SELF-HELP PROJECTS LEAD TO SELF-SUPPORT

1. Shipment of books arrive in Kenya, Africa.

2. In 20 African countries, CRS conducts medical training programs.

3. CRS school lunch programs improve attendance and attentiveness.

4. Vocational training courses prepare unskilled youths for self-sufficiency in the future.

The future stability and success of the emerging and underdeveloped nations lie dormant in their poverty-stricken populations. The malnourished and undernourished, the poverty-afflicted and the disease-ridden—comprising two-thirds of the world's population—are unable to attain the education and training they need to break the chains of their desolation and deprivation. Catholic Relief Services, the overseas aid agency of American Catholics, in addition to providing food, clothing and medicines to the needy, sponsor and supervise educational and vocational training schools to help the underprivileged attain self-respect and human dignity. Support these worthy self-help programs during the 1966 BISHOPS' OVERSEAS RELIEF FUND APPEAL, March 13-20. Send your donation to: Catholic Bishops' Overseas Relief Fund, Empire State Bldg., New York, N. Y. 10001. (Or to the nearest Catholic church.)

BURL ALLEN'S INK TONGUE

SALUTATION
Upon my frowzy, tranquil couch, one yaad,
And I -- who NEVER spent a SILESS day--
Am blest to celebrate another DAWN;
To banish all my trespasses passé.

Last night brought THOUSANDS to their mortal end--
Some consecrated souls and some unfit--
But Heaven's Hope and Mercy still attend,
So Earth awakes again--and I with it!

Therefore, instead of greeting wind and sun,
Orchard and garden, home and neighborhood--
Or hailing bird and brook or EVERYONE
And EVERYTHING, in brazen gratitude
For light on creature, herbage, stream and cloud,
I prayerfully salute: "Good MORNING, God!"

Mouthwashes
It may seem strange to devote an entire column to mouthwashes, but we Americans spend millions of dollars on them each year and television commercials seem to suggest that they can do everything from preventing a cold to guaranteeing a happy love life.

When you ask a physician, a dentist, or a pharmacist, he'll probably answer: "They're fine—except that people use them for the wrong reasons."

First off, a mouthwash cannot cure or prevent a cold—regardless of what you hear on television. Secondly, if you have chronic bad breath, you should see a physician or dentist since chronic bad breath may be a sign of decaying teeth, stomach trouble, or any number of conditions requiring professional advice.

Are mouthwashes useless, then? Far from it. A mouthwash performs an effective service as a lavage... mechanically cleansing the mouth and teeth of food particles.

When gargled, a mouthwash can soothe the irritated tissues of sore throats. In fact, one very effective oral solution, called Chloraseptic mouthwash, is widely recommended by physicians to relieve the pain and discomfort of sore throats due to cold. Researchers at a number of hospitals throughout the country have found that Chloraseptic relieves minor sore throat pain often within seconds.

What sets this mouthwash apart is the fact that it is "anesthetic," or more correctly, a topical anesthetic. This means it relieves pain on the surface of the mouth and throat tissue.

Available in drugstores without a prescription, Chloraseptic has been used by physicians and dentists for over 10 years for prompt relief of mouth and throat soreness.

When your physician or dentist recommends a mouthwash to you, he has a clear cut reason for doing it—and that reason is never to prevent or cure a cold—or an unhappy marital future.

Parade Of Kitchen Ideas

Spring and summer picnics are always fun, especially when you don't have to scurry around all morning preparing and packing food. Avoid this problem. Make your sandwiches, cakes and all other foods the day before; wrap them carefully in aluminum household foil and store in the refrigerator overnight.

On the day of the picnic, all you do is pack the well-chilled food and beverages in an insulated picnic bag, drive to your favorite spot and enjoy the delicious food and the pleasant surroundings.

Here are some good suggestions to make your picnic more enjoyable:
Sandwiches: Make these the day before. Avoid using mayonnaise, cucumber or tomato slices as they soak in and soften the bread. Spread bread with butter or margarine if you like. Wrap sandwiches several in a package, in Reynolds Wrap aluminum foil and store overnight in the refrigerator. Mark foil before wrapping, denoting fillings, using a strip of scotch magic tape and writing on the tape.

Salads: Prepare your favorite salad — potato, macaroni or chicken — and place in a bowl. Wrap bowl and all in a large sheet of aluminum foil and store overnight in the refrigerator. Leave the lettuce out of the salad and wrap separately in foil to keep it crisp.

Hot casseroles: Baked beans, etc., can be kept warm for hours, if you wrap the whole dish in foil when it comes from the oven — use Reynolds Wrap heavy duty foil.

Fried or roast chicken: Hot or cold, chicken keeps its crunchiness and flavor when wrapped in aluminum foil. Cook chicken the day before, drain grease on brown paper, cool, wrap and refrigerate. For hot chicken, place the foil package over the picnic fire until the chicken is reheated.

Hamburgers: Mix with seasonings and shape the day before, stack with a piece of foil between each burger and wrap all in aluminum foil. Refrigerate. Do not hold hamburgers for more than 24 hours. Next day, broil at the picnic grounds. Buns wrapped in aluminum foil stay bakery fresh.

AT YOUR BEST

By Carol Bennett, Teen Consultant, Breck Hair Care Center
Watch Out For ESP

There's your hair, quietly growing half an inch a month, nicely controllable and then you wake up one morning, gaze into the mirror and it looks—horror of horrors!—too long. It's going every which way, doesn't take a curl, resists all efforts to be kept in trim. You get a determined look in your eye and a slight quiver in your chin. You've reached what is called the ESP—the Exasperated Snipping Point—that awful time when you decide you must cut your hair or die of shame!

You can overcome ESP in several ways. Try a new hair style. If you feel a compulsion toward scizzoring cut little wispy bangs or side quiches. Buy a wiglet to help you over the hurdles of the in-betweeny-length. Or perk up your hair with a jazzy temporary rinse, Mother-willing.

Whatever you decide to do, look upon the whole episode as a battle. Either you'll control your hair, or it'll get the better of you. Enlist in your arsenal a hair spray like Breck Hair Set Mist. The unique new filtered formula was devised especially to make it the best controller the hair ever had. And good news too is that the Hair Set Mist prevents spray build-up and formation of dulling film that mars the shine of naturally clean hair. Gone is the "goo," because the Mist sprays on almost dry!

If you've just about reached your ESP and are heading for a rendezvous with the shears catch yourself before it's too late.
