

Swing Into A Costume Suit

One of the easiest fashions to wear is the three-piece costume suit. Your blouse is chosen for you, coordinated elegantly with the suit—and the entire ensemble is so well put together that you always feel just right anywhere.

According to National Board of the Coat and Suit Industry, "There's a silhouette for everyone this season. The thing to watch for is good tailoring and quality as well as fashion."

Here's a costume suit that answers the description. In doeskin wool, it has its own jersey blouse in abstract design. In brown, it comes in sizes 8-16. About $175.00. At major stores everywhere.

One of the shapes that has caught on, among the many exciting new coats and suits, is the "pup tent." Free and swinging towards the hem, restrained width stems from narrower shoulders.

NAACP Bureau Chief To Keynote ECS College's Anniversary

ELIZABETH CITY - Clarence Mitchell, Director of the Washington Bureau of the NAACP, will deliver the major address at the 75th Anniversary Convocation to be held at Elizabeth City State College on Sunday, Dec. 11, at 3 p. m. Mr. Mitchell, recently cited by a Washington newspaper as perhaps the most effective worker for civil rights in the country, has for a number of years been the spark plug in working with the United States Congress on civil rights legislation. A native of Baltimore, Mr. Mitchell, an attorney, is married to Atty. Juanita Jackson Mitchell, and is the father of Clarence Mitchell, III, a member of the Maryland Legislature for several years, who was recently elected to the Maryland Senate. The convocation will be preceded by a formal academic procession of the faculty. The College organist, Leonard R. Ballou, will play the "Diamond Processional," a march which he especially created for this occasion. The College Choir, under the direction of Evelyn A. Johnson, will render special music. During the convocation a special feature will be the presentation of citations to Alumni and faculty, recommended by the 75th Anniversary Committee. Isaac A. Battle, of Gatesville, past president of the Alumni Association, will be cited for his work and leadership with the Alumni Association. T. S. Cooper of Elizabeth City will be cited as an Alumnus who over a period of 67 years has given leadership and contribution in education in his community and as a member of the Board of Trustees. Dr. J. R. R. McRay, Pastor of Cornerstone Baptist Church, Elizabeth City, will be cited for his consistent loyal support of the Institution and its program over many years. Dr. Herman Glen Cooke of the College Department of Biology will be cited for his research and writing in the fields of Ecology and Entomology. Dr. Cooke's writings have brought inquiries and comments from many American and European Universities and he has been invited to present some results of his research to the World Science Conference in Finland in 1967. A special citation will be presented to McDonald Dixon, Chairman of the Board of Trustees, and to each present Trustee of the College. These citations will be in appreciation of the work of the Trustee through the history of the college and document the membership of the present Board on the 75th Anniversary. Three of the five presidents who have served Elizabeth City State College will participate in the Convocation celebrating the 75th Anniversary of the Institution, founded in 1891. Dr. Harold L. Trigg, who served the Institution as President from 1939 to 1945, and is presently a member of the North Carolina State Board of Education and Faculty of Livingstone College, will participate in a Symposium on Saturday and present citations at the Sunday Convocation. Dr. Sidney D. Williams, President of the College from 1946 to 1958, now a resident of Jamaica, New York, and Mrs. Williams will attend and Dr. Williams will present citations at the Sunday Convocation. Dr. Walter N. Ridley, the present President since 1958, will preside.

Raleigh Twin Are Found Training In Job Corps

MORGANFIELD, Ky. - They were planning to leave in December. But now, after five months at the Breckinridge Job Corps Center here, they've decided to stay around until next June. Alton and Albert Pulley, 20-year-old identical twins, are from Raleigh. They're enrolled in the Center's vocational skill program in business and retail occupations. In the Job Corps, a young man can elect to graduate after completion of certain required phases in a skill program. Or he can continue through the entire program. The Pulley boys want more training. After December, they can start the merchandising phase of the retail sales program. They're now in "general retailing." The young Corpsmen are typical twins in many ways. Both dropped out of high school after completing the tenth grade. Both enrolled in the Center's general education academic program. Both worked hard and got their G. E. D. (General Educational Development) certificates, the equivalent of high school diplomas. But their plans for the future are far from identical. They're still somewhat undeecided on actual goals. They can, if they wish, extend their training even beyond the merchandising phase. Breckinridge offers a course of study in management where young men learn everything from the basic problems in retail management to government and labor regulations for business. But, right now, the twins have very different ideas on their plans after graduation from Breckinridge. Backed by his Job Corps training and G. E. D., Alton thinks he'd like to go on to college -- Roosevelt University in Chicago -- and major in business administration. Albert, on the other hand, says, "I'd like to join the Peace Corps if I can." Why? "I just like helping other people." How do they feel about their experiences in the Job Corps? "I'd be willing to do anything I can to help the Job Corps after I get out," says Albert. Alton feels that the Job Corps gives a young man or woman "a second chance," an opportunity to "build himself."

St. Augustine's President Addresses N. Y. Alumni

BY MARYLOU M. MCLEOD
NEW YORK - Dr. Prezell Robinson, acting President of St. Augustine's College, addressed that institution's New York Alumni, during a special meeting which marked the New York Chapter's fund raising "kick-off," in observance of the alma mater's Centennial celebration. The meeting was staged in The Red Shield Club, West 124th Street between 7th and 8th Avenues on Thursday night last, beginning at 8 p. m. Like his predecessor, Dr. James A. Boyer, who is on sabbatical leave from St. Augustine's, beloved President Robinson's speech was interrupted several times by applause from a crowd which was held to a minimum because of a last minute change in engagements and inclement weather. Dr. Robinson, who also attended United Negro College Fund meetings here, as did he with other meetings involving college business, was accompanied to New York by his hard-working public relations man

Purdie Anders, who sat on the right side of Dr. Robinson during the above mentioned address. The southern educator who was introduced by New York chapter president, Peter G. Holden, Sr., prior to his elevation to the presidency, served as academic dean at St. Augustine's for ten years. He outlined the growth and development of St. Augustine's under the leadership of Dr. James A. Boyer, and went on to unveil some plans he (Dr. Robinson) had for the continued growth and expansion of the Raleigh institution. Mr. Anders followed the president as speaker and covered the areas in which the college is in most need. He also stressed the importance of all alumni assuming a greater share of the financial burden also inherited by Dr. Robinson. The alumni present responded by making a $375.00 pledge to the national alumni centennial fund. Immediately after the meeting, the visiting college faculty members were taken to the Small Business Development and Opportunities Corporation (2315-7th Ave.) where the New York Alumni president introduced Dr. Robinson and Mr. Anders to Joseph Valdez, president of the Harlem Merchants Association, Dr. Mallieu Wolford, director of the Small Business Development and Opportunities Corporation; Dr. F. Johnson, a former professor on the staff of Tennessee State College and Attorney Donald Covington, a law partner of Manhattan Borough, president, Percy Sutton, Attorney Covington, a delegate-elect to the New York State Constitutional Convention, formerly legally represented Congressman Adam Clayton Powell in the Congressman's celebrated case against Mrs. Ester James, Harlem widow, who alleges Congressman Powell called her a "bag woman" for the New York City Police. Mr. Valdez and the St. Augustine's trio were then treated to dinner by the New York Alumni Chapter president, at a famous uptown steak house.
