

"Don't Engage In Long-Distance Worrying," Urges Bennett Prexy

GREENSBORO—"Don't engage in long-distance worrying, but instead, engage in short-distance action," Dr. Isaac H. Miller, Jr., new president of Bennett College, declared in his address marking the first formal chapel of the 1966-67 academic year, here Wednesday.

Bennett Announces Award

GREENSBORO—Announcement of the award of North Carolina Scholarships for Teachers of the Mentally Retarded to four Bennett College juniors was announced last week by Dr. Richard L. Fields, director of teacher education.

The grants of $875 each, which are also renewable, Lineberger, of Maiden; Department of Public Instruction and go to: Misses Helen Foulks, of Greensboro; Annie Lineberger, of Maiden; DeLores Walker, of Durham, and Sherrill Isley, of Danville, Va.

involvement, but a disciplined and quiet approach to creative realization of self.

"We shall conquer the universe of tomorrow through the simple step-by-step mastery of physical principles today,"—he declared. "We shall create a whole new world of human brotherhood and understanding tomorrow by struggling with ideas and philosophies that guide human behavior, human hopes and ethical standards today."

The Bennett president stated that he faced his new responsibilities "with a great deal of humility," and urged the students to walk with him "as together we pursue academic excellence."

NEW FRIENDSHIPS - The nearly 1,100 freshman students who last week enrolled at A&T College, lost little time in getting acquainted. Lawrence Calvin, left, Kings Mountain, a youthful combat veteran with the 82nd Airborne Infantry, just recently discharged in time to enter college this fall, chats with Misses: Equilla Hodges, Raleigh, Constance Lowe, Durham, Cynthia Poston, Orlando, Fla., also new students.

Jack And Jill Gives $34G's To Civil Rights Struggle

NEW YORK - Announcement of a $34,000.00 contribution to the NAACP Legal Defense and Educational Fund, Inc. by Jack and Jill of America, Inc. was made here this week.

Mrs. Margaret Simms, of St. Louis, Mo., national president of the mothers' organization made the presentation at LDF national headquarters to Rufus W. Smith, LDF director of development.

An independent organization, the LDF serves as the legal arm of the civil rights movement. Its more than 200 staff and cooperating attorneys represent all major civil rights organizations.

In presenting the check Mrs. Simms said, "Jack and Jill feels that the Legal Defense Fund is the central and outstanding vehicle through which Negro Americans are attaining full equality day by day in our society."

Jack and Jill voted the LDF as a national project for a two year period at its 1964 convention in Seattle, Washington.

Mrs. Jacqueline J. Robinson of Washington, D. C., a Jack and Jill national vice-president, serves as director of this project, which still has four months to run.

60 Raleigh Witnesses To Durham

About 60 delegates from the south unit congregation of Jehovah's Witnesses here in Raleigh will attend a 3 day circuit convention in Durham, Friday, Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 30-October 2, according to a statement made here today by Joseph Taylor, local presiding minister.

The meeting will be held at the Whitted Junior High School on Umstead Street in Durham. More than 600 delegates are expected.

The theme of this 3 day seminar, sponsored by the Watchtower Society is: "Become Spiritual Men with Everlasting Life in View."

Accordingly, Friday's program will be devoted to the spiritual up-building of youth, and strengthening the family circle. With this in view, a fast moving and exciting movie, entitled, "Heritage," produced by the Watchtower Society, will be shown Friday at 6:50 p.m. This picture is centered around family appreciation of spiritual things.

The program for Saturday will include a talk on dedication and baptism by C. G. Thompson, after which a number of new Witnesses will be baptized. And at 6:20 p.m. Saturday, the convention will be privileged to see a one hour and forty minute strengthening movie, entitled, "God Cannot Lie." This is an all color picture also, produced by the Watchtower Society. However, the crowning feature of this three day gathering will be a public discourse Sunday afternoon at three o'clock by C. G. Thompson, district supervisor. The subject of the address will be, "Satisfying Mankind's Greatest Need."

The convention will start Friday evening, Sept. 30, at 6:45 p. m. and continue through Sunday, October 2 until 6:00 p.m. All sessions will be open to the public, Taylor said.

TO CONDUCT REVIVAL HERE - The Rev. William Stokely, pastor of the Central Baptist Church, Kingsport, Tennessee, will conduct revival services at the Tupper Memorial Baptist Church, corner S. Blount and E. Cabarrus Streets, here, beginning on Monday night, October 3, and ending on Friday night, October 7. The Rev. R.W. Styles is host pastor and the public is invited to attend.

NCC Enrolls 2,670 Students

DURHAM - Brooklyn T. McMillon, registrar at North Carolina College, announced Saturday that after three days of registration 2670 students had enrolled for courses at the institution.

These include undergraduates, fulltime and part-time graduate students, and students in the college's schools of law and library science.

McMillon indicated a projected enrollment for the first semester of 2800 students before the close of registration on Saturday, September 24.

Classes began at the college on Monday
