Final Rites Are Held For Sammy Davis' Grandmother

LOS ANGELES (UPI) - "To the people who was close to the Davis family she was 'Mamma.'"

"Mamma's sense of humor was razor-sharp."

With these simple and warm words of respect, Byron Kane, noted director and close friend of the Davis family eulogized Mrs. Rosa B. Davis, grandmother of entertainer, Sammy Davis, Jr., last week in the Wee Kirk O'Heather chapel at the Forrest Lawn in Glendale.

Mrs. Davis was born on Aug. 31, 1880 in North Carolina. She was 86. She died from a heart attack in the Westside hospital in Beverly Hills.

The Rev. Jerry Ford, pastor, Bethel AME church presided over the simple and dignified services.

Kane also made these comments about, "Mamma," the cheerful and gracious grandmother of Sammy Davis Jr. "She loved Sammy Davis Sr. She adored 'Pee Wee' (Mrs. Rita Davis Sr.) and called Sammy Davis Jr., her darling.

"For the past 10 years she resided here and in New York. On opening night, there she would be beaming at ringside or front row center. I know that she would want us to remember that image at ringside or front row center beaming."

Rev. Ford added: "God must have loved us because he gave us such a great one."

"Certainly God gave her a rich and enduring gift. She lived with laughter and joy."

Members of the immediate family in attendance were Sammy Davis Jr., his wife, Swedish actress Mia Britt, Mr. and Mrs. Sammy Davis Sr., Mrs. Davis is also survived by one granddaughter and six great grandchildren.

Mrs. Davis was laid to rest on a quiet hill overlooking the city. On a clear day, downtown Glendale can be seen.

Sammy Jr., held his commiseration throughout the services for Mrs. Rosa B. Davis, the lady who reared him most from birth because his parents were in show business and on the road most of the time.

"Mamma," as she was known to her immediate family and close friends, was laid to rest at ringside or front row center Monday at Forrest Lawn in Glendale.

HEADS DRIVE - Dr. Bernard D. Herman, Raleigh pediatrician, has been named Wake County chairman for United Cerebral Palsy of North Carolina. He will be in charge of the Happiness is Helping campaign in January to raise funds for research and for care of cerebral palsy victims. The Wake drive will feature a "53 Minute March" to dramatize that cerebral palsy strikes every 53 minutes somewhere in the nation.

Urges Counselors Take Role In Youth Aid

WASHINGTON - Many occupations that once barred Negroes are now open and guidance counselors bear a major responsibility in helping Negro youth to groom for these new job opportunities.

U. S. Announces Deferment Tests

The Director of Selective Service, Lt. General Lewis B. Hershey, in behalf of Uncle Sam, has announced that the Selective College Qualification Tests (SSCQT) similar to those given during 1966, will be administered on the following dates and places: Saturday, March 11; March 31, 1967 and Saturday, April 8, 1967, in more than 500 selective test centers in our 50 states including the Canal Zone, Virgin Islands, Guam, Puerto Rico and the District of Columbia.

All our boys concerned, please read the posters announcing these examinations at your college university and post office display boards.

Arthur A. Chapin, special assistant to Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz, expressed this opinion in an article in the December issue of the Department of Labor's Occupational Outlook Quarterly.

"Counselors, and others in helping roles to youths," he said, "must ask themselves if they are doing as much as possible in preparing all youth for the world of work."

First, he added, the counselor "must rid himself of the traditional thinking about past patterns of vocational choice for certain groups in our society."

"He must constantly acquaint himself with the ever-expanding opportunities available and then make available to all young people as broad a base of vocational information as possible," he said.

Mr. Chapin noted there is now an abundance of help for the counselor's vital job, including:

--Support under the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965 through financial assistance to local systems and guidance and counseling services.

--Support under the Civil Rights school system and guidance and counseling services.

and counseling services. --Support under the Civil Rights Act of 1964 which provides for institutes to help school personnel deal better with educational problems caused by desegregation.

--Assistance from the Federal-State Employment Service through testing and employment counseling and, subsequently, help in placing young people in jobs.

"The local employment service office," he said, "can provide counselors and their students with up-to-date information on the local job market, supply and demand in occupations, and changes in occupational requirements whenever

MUDDLED IDEAS

During the fall three readers called my attention to their inability to present their ideas clearly and orderly in a public speech. One man, an executive, felt that he needed to make such contacts as these.

The writer suggests that some thought must be put into the planning of the speech. In presenting one idea, the speaker needs only the outline. The details must be learned by repeated practice, but not to the point of verbatim recall. The outline will serve as a guide for the beginning speaker and make it possible for him to say things in 1-2-3-4 order. It is suggested that the outline be kept as brief as possible, to prevent the speaker from memorizing every word. Express the details extemporaneously. Confine your addresses to exposition at first, and this will enable you to follow definite steps in your delivery.
