James Matthews, to Apex Branch Hospital. The trooper stated that apparently Parlin fled in attempt to avoid authorities. The highway patrolman said that several witnesses reported that a caravan of cars, loaded with young Negro men, including the car driven by Parlin, was driving toward Apex returning from the Sanford Drag Strip at speeds in excess of 100 miles an hour. They were allegedly driving recklessly and had narrowly escaped wrecking prior to colliding with White's automobile.

The officer stated that he was parked on U. S. 1, north of the wreck scene and observed a high cloud of dust rise when the accident occurred. In the car with Deputy Marshall White were his wife, Mrs. Barbara White, his daughter, Miss Susan White, and his son, Marshall White Jr.

Robert Earl Parlin, brother of the driver, and Clinton Whitefield, 22, student at Shaw University were reported to be a passenger in the Parlin car. They received minor injuries. The car operated by Dixon who is a Baptist minister, was damaged at approximately $400.00 and Parlin's vehicle was estimated at a total loss. At CAROLINIAN press time, the State officials had not been able to locate Ollis Parlin.

and asked to be excused before the regular time of school closing, was excused and went home. Members of the jury which decided the student's fate included: R. N. Keith, R. N. Branson, N. F. Munn, Mrs. B. N. Dunn, Luther Tart, and O. C. Smith.

Principal Coulter, according to Coroner Donnet, took the stand to tell of incidents which he knew on the afternoon in question. Investigating officers of the town's police department, including the chief of police, were also on hand to testify. Miss Harris did not testify at the inquest. She did, however, concur with everything presented in evidence. The jury deliberated some 20 to 25 minutes before rendering an unanimous verdict.

told him to use a telephone in the lobby, but he wanted to use the one in his office, the operator stated.

"I talked the boy into giving me the hammer and searched him and found a sharpened piece of wood in his possession," (cocked), Turner stated.

Turner put the boy in his squad car and started back to Raleigh with him. He started the youth told him, "the Ku Klux Klan is after me." "I was headed in with him, driving approximately 55 miles an hour when he came and cut me in the face with his fist breaking my glasses. At the same time, he grabbed my gun," the Deputy stated.

Turner also grabbed the gun to prevent the youth from pulling it from the holster.

"He hit me four or five times before I could get my squad car stopped. I was having a rough time," Turner said. "Since I had to keep one hand on the wheel and the other on my gun to keep him from pulling it, and all the time him beating me in the face with his free hand.

"I didn't even get a chance to pull the car off the highway and stopped on the pavement," Turner stated the youth struck him two or three more times after the sheriff's wagon stopped.

"A truck driver apparently saw I was in trouble and stopped, got a .22 rifle from his truck and came over to the car," Turner said. "The boy yelled at the truck driver to 'leave him alone truck driver' and stay back and I yelled to the driver that he (the boy) didn't have my gun, that I still had it.

"As fast as I unlocked the door so the truck driver could get in to help me, the boy reloaded it." The driver finally got the door open and told young Washington if he didn't turn the officer's gun loose he would shoot him. Another motorist then helped place handcuffs on Washington while Turner held him. Turner said he was so played out that he didn't get the name of the truck driver or the other person who had helped him. The youth was committed to Dorothea Dix hospital.

continuing payments. In the case of youth under twelve years, $100 pays a junior life membership, also payable in installments.)

Greensboro was second with four new subscribers and 11 renewal payments in the branch headed by Dr. S. A. Simpkins. Winston-Salem reported three each--new and renewal. A total of 54 new life memberships were enlisted over the State.

The Raleigh branch NAACP received the Kelly Alexander Life Membership Award given for leadership in the life membership area. C.A. Mitchell received for the Reidsville NAACP branch a plaque for the greatest increase in regular memberships. All NAACP branches are expected to secure life memberships from individuals, lodges, churches, fraternities, sororities, labor unions, etc.

The Kelly Alexander Life Membership Award was instituted by the National NAACP Office to honor Alexander for his 18 years as the dynamic leader of Tarheella's NAACP Conference, and to stimulate the enrollment into the life membership honor society on the part of persons who have felt they could not afford it. Many have taken the nod to life memberships when it was revealed to them that only a dollar a week (saved) will make the payments after the first $50 down. There are more than 18,000 now enrolled.

Another first for Raleigh and Tarheella is that of having the convention hosted (for two public meetings) in the United Church (predominantly white) whose minister is an officer of the local NAACP.

After adopting the Rev. J.T. McMillan's theme of "Rainbow Power," which he said "means all races blending together for justice and love, peace and harmony in this Nation," the sixty ministers pledged to return to their fields and start in earnest a program to enroll NAACP memberships and register and vote their parishioners.

In his annual address to the 23rd N.C. NAACP convention, President Kelly M. Alexander Sr., said, "Negroes cannot do enough for the NAACP because NAACP has done so much for us over its 57 years of fighting for the equality of all Americans." Then the national board member reminded that NAACP "has been a training school for most of the Negroes who are now occupying prominent places in the national government today."

