the volunteers who have worked so hard to make the Market a success.

Ligon School News Items

BY ANTONIETTE FOXWELL

To most Ligonites, the most exciting news of the week was the Junior-Senior Prom. About 400 juniors, seniors and their guests attended the prom, which was held on Friday night, May 11, at the Raleigh Memorial Auditorium. The highlight of the evening was the crowning of the prom queen, lovely Miss Marguerite Davis.

The radiant Miss Barbara Thorpe served as maid of honor, while Misses Sally Sparks, Ruthie Goodson, Janet Tucker, and Beatrice Lane made up the queen's court. The queen is selected through popular vote by the junior and senior classes. The theme of the prom was "Over the Rainbow," with music by the Sensational Premiers of Durham. The beauty of the night, the girls, and the dance will be cherished and remembered by all who attended.

The Ligon Modern Music Masters Society held its initiation ceremonies last week. Teachers and students alike were surprised on Monday morning to see thirteen talented musicians proudly dressed in one dark sock and one white sock, dark skirts or pants, and white tops. The neophytes, among other activities, abandoned their own names for those of famous musicians such as Beethoven, Bach, and so forth.

One Wednesday, the last day of initiation, new officers were elected. They are: Jo Ann Cannady, president; Bernard Davis, vice-president; Arturo Ritter, secretary; Abraham Greene, treasurer; and Jacqueline Williams, historian. Installation for the new officers and members was held on Wednesday, May 11. New members are Bernard Davis, Abraham Greene, Bobby Jones, Brenda Jordan, Dorothy Lane, Bernard Lassiter, Beatrice Lane, Arturo Ritter, Jacqueline Scott, Percy Smith, Anna Thomas, Jacqueline Williams, and Gloria Upperman.

Seven members of our Student Council attended the Ninth Annual Piedmont Conference of Middleton, Daisy Nelson, Alice Solomon, Mary Thompson, Christine Toole, Alma Williams, Wetonah Williams, and Eleanor Nunn.

May Week Committee: Sorors Matilda Lee, chairman; Almenna Nunn, Patricia Regis, Marjorie Watts, Mary Curry and Mattie Ruth Davis.

YOU ARE THE DETECTIVE
 You have been summoned to the country estate of the wealthy financier, Matthew L. Gregg, and he has conducted you to one of the far corners of his fields where lies the body of the beautiful and glamorous star of stage and screen, Sherry Carew. She is clad in a beautifully tailored blue coat, and when you stoop and pull the front of this coat apart you find the girl is wearing a bikini bathing suit which covers very little of her lush figure and certainly doesn't conceal the ugly, gaping wound to the left of her abdomen.

"Horrible... horrible!" exclaims the gray-haired Matthew Gregg as he nervously lights a cigarette. "Sherry and I have been friends for quite a long time, and she was a regular guest of mine here...horseback riding, tennis, golf, swimming. This afternoon she and I had been swimming together in my pool, then I had to leave to drive into town to pick up some important mail I was expecting. She put on her beach coat as I was leaving, and said she was going to take a little stroll around the place. When I returned about an hour later, I didn't see her anywhere around the house of the pool, so I went out to look for her. I finally found her... dead... here in the corner of this field... that bull of mine still pawing the ground near her. He had gored her to death! I had often warned her never to risk going into the field, but evidently she had taken a chance... and the bull got to her." Gregg's voice chokes up, and he turns his head away with a shudder.

"Didn't I see in one of the gossip columns in the newspaper recently that you and Sherry had parted company?" you ask.

"Oh... that," Gregg shrugs his shoulders. "You know how columnist are. Sherry and I had a mild little argument one night at the Cedar Grove supper club, but it didn't amount to anything, and we patched things up right away. In fact, we were planning on being married within the next couple of months."

"Where is the killer bull now?" you ask, looking around the empty field.

"As soon as I discovered Sherry lying here, I ran back to the house and got two of my men, and they have taken the animal to another isolated part of the estate. You can be sure I'm going to get rid of the beast as soon as possible!"

"Did you touch Sherry's body or move her in any way afterwards?"

"No. Everything is just as I found her."

"Well," you state. "Judging by the nature of the wound on Sherry's body, it does appear she was gored to death by some instrument, but whether it was by a bull's horn or not is another thing. One thing I'm sure of, this was not an accident. She was murdered!"

What has led you to this conclusion?
SOLUTION
 You were compelled to pull the girl's coat apart in front in order to see the wound on her body. Had the "accident" taken place as Gregg would have you believe, the bull's horn would surely have pierced and torn the victim's beach coat.
