Several windows, leading to different locations within the school, were broken and the window leading to the cafeteria had been removed from its place by taking the molding strips from around the window.

Mr. Foxwell also found that several electric wires, attached to appliances in the cafeteria, were cut.

In the teacher's lounge of the one-year-old school, Mr. Foxwell advised that the vending machines had been broken into. A knife and a blunt instrument were used in this ransacking, according to police headquarters. The City-County Identification Bureau was called in for fingerprints and other essentials.

World Peace Day Planned

"The first imperative for mankind is the achievement of world peace if it is to reap the benefits promised by the age of space," according to Mrs. Frances Falvey, chairman of the Baha'i Assembly of Raleigh. On Sunday September 18, members of the Baha'i Faith in more than 500 American communities will sponsor and observe World Peace Day to spread the recognition of America's spiritual destiny to raise the standard of peace in the world. A public meeting sponsored by the local Baha'i community will be held at North Carolina State University, College Union Building, Room 256-8, at 4:00 on Sept. 18. Speaker will be Terah Cowart-Smith, who will discuss "World Peace--The imperative Challenge." The public is invited to attend. Mrs. Falvey added that the world has become so small and the potential for total destruction so great that before mankind can expect to enjoy the promises and fruits of twentieth century science and technology it must first achieve a lasting world peace. "Today each man can serve God and his fellow man best by service in the cause of world peace," Mrs. Falvey concluded. A statement was given by Governor Dan Moore designating Sunday, September 18, as "WORLD PEACE DAY IN NORTH CAROLINA." He urged continued support for American leadership in this most vital undertaking. "The desire for world peace is the goal and hope of all people of good will, and it is recognized by all reasonable men that the world today has become so small and the potential for destruction so great that the first imperative for mankind is the achievement of world peace. The people of the United States of America, because of their many blessings and spiritual heritage, are in the vanguard of this desire for peace. The members of the Baha'i faith of the State of North Carolina are joining in the national observance of a special day set aside for special attention to the problems inherent in attainment of peace in the world. "In the fervent hope that this will stimulate the consciousness of Americans everywhere toward the need for working diligently, each in his own way and in concert with others, for actions designed to reach the goal of world peace, I am pleased to designate Sunday, September 18, 1966, as WORLD PEACE DAY IN NORTH CAROLINA and urge continued support for American leadership in this most vital undertaking. BETTER IN DIXIE? MIAMI BEACH - The South will soon lead the North in desegregation, Guy B. Johnson of the University of North Carolina told a meeting of the American Sociological Association. Prof. Robin M. Williams, Cornell University said American schools are more heavily segregated today than in 1954, when the U.S. Supreme Court out-lawed school segregation.