While renouncing any partnership with the "black power" advocates, Alexander warned: "We must be sensitive to the impatience of Negroes in this State for more rapid progress in translating Civil Rights into meaningful results in education, employment, and full democracy," adding: "We will continue to work within the framework of the U.S. Constitution to achieve our goals of full freedom." He called for an alertness and up-and-doing on the part of local NAACP leadership to see that the anti-poverty programs reach the needy as intended.

"Job Market Information Bureaus" were cited as avenues through which NAACP can assist the unskilled and unemployed in securing the jobs and, or training to better fit them for upgraded or present jobs. This is being done in Charlotte to advantage.

Among the celebrities featured on the star-studded convention program were: Bishop Stephen G. Spootswood, NAACP board chairman, who keynoted the Ministers' banquet at First Baptist; Gloster B. Current, field director, who spoke to opening mass meetings at United Church; Thomas M. Ammons, U.S. Dept. Labor; Walter

Meanwhile, in Atlanta, Jack Turner, chairman, Fulton County (Atlanta) Democratic party, charged that the party's segregationist candidate for governor, Lester G. Maddox, had made a secret pact to support three Negroes running for the state legislature---then went back on his word.

Maddox called a newspaper report of the meeting "a sinister plot" and said he could not vote for the Negro candidates.

Turner said he was amazed to hear Maddox announce that he would not vote for some Democrats when he swore an oath to do so.

Meanwhile, the white backlash was aiding candidates across the nation who opposed fair housing legislation. Ronald Reagan, Republican candidate for governor of California, was improving his chances of election by indicating his opposition to open housing laws. His opponent, Gov. Edmund G. Brown, was hurting from "backlash" identification with racial disorders in Los Angeles, Oakland, and San Francisco.

In Chicago, Republican candidate Charles H. Percy said the white backlash would hurt his Democratic opponent, Sen. Paul H. Douglas, in the Illinois Senate race.

Percy, who deplored the backlash, has switched from opposition to open housing laws to support of them, as long as single-family residences are excluded. Sen. Douglas has supported open occupancy laws all the way.

Openly capitalizing on the "white backlash" vote has been a write-in candidate for U. S. Senator from Illinois, Mayor Robert Sabonjian of Waukegan, who has termed rights marchers "winos" and "junkies" and urged that mothers of illegitimate children be locked up. Sabonjian won the applause of segregationists when he denounced the NAACP for allegedly sparking the recent racial disturbances in his city.

In Maryland, Democratic candidate for governor, George P. Mahoney, was banking on his opposition to open housing laws to win him the election.

E. Wrenn, Jr. of HEW; Dr. Stephen J. Cornett, Jr. of HEW; John G. Hays, also from HEW; Albert L. Thompson, FHA (Inter-group Relations); Atty. Donald R. Hollowell, Equal Employment; Atty. Kenneth Holbert, Equal Employment Comm.; John M. Brooks, NAACP Voter-Registration; Sherrill Marcus, NAACP Youth Director; Jack Greenberg, NAACP Legal Defense Fund Director; and Robert L. Carter, NAACP Counselor.

'Black Power' Is Scored By G. Weaver

AKRON, Ohio--Cries of "black power" are threatening to "drown out" the civil rights movement, Assistant Secretary of Labor George L-P Weaver has declared here.

He charged that the black power concept might upset "the calm and reasoned philosophy of nonviolence, of intelligent protest, of the wise use of the law and public opinion."

Mr. Weaver, in a speech at the Centennial Celebration of Akron's Wesley A.M.E. Church, noted that the goal of American Negroes has long been "to participate, not overthrow."

"The goal is an equitable share in the American economy, in housing in educational and social opportunity, and it will not be achieved by substituting a 'molotov cocktail' for reason and negotiation."

He added that "black chauvinism" can't be substituted for "white chauvinism."

"When you attempt this," he said, "you alienate the broad community support of all groups which have been forged together in a common pursuit of justice through...nonviolence."

Mr. Weaver asserted that the emphasis in human rights is now shifting from legislatures and courts to communities in the fields of education and employment.

A. Phillip Randolph Details His "Freedom Budget" $100 Billion

NEW YORK--The eyes of the nation were focused on a Harlem church, Wednesday (October 26), when A. Phillip Randolph gave the details of his intricately developed proposal describe the budget designed to deal "not only with where we must go, but also with how fast and in what proportions."

The budget, formulated with the assistance of a number of the nation's leading economists, measures costs against resources and is "not only a call to action, but also a schedule for action."

The "Freedom Budget" leaves no room for discrimination in any form, because its programs are addressed "to all who need more opportunity and improved income and living standards--not just to some of them."

Bayard Rustin, Executive Director of the Randolph Institute, indicated that the budget spells out a "specific and factual course of action, step by step, to start in early 1967 toward the practical liquidation of poverty in the United States by 1975."
