31 Nurses Capped At A&T College

GREENSBORO - Thirty-one student nurses at A&T College, who had completed their first big hurdle, were last week awarded caps at the annual Capping Exercise.

The group, all sophomores, had satisfactorily completed all requirements in the physical, natural and social sciences and introductory courses to nursing and will now begin clinical experience in local hospitals.

The class, the largest in the history of the A&T School of Nursing contained one male student, George Watson of Washington, D. C. He is the second male to enroll in nursing at the college since the beginning of the program in 1953.

Main speaker for the program, held at Harrison Auditorium, was Mrs. Naomi W. Wynn, dean of the School. Speaking from the subject, "The Challenge, Understanding the Nature of Nursing," she told the class, "understanding the nature of nursing requires knowledge and skill of high order, an education grounded in rigorous study and an understanding of man and his behavior."

Three of the students were singled out for special honors.

Virginia Johnson of Wilmington, received the Dr. C. C. Stewart Memorial Scholarship Award, given by the Greensboro Medical Society and presented by Dr. Flotilla Watkins, president. Ella P. Hollowell, Winfall, received the Moses H. Cone Women's Auxiliary Award, presented for that organization by Mrs. Claude Pierce, president, and the Medical Surgical Nursing Award, given by the Greensboro Academy of Medicine, went to Brenda J. Smitherman, Winston-Salem. It was presented by Dr. Richard Kelley, president. All of the honorees were ranking students in the class.

SMAT DRIVE
AMARILLO, Tex. - Almost half of the student body of all-Negro Carver High school has asked to be transferred to this city's predominately white schools. A registered letter containing 103 names was sent to the public school administration asking for transfers. A student group called Students' Mass Application for Transfers was said to have sparked the request.

"DOES A PLASTIC HEART HAVE LOVE IN IT?" - Pittsburgh, Pa. Linda Griggs asked famous Houston heart surgeon Dr. Michael DeBakey in a letter if a plastic heart has love in it. DeBakey wrote back to the second-grader of Garfield Heights, Pa., "Yes, if you can think of how much love there is in hundreds of hearts." DeBakey recently operated on a coal miner and kept him alive for several days using an artificial heart mechanism before the patient died. (UPI PHOTO).

All-White Jury Gives Blond Life In Slaying Of Negro

BY LEON L. LEWIS
FORT WORTH, Tex. (UPI) - A white defendant found guilty of murdering a Negro because he was a black patron of a white tavern, was given life in the state penitentiary by an all-white jury last week. Veteran jurists and lawyers stated that this was the first time in Texas that a white man has received such a "stiff" sentence for the slaying of a Negro.

Witnesses testified that James L. (Little Sid) McGoodwin, 39, shot Joe Hughes Wallace, a 28-year old shoe shine boy, in an all-white tavern. One witness quoted McGoodwin as saying, "I think I'll just blow that nigger's head off," shortly before Wallace was shot through the head.

A surprise witness, who is an ex-convict and in jail, testified that he saw McGoodwin, shoot Wallace, and saw him pull the trigger of his revolver. The witness, Willie Frank, is awaiting trial on a robbery indictment.

He told the jury he saw McGoodwin holding the gun and heard him say, "Where I come from niggers stand up, and if you don't stand up, I'm gonna lay you down."

Wallace had come to the tavern to tell his employer's son that the son's father was ill.

Another witness, co-owner of the tavern, said she asked Wallace if he wanted anything to drink and Wallace replied, "No, I know I'm in the wrong place to drink."

WILL FILE SUIT
BUTLER, Ga. - Georgia's attorney general, Garland Byrd, has announced that he will file a suit against the Taylor County Board of Education and the U. S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, seeking block school systems from forcibly transferring Negro students to achieve integration. "Neither the board of education nor the U. S. government has the right to force these students to go to a school not of their choice because of race," Byrd remarked.

18 School Teachers Organize Fayetteville Reading Council

FAYETTEVILLE -- Eighteen college, elementary and high school teachers as well as educators of Fayetteville and Cumberland County convened and organized The Fayetteville Reading Council, an affiliate of the International Reading Association. The Fayetteville Reading Council proposes to research the reading problems common to pupils, students and adults alike.

Chosen by the Fayetteville Reading Council membership to lead the organization are William C. Bridgers, of Edward Evans Elementary School, as president; Winifred D. Johnson, English instructor at Fayetteville State College, vice-president; and Mildred P. Jones, assistant professor of English at Fayetteville State College, as secretary-treasurer; Augusta M. Haynes, English, E. E. Smith Senior High School, as assistant-secretary; Charles Brown, associate professor of Education at Fayetteville State College, as publicity chairman; Emma W. Greene, of Edward Evans Elementary School as membership chairman, and Helen S. Davis, English Instructor at Fayetteville State College, as program committee chairman.

Membership in the Fayetteville Reading Council is open to any interested educator and citizen in the Fayetteville-Cumberland County Area.

Tutor Writes Ed. Article

DURHAM -- Mrs. Octavia B. Knight, assistant professor of education at North Carolina College, is the author of an article in the Spring 1966 issue of the Journal of Negro Education entitled "A Study of Attitudes of a Select Group of Principals Toward Special Classes for the Mentally Retarded."

Data for the study were obtained from questionnaires completed by principals in attendance at the 14th Annual Conference of Supervisors and Principals at NCC. Of 74 respondents to questions regarding a special program for the retarded, Mrs. Knight reports, "59 were extremely in favor of the program, four were mildly in favor, three were neutral, and one was extremely against having a special class" in his school building. Seven principals expressed no opinion.

She indicated that the major reason for objecting to such classes was the lack of trained personnel to take charge.
